U. S. Seals Off Dominican Rebels; Peace Agreement Is Being Sought

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Negotiators of the Organization of American States reported headway Monday night toward a peace agreement in the Dominican revolt as U.S. forces sealed off the rebel stronghold in Santo Domingo.

Ricardo Colombo of Argentina, head of the OAS peace committee, said the negotiators had made "a great deal of progress toward a solution of the crisis" after a two-hour session with the rebel military command. He declined to give details.

The committee met with Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, rebel military commander and his aides in rebel-held territory in downtown Santo Domingo. Earlier the inter-American group met with leaders of the military junta set up by Brig. Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin.

U. S. Marines and paratroopers boxed in the insurgent stronghold in the downtown area by establishing a corridor across the remaining exposed edge of the sector. Its avowed purpose was to assure a flow of supplies to an international safety zone set up for the protection of foreigners. Since the revolt erupted nine days ago they have been supplied by helicopter.

The U. S. troops took up positions in houses, alleys and garages. Some residents chatted with the soldiers, but others glared resentfully.

One Marine was killed and two were wounded Monday by sniper fire, some of it directed at the U. S. Embassy. Three rebels were reported slain. A U.S. paratrooper wounded in fighting earlier died in Puerto Rico, bringing to six the number of U.S. military personnel killed since Friday. The U.S. Defense Department said 23 army men and 21 marines have been wounded.

An unconfirmed report said a U.S. paratrooper also was killed

Earth Shocks Continue in San Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Areas around San Salvador were evacuated today as earth shocks continued. Reports of the toll in Monday's quake ranged from 43 to 120 dead.

The government declared a state of emergency and started mass inoculations against typhoid and other diseases in the areas of heaviest damage.

Many homes were destroyed and at least 4,000 were damaged. Adobe shacks on the outskirts of San Salvador were hardest hit.

The official residence of U.S. Ambassador Raul Castro suffered about $35,000 damage. Castro, a former judge in Tucson, Ariz., said no Americans of the embassy staff were hurt.

The government put the death toll at 43 and said about 300 were injured. Other reports said as many as 120 were killed and 400 or more injured.

(Reports received Monday night at the U.S. military headquarters in the Panama Canal Zone said there were [illegible] dead and 300 injured. A spokesman said no request for U.S. assistance had been received.)

The quake cracked part of the runway of San Salvador's airport and damaged the new multimillion-dollar terminal building.

The first shock came at 4:02 a.m. San Salvador newspapers said its force registered 7.5 on the Richter scale. Other shocks came at 9:02 a.m. and at noon. A ham radio operator said he counted 30 tremors.

The quake apparently centered in San Marcos and in Santo Tomas, about 10 miles southeast of San Salvador. Extensive damage was reported in towns near the capital.

San Salvador was ruined by earthquakes in 1854 and in 1873 and was jarred heavily in 1917. The city, founded four centuries ago, has a population of about 100,000.

Mrs. Obodov is now a candidate for the Eagle's state award which will be presented this month by Gov. John Love.

54-Acre Project Annexation To Fountain Is Being Asked

By DAVE OSBORN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Annexation of 54 acres of land to the Town of Fountain was requested Monday night by R. D. VonEngeln, a Colorado Springs real estate dealer. He appeared before the town's Board of Trustees to seek annexation of a large tract, located just west of the Interstate Highway 25 interchange at Fountain.

VonEngeln's real estate firm, which has its offices in the Majestic Building at 7 E. Bijou St., has been commissioned by the Champlin Petroleum Co. of Ft. Worth, Tex., to purchase property sites in the Colorado Springs area, one of which is the tract just west of Fountain.

First development of the land, said VonEngeln, will be in the near future, with the construction of a "fuel-stop" [illegible] truck traffic on the freeway, and stated it would also be a convenience for Fountain residents.

"The facility will be of "ultra-modern" design and will be owned and operated by Champlin Petroleum. The center will seat 50 persons in a completely air conditioned restaurant facility.

Also under consideration, following construction of the "fuel-stop" [illegible] will be a modern motor hotel in the same immediate area. VonEngeln indicated that the latter would be of immense value to transients during the racing seasons at the soon-to-be-opened Pikes Peak Meadows race track, nearby.

"The remaining area," stated VonEngeln, "will be reserved for high-quality technological, research and industrial installations." He cited the area's accessibility to the NORAD hardsite in Cheyenne Mountain and Ft. Carson as reasons for developing the land in this way.

"We expect to be a part of the community and want to pay our fair share of the tax load," VonEngeln continued. "Likewise, we will hope for cooperation and service from the Town of Fountain and the facilities which it affords, namely water, electric facilities and police protection and similarly with the Sanitation District."

Lusk and Wallace, Colorado Springs architects, will be commissioned to handle much of the [illegible] facilities.

[illegible], a civil engineer, has made an extensive study of the area and was present at the Council meeting to answer any Board member's questions, of which there were none.

Council members decided to study VonEngeln's proposition and act on the matter at their next regular meeting on May 17.

The real estate dealer's plan calls for the use of between [illegible] acres for the "fuel-stop"

Solons May Give LBJ Blank Check for Military Spending

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress appears to be in a mood to give President Johnson a blank check for military spending to support his actions in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

Usually budget-conscious Republicans suggested Monday that the administration might want to ask Congress for more military funds this year.

Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, declared, "Whatever he needs, he's going to get as far as I'm concerned." He said he felt sure Congress would give the President any additional money he might need.

Rivers' committee last week authorized $15.3 billion for the purchase of military aircraft, ships and missiles and for research and development. The House is scheduled to vote on the authorization Wednesday.

There was no official word that Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara feel they need more money. However, there is a report that some Congress members believe that congressional approval of a boost in defense spending would carry more weight in illustrating support for administration policies than would the traditional resolution expressing bipartisan support of presidential actions.

The House GOP Policy Committee Monday gave its support to the $15.3-billion authorization measure but in so many words invited Johnson to restudy his military shopping list to see whether it should be increased in view of the U.S. action in the Dominican Republic, added to the increased American activity in Southeast Asia.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan went even further than his policy committee.

Cloud Is Sued For $200,000 In Counterclaim

Earl H. Miner, a defendant in a civil suit filed by Col. H. Cloud Jr., prospective candidate for post of assistant to the city manager, is asking in a counterclaim $200,000 judgment against Cloud.

Cloud is accused by Miner, doing business as the N and M Construction Co., of altering endorsement on checks totaling $5,000. Miner says Cloud altered the endorsements intentionally with the purpose of defrauding him and that Cloud "declared his malice" by threatening to put him out of business.

According to Cloud he advanced Miner $11,151 which was to be repaid from the sale of houses under construction and owned by Miner. Cloud alleges Miner falsely represented that there was ample security to repay the sums and that Cloud would profit from the transaction.

Cloud also alleges that the money is overdue and that Miner has refused to pay. He is asking judgment of $11,151 along with exemplary damages for misrepresentation totaling $5,000.

Miner says in the counterclaim that the two checks totaling $5,000 were not loans but for services rendered as indicated by the lien waiver endorsements of the checks.

He claims Cloud, upon the re-

Latin Reaction To U.S. Dominican Action Is Mixed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Latin-American reaction to the U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic has been mixed, but so far there have been few anti-U.S. demonstrations.

Argentina and Brazil, South America's largest countries, approved the U. S. action, including President Johnson's request that Latin-American countries send troops to the Dominican Republic.

Informed sources in Buenos Aires said Argentina would send a military force to the war-torn Caribbean island if the Organization of American States approves the U.S. request.

The OAS, meeting in Washington Monday put off a decision on the American request.

The Brazilian government issued a statement approving the landings of U.S. troops to protect the lives of Americans in Santo Domingo.

Former Costa Rican President Jose Figueres left San Jose for Washington to present a Costa Rican government proposal. Observers said it might include a suggestion to put the Dominican Republic temporari-

Dominican Rebel Chief Says He Is Opposed to Reds

By LUIS UCHITELLE

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, leader of the Dominican rebels, says his forces do not accept dictatorship from "the left or the right."

"If we had overthrown a rightist dictatorship only to put in a leftist dictatorship, what would we be fighting for?'" Caamano asked in an interview Monday night.

He said the rebels are seeking the return of the constitutional government headed by Juan Bosch. Bosch, who was elected president after more than 30 years of dictatorship under the Trujillo family, was ousted by the military in September 1963.

Caamano, an American-trained professional soldier who claims to have 18,000 fighters with him, was interviewed in a headquarters he has set up in a bookstore in downtown Santo Domingo.

He described the rebel officers as honest men interested in 'good government and anticorruption.' He denied claims by President Johnson and other U.S. officials that Communists are involved in his movement.

Osiades Mora-Oviedo, a leader of Bosch's Dominican Revolutionary party, and Ramon Gabriel Ledesma Perez, president of the party's political committee, admitted that a few Communists were interested in the rebel movement.

But Ledesma said: "This small group of Communists hasn't the slightest possibility of taking control of the movement. There are none in the high command, and although I know some Dominican Communists by sight and assume they are

U.S. Determined to Crush Threat of Dominican Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials see a serious possibility that as peace is restored in the Dominican Republic hard core Communist leaders may go underground or take to the countryside with plans to wage a campaign of terror and subversion.

Some Alcoholics Return To Normal, Doctors Say

By ALTON C. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — A psychiatric team today challenged the belief that no recovered alcoholic can ever again take a drink safely.

It said some alcoholics apparently do manage to return to normal drinking.

The researchers questioned "the assumption that abstinence" is essential for successful treatment, and that abstinence should always be the goal.

The prevalence of normal drinking in certain cases after treatment "does not need to imply that these patients are less well adjusted or less successfully treated than those who are abstinent," the team said.

"Nor does it follow that the patient who is abstinent has necessarily achieved a return to normal living or adjustment."

The report, based on a study of 32 patients, was presented to the American Psychiatric Association by E. [illegible] M.D.; E. B. Headley, M.D.; G. C. Gleser, Ph. D., and L. A. Gottschalk, M.D, from the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine and the alcoholism clinic of the Cincinnati Health Department.

Pattison now is a research fellow of the National Institute of Mental Health in Washington.

"The field of alcoholism still remains one of the borderland areas of psychiatry," their report said.

54-Acre Project Annexation To Fountain Is Being Asked

Nuns Defend Their Right To Run Animal Shelter

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP) — Mother Cecilia Mary and five nuns of her order will have to choose between their vows and their Good Shepherd Animal Shelter here, her superiors in the Roman Catholic Church say.

"We certainly don't intend to give up our vows and we certainly don't intend to give up the animal shelter," Mother Cecilia, 73, head of the Order of the Sisters of the Love of Jesus, said Monday night.

"We are violating no ordinances nor the building code, and the Church has no authority to close the shelter," she said.

Last week church authorities gave her six days to close the Good Shepherd shelter which now houses about 120 dogs, cats, birds and a goat.

"We don't have any horses right now," said Mother Cecilia.

The church's deadline is today.

The ultimatum came after an investigation by a member of the Benedictine Order, to which Mother Cecilia's order is attached.

The Church said there had been complaints about noise; that the nuns are not following their vocations by caring for animals rather than people; and that they cannot lead an acceptable religious life in an animal shelter.

Mother Cecilia is also mother superior of St. Mary's Priory, a home for the aged about a mile from the shelter. The Church ordered her to quit the shelter and return to the priory.

Mother Cecilia said she is appealing the order to the Vatican, if necessary.

Meantime she plans to stay right where she is.

"Since this thing started, I've had telephone calls and telegrams from all over Canada. Victoria is up in arms about it, and Vancouver too. Public opinion is on our side."

The Sisters of the Love of Jesus order was founded by Mother Cecilia as an Anglican order in 1922. She and many of her order were converted to the Roman Catholic Church in 1937.

She said she had started the shelter about five years ago

Solons May Give LBJ Blank Check for Military Spending

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress appears to be in a mood to give President Johnson a blank check for military spending to support his actions in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

Usually budget-conscious Republicans suggested Monday that the administration might want to ask Congress for more military funds this year.

Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, declared, "Whatever he needs, he's going to get as far as I'm concerned." He said he felt sure Congress would give the President any additional money he might need.

Rivers' committee last week authorized $15.3 billion for the purchase of military aircraft, ships and missiles and for research and development. The House is scheduled to vote on the authorization Wednesday.

There was no official word that Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara feel they need more money. However, there is a report that some Congress members believe that congressional approval of a boost in defense spending would carry more weight in illustrating support for administration policies than would the traditional resolution expressing bipartisan support of presidential actions.

The House GOP Policy Committee Monday gave its support to the $15.3-billion authorization measure but in so many words invited Johnson to restudy his military shopping list to see whether it should be increased in view of the U.S. action in the Dominican Republic, added to the increased American activity in Southeast Asia.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan went even further than his policy committee.

U. S. Determined to Crush Threat of Dominican Reds

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials see a serious possibility that as peace is restored in the Dominican Republic hard core Communist leaders may go underground or take to the countryside with plans to wage a campaign of terror and subversion.

The U.S. government is represented by authorities here as being determined to make sure that so far as possible all measures will be taken to eliminate any danger of a Communist seizure of power before American troops leave the war-torn Caribbean island.

President Johnson declared in a speech here Monday night that "we don't propose to sit here on our rocking chair with our hands folded and let the Communists set up a government anywhere in this hemisphere."

Johnson also reaffirmed in his talk to a legislative conference of the AFL-CIO Building Trades Department his determination to see that peace is established and that the Dominican people are given real hope of stability in government before U.S. forces leave the Dominican Republic. When those requirements are met, he said, "we'll be the first to come back home."

The President also emphasized his hope that the Organization of American States, with a committee now active in efforts to restore peace and order, will take a leading role in resolving the Dominican crisis.

At the Pan American Union, where the OAS is meeting now almost daily, U.S. hopes for quick action on the proposal to create an inter-American military force received a setback. The council met Monday night but failed to take final action on the proposal under which other American nations would share in the Dominican operation with the United States. It agreed to meet again today at 3 p.m.

On Capitol Hill, Johnson was getting broad bipartisan support for his actions in the Dominican crisis. Congress appeared likely to provide any extra military

Cloud Is Sued For $200,000 In Counterclaim

Earl H. Miner, a defendant in a civil suit filed by Col. H. Cloud Jr., prospective candidate for post of assistant to the city manager, is asking in a counterclaim $200,000 judgment against Cloud.

Cloud is accused by Miner, doing business as the N and M Construction Co., of altering endorsement on checks totaling $5,000. Miner says Cloud altered the endorsements intentionally with the purpose of defrauding him and that Cloud "declared his malice" by threatening to put him out of business.

According to Cloud he advanced Miner $11,151 which was to be repaid from the sale of houses under construction and owned by Miner. Cloud alleges Miner falsely represented that there was ample security to repay the sums and that Cloud would profit from the transaction.

Cloud also alleges that the money is overdue and that Miner has refused to pay. He is asking judgment of $11,151 along with exemplary damages for misrepresentation totaling $5,000.

Miner says in the counterclaim that the two checks totaling $5,000 were not loans but for services rendered as indicated by the lien waiver endorsements of the checks.

He claims Cloud, upon the re-

Buffalo Barbecue Canceled

There will be no Buffalo Barbecue this summer in Manitou Springs.

For years the Manitou Springs Chamber of Commerce sponsored the festival, using buffalo from the Hartsel Ranch in South Park.

Chamber officials said the festival was discontinued because it took too much time to organize.

The Chamber is also building a picnic area in the rear of its information center at 354 Manitou Ave.

Latin Reaction To U.S. Dominican Action Is Mixed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Latin-American reaction to the U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic has been mixed, but so far there have been few anti-U.S. demonstrations.

Argentina and Brazil, South America's largest countries, approved the U. S. action, including President Johnson's request that Latin-American countries send troops to the Dominican Republic.

Informed sources in Buenos Aires said Argentina would send a military force to the war-torn Caribbean island if the Organization of American States approves the U.S. request.

The OAS, meeting in Washington Monday put off a decision on the American request.

The Brazilian government issued a statement approving the landings of U.S. troops to protect the lives of Americans in Santo Domingo.

Former Costa Rican President Jose Figueres left San Jose for Washington to present a Costa Rican government proposal. Observers said it might include a suggestion to put the Dominican Republic temporari-

Dominican Rebel Chief Says He Is Opposed to Reds

By LUIS UCHITELLE

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, leader of the Dominican rebels, says his forces do not accept dictatorship from "the left or the right."

"If we had overthrown a rightist dictatorship only to put in a leftist dictatorship, what would we be fighting for?'" Caamano asked in an interview Monday night.

He said the rebels are seeking the return of the constitutional government headed by Juan Bosch. Bosch, who was elected president after more than 30 years of dictatorship under the Trujillo family, was ousted by the military in September 1963.

Caamano, an American-trained professional soldier who claims to have 18,000 fighters with him, was interviewed in a headquarters he has set up in a bookstore in downtown Santo Domingo.

He described the rebel officers as honest men interested in 'good government and anticorruption.' He denied claims by President Johnson and other U.S. officials that Communists are involved in his movement.

Osiades Mora-Oviedo, a leader of Bosch's Dominican Revolutionary party, and Ramon Gabriel Ledesma Perez, president of the party's political committee, admitted that a few Communists were interested in the rebel movement.

But Ledesma said: "This small group of Communists hasn't the slightest possibility of taking control of the movement. There are none in the high command, and although I know some Dominican Communists by sight and assume they are

Some Alcoholics Return To Normal, Doctors Say

By ALTON C. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — A psychiatric team today challenged the belief that no recovered alcoholic can ever again take a drink safely.

It said some alcoholics apparently do manager to return to normal drinking.

The researchers questioned "the assumption that abstinence" is essential for successful treatment, and that abstinence should always be the goal

The precidence of normal drinking in certain cases after treatment "does not need to imply that these patients are less well adjusted or less successfully treated than those who are abstinent," the team adds.

"Nor does it follow that the patient who is abstinent has necessarily achieved a return to normal living or adjustment."

The report, based on a study of 32 patients, was presented to the American Psychiatric Association by E. Mansell Pattison, M.D.; E. B. Headley, M.D.; G. C. Gleser, Ph. D., and L. A. Gottschalk, M.D, from the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine and the alcoholism clinic of the Cincinnati Health Department.

Pattison now is a research fellow of the National Institute of Mental Health in Washington.

"The field of alcoholism still remains one of the borderland areas of psychiatry," their report said.

Wirtz to Keep Policy Against Braceros Help

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Despite heavy congressional pressure for changes, Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz is sticking by his "hire American" policy on farm labor.

But he says the policy would as he has tried to make clear from the start, permit "selective use" of foreign farm workers under some conditions.

Wirtz has approved the importation of 1,500 Mexican field hands, known as braceros, to help bring in California's asparagus and celery crops this month.

He also has extended the work permits of 6,500 British West Indians in Florida to pick oranges and cut sugar cane for various periods up to six weeks.

Demands for foreign labor are sure to be made in coming weeks by growers of citrus fruits, sugar beets, leaf tobacco, potatoes, apples and cucumbers in the Southwest, the Plains states, New England, Virginia and Michigan.

Expiration of Public Law 78, which allowed a mass influx of braceros into the country each year, prompted Wirtz to tighten the requirements for use of foreign farm labor under the general immigration laws.

He published regulations last Dec. 19 specifying minimum wages and other standards that he said growers must meet before the Labor Department would certify that a shortage of field hands existed.

Growers rebelled and their congressmen attacked Wirtz — some calling for his resignation. He replied he was carrying out Congress' intent when it killed the bracero program.

"As of this time last year," Wirtz said in an interview, "there were 30,000 foreign farm workers brought into this country. This year — none were brought here since Jan. 1."

But the cabinet officer said the need for workers hits two peaks a year—May and September—and indicated he would allow limited numbers of Mexicans to enter this country in those months to help with the harvest.

Even the neighborhood gypsy prophesies a long, hot summer for job-hunting young people. A swelling teen population, a scarcity of summer jobs, child-labor laws, union policies, all these factors may make summer employment just a dream this year.

If you're determined to track down a job, we hope you've already begun your search. Inquire at your school job placement bureau; spread the word that you're available and eager for summer work; check with the local state employment agency; keep an eye on the newspaper ads; and naturally, ask your parents, friends and relatives for possible leads.

There are also certain businesses which expand during the summer. You'd be wise to check these possibilities: hotels, motels, restaurants (particularly those in vacation spots and along main highways), ice cream parlors, camp sites, youth-serving agencies, country clubs, drive-ins, recreational centers, amusement parks, stores which rent or sell air-conditioning units, resorts and service stations.

But even if you don't find a job, there are other roads to constructive, meaningful summer experiences.

Why not use summer school to enhance your knowledge? Or how about enrolling in one of the classes you couldn't squeeze into your schedule while regular school was in session? A dance class, a charm and personality course, or a series in conversational techniques would boost your ego 1,000 times, and be fun, too!

Or why not volunteer your services to the community? Many hospitals, libraries, welfare agencies, youth and recreational centers and schools for handicapped children welcome volunteers.

Some of you who have ambition in your veins and dollar signs in your eyes may want to roll up your sleeves and establish your own business. There are many possibilities, you know For example:

Junior Photographer: If you take good pictures, offer to snap neighborhood children and pets. Make attractive cardboard frames as an extra for customers. If you're artistic, make funny backdrops or humorous cardboard frame stands with openings large enough for heads to poke through; ask your customers to stick their heads through these holes — then click, you're in business.

Party Helper: Summer time means party and play time. Spread the word that you're available to help with pre-party preparations and post-party clean-up. Do dishes, pots and pans, sweep, dust and put the house back in order.

Curb Addresser: Take a survey of your neighborhood. Note which houses have numbers that are hard to see from the street. Then offer to paint carefully stenciled house numbers on the curbs of these houses.

Documents at World's Fair Are Guarded

By ROBERT HOLTON

NEW YORK (AP) — Norman K. Winston says he's "sitting on top of the paper foundation of American government" and he admits it makes him a little uneasy.

Winston is in charge of the U.S. Pavilion at the New York World's Fair, which this year houses many original documents of American history.

"I wouldn't say I'm losing a lot of sleep," Winston said in an interview. "But I must admit that I now tend to scrutinize people coming in here quite a bit closer. And it does make you a little uneasy."

Among the documents lining the walls of the pavilion's "Hall of Presidents" are such priceless treasures as the original Bill of Rights, Washington's inaugural and farewell addresses, the Emancipation Proclamation, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address and Lincoln's second inaugural address.

"When President Johnson turned these documents over to me after I met with him in Washington some time back, he said, 'Be very, very careful. You're holding our history, which we all hold dear,'" Winston said.

Winston, who was given the rank of ambassador in connection with his supervisory position at the pavilion, said "the latest in electronic and human protection is being given to the documents to safeguard them against harm."

"We have such a sensitive system of alarms that at night a mouse running near the cases would set the place into an uproar of security," Winston said.

Winston said protection of such treasures in a hall visited by thousands of persons each day is a security risk much like protecting a president in a motorcade.

"We try to watch the crowds and are on the look-out for any suspicious person, but there is always the possibility that one could slip through. We just have to do our best and hope."

The documents, brought here in a secret move from their normal display sites in Washington, include original, hand-written and type-written documents from the administrations of modern-day presidents.

Among them is the inaugural address copy held by the late President John F. Kennedy when he delivered that speech on taking office.

"This now is a national shrine such as never before has been available," Winston said. "When you suddenly are put in charge of something of that awesome nature, you naturally take the responsibility with some uneasiness."

Winston, 65, is a native New Yorker who pioneered mass housing developments in such cities as Akron, Ohio; Bridgeport and Hartford, Conn.; Harrisburg, Pa.; Melrose Park, Ill.; North Hollywood, Calif., and Tampa, Fla. His firm, N. K. Winston & Co. specialized in middle-income housing.

Scientific membership had been granted Negro doctors in 1955, allowing them to attend meetings, vote and hold office. The House of Delegates voted 117-28 Sunday to admit Negroes to full membership, including social privileges.

Few Negro doctors had accepted the limited, scientific membership.

A motion to combine the medical society and a Negro group, the Old North State Medical Society, into one North Carolina Medical Association was defeated 85-61.

Accidental death and dismemberment benefits to age 65 are also offered. You can co-ordinate the plan with your other resources; tailor it to your needs and your pocketbook. Manufacturers Life cannot cancel the policy nor can your premium rate be raised—ever. The plan can be adjusted to correct the inadequacy of any short-term coverage you already have.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Daniel and David high-pressured Mrs. Crane and me to make this 200-mile trip to see what they deemed the most unique Children's Home they had ever visited. And I am told there are only five in the U. S. A. like this one. We were astounded at the superb psychology and splendid educational program which we witnessed.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE V-479: Daniel and David are the two youngest of our children.

Daniel is a dental surgeon and had spent a day checking the teeth of the children at the Indiana Soldiers and Sailors Children's Home at Knightstown.

He was so favorably impressed with that great project that he became a fervent press agent, urging his mother and me to make a special trip over there.

But it meant a 200-mile automobile trip, so we delayed.

Then David, the M. D., was over there for some medical work, and thereafter he also joined Daniel in prodding us to make the trip.

On a recent Sunday, after dinner, they insisted that Mrs. Crane and I get in the car, saying they'd drive us over.

And we were delighted with what we found.

William Brewer is the Superintendent of this unique children's home.

It covers over 400 acres and includes 300 youngsters, ranging from 2-year-olds to the age of 18.

The children are housed in groups, according to age, with "house parents" to supervise the youngsters.

Each dwelling has a TV and a piano for the youngsters, plus suitable toys and other equipment to fit the age group living therein.

These children are not orphans, as a rule, but may have lost one parent so they need a home.

The children do not dress in uniform nor is there any of the usual regimentation linked with such an institution.

Everybody wakens at 6 a.m., except on Sunday when the hour is 7.

After school, the children then romp and play as they wish, without being regimented.

A fish pond is on the grounds, so they can even catch fish. There is a cozy lounge and retail shopping room where they can gather and buy as they wish.

For each child has his own bank account and writes checks for whatever he desires.

"Dr. Crane," Supt. Brewer added, "the youngsters write a check for 5 cents on 10 cents or several dollars, depending on what they wish to purchase."

If a girl of high school age wants to go to Knightstown, a few blocks away, to buy a blouse or stockings, etc., she cashes a check at the school "bank" and goes alone to do her own buying.

Contrast this early training in use of a checking account with what occurs in the average American home!

Most children never have a checking account till they go to college!

These youngsters also have a chance to learn a trade, such as barbering, plumbing, farming, baking, linotype operating, etc.

They are granted 75 cents per month spending money but can earn additional funds doing chores or working for townspeople.

The American Legion also schedules an annual carnival to entertain the children and also raise money to furnish each youngster extra funds.

And the Legion tries to see that every child has a sponsoring family to send it mail and maybe offer it 20 cents per month spending money.

Actually, this Children's Home should be featured in a national magazine just for its splendid training in self-reliance, plus its absence of the usual regimentation previously deemed necessary for such an institution.

See tomorrow's follow-up.

Professor's Son Is Excused From Pledge

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — An 18-year-old high school student, who said the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag "forces on me a God in which I do not believe," will not have to recite the pledge any more.

Charles Ames, son of a Purdue University professor, was excused from the daily recitation at Santa Barbara High School Friday by Superior Judge W. Preston Butcher.

Ames, who said he objected to the phrases "under God" and "with liberty and justice for all," said he recited the pledge at the beginning of school but omitted those phrases.

He was suspended when he refused to give the full pledge, but later was reinstated when he agreed to say it under protest.

Judge Butcher stipulated Ames "and any others who have the same beliefs" must show respect for their country by standing with hand over heart during the pledge.

Dr. Norman Shearer, superintendent of schools, said the board would not appeal the decision and would continue its policy of having the pledge said daily.

Judge Butcher said he did not disagree with the board policy of making the daily Pledge of Allegiance part of the program, but upheld the individual right not to recite it.

"To force anyone to say the Pledge would violate their freedom of conscience, an integral part of freedom of religion and freedom of speech," he said.

Texas Is Biggest With Junkyards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas is no longer the nation's biggest state, but its roads and highways have the most junkyards.

The figure according to a Commerce Department survey: 1,082.

Runnerup Georgia has 1,055 and Alaska, the biggest state, had 57.

The survey was released by the White House Saturday, and was taken after President Johnson, a Texan, declared: "I want to make sure that the America we see from these major highways is a beautiful America."

Reds Escalate Viet Nam War, U.S. Charges

pleaded for more military help from other members of SEATO for the fight in Viet Nam.

France and Pakistan brushed aside the plea. New Zealand said it would study the request. Australia announced last week it would send an infantry battalion to Viet Nam.

Other members of the alliance — Thailand, the Philippines and Britain — supported U. S. policy in Viet Nam but made no immediate commitment to send troops.

In a television debate via the Early Bird satellite, spokesmen for the United States, Britain and France agreed that communism must be stopped in Southeast Asia.

France's spokesman, Maurice Schumann, president of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the French Chamber of Deputies, said President Johnson's April 7 speech in Baltimore calling for negotiations on Viet Nam would have been more effective had it been followed by a pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk repeated U. S. willingness to enter negotiations without advance conditions. He implied that if the Communists indicated that stopping the bombing of North Viet Nam would lead to a peaceful solution, "we would be interested in what they have to say on the subject."

Communist China claimed that the Viet Cong now controls four-fifths of South Viet Nam with a population of 10 million.

A New China News Agency dispatch from Hanoi said the Communist forces, in the first quarter of this year "destroyed 400 strategic hamlets, liberated 100 villages, 301 hamlets, 32 resettlement zones, 8 towns and district towns with a population of more than 658,000."

Bank Charter Case Starts In District Court

A case involving issuance of a charter to the First State Bank of Fountain got underway in district court this morning with Judge Hunter D. Hardeman on the bench.

It has been filed by John Chancellor, W. R. Quinn, George Saumure Sr., Sigurd M. Aga and Will H. Claiborne individually and as organizers of the First State Bank of Fountain. Defendants are Harry Bloom, state commissioner of banking and the Banking Board of the State of Colorado.

The plaintiffs request the court to order the defendants to grant them a charter to operate a bank. The application for the charter was denied by the board Dec. 17, 1964.

The plaintiffs claim the defendants erred in permitting the Bank of Fountain Valley, Security to protest their application because the bank is located mort than three miles from the proposed institution.

The plaintiffs also say several of the board's findings were "arbitrary, capricious and not supported by the evidence."

off and she felt a sting near her left breast.

At this time she and the man left the house and walked to St. Francis Hospital, where she was admitted. Dr. R. C. McCullough said the bullet went in high on the woman's left breast and on through the outer portion of her lung and lodged in a chest cavity. He said that from all indications there was nothing dangerous about the wound and the bullet would not be removed right away.

Police said they were holding John S. Wright, 45, 606 E. Monument St., for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon. According to police report, Wright [illegible] wound in his [illegible] reportedly received when the gun discharged after [illegible] Young pushed him.

U.S. Determined to Crush Threat of Dominican Reds

funds he might ask to cover the cost of sending troops and supplies into the Dominican Republic.

In his talk to the labor group, the President said that by Monday night there would be 14,000 U.S. troops in the Dominican Republic. Officials here estimated that on the rebel side there may be as many as 6,500 soldiers and armed civilians.

One objective of U.S. strategy in putting so many Marines and soldiers into the Dominican Republic has been to make a demonstration of force so impressive that the rebels would recognize heavy odds against themselves and would begin to lay down their arms.

By late Monday the government here was receiving a number of reports that some of the rebel fighters were beginning to hide their weapons and give up the struggle, at least for the time being. Officials familiar with these reports said they were wholly unconfirmed. Nevertheless they created considerable interest among Johnson administration policymakers.

Some of the reports were to the effect that Communist elements in the rebel movement already had broken up their headquarters. Others were to the effect that the Communists were considering establishment of a guerrilla camp in the country. Still others were simply that various rebels were beginning to hide away their arms in realization that they were now fighting a losing battle.

U.S. Seals of Dominican Rebels; Peace Plan Seen

Monday when his hand grenade accidentally exploded.

A U.S. Navy spokesman in San Juan, Puerto Rico, said an American was listed as missing in action after disappearing from a landing craft off Santo Domingo.

It has been estimated that 1,000 Dominicans have been killed and 1,200 wounded in the revolt.

U.S. officials in Washington said they had received reports that some of the rebels were beginning to hide their weapons and give up the struggle, at least for the time being.

Other reports received in Washington said Communist elements in the rebel movement had broken up their headquarters. U.S. officials believed that as peace is restored, Red leaders may go underground or launch a campaign of terror and subversion in the countryside.

U. S. authorities said they are determined to make sure all measures will be taken to eliminate any danger of a Communist takeover before American troops leave the Caribbean island.

President Johnson said in a speech Monday night: "We don't propose to sit here on our rocking chair with our hands folded and let the Communists set up a government anywhere in this hemisphere."

Johnson reaffirmed his determination to see that peace is restored and that the Dominican people are given hope of a stable government before U.S. troops pull out.

turn of the cancelled checks, "altered and placed thereon an endorsement at complete variance to the original and valid endorsement" to which Miner had agreed.

Miner also charges that the altered endorsement changed the alleged transaction to a loan for payment for services. He states Cloud admitted to him, in presence of both parties lawyers that he did place the material alteration on the checks.

In reply Cloud denies the checks were for services rendered and says thet lien waiver endorsement had been previously stamped on all checks in the book from which they had been taken.

Part of Cloud's answer reads, "referring to paragraph six, the plaintiff admits he made certain statements concerning the defendant and his activities and expressing certain desires to the same."

Paragraph six on Miner's counterclaim is the section in which Miner charges Cloud admitted he placed the alteration on the checks and declared his malice by threatening to attempt to put Miner out of business.

A demand for a jury trial was filed in district court Monday but no trial date had been set.

Woman Shot In Right Side

A woman suffered a minor injury Sunday when she was accidentally shot in the right side by her husband, police reported.

Annie J. Golden, 18, 410 S. Wahsatch Ave., was taken to St. Francis Hospital by her husband Sunday after she was accidentally shot in the chest just above the right breast, police said.

According to Artis L. Golden and Mrs. Golden, they were playing with a .22 caliber revolver at approximately 9:15 p.m. Sunday. Mrs. Golden was sitting on the couch and her husband was standing in front of her, and both had been playing and joking with the gun. Mrs. Golden said she reached up to take the gun and the next thing she knew her husband said she had been shot. At this time he took her to the hospital.

Dr. R. C. McCullough, of St. Francis, said the wound was very minor, since the bullet had penetrated the flesh in the upper right chest and came out under the right arm.

Power Mower Stolen, Valued at $165

A power mower valued at $165 was taken from a woman's home sometime during the past six weeks, police reported.

Carolyn L. Luddon said she was away from the house for the past 6 weeks, and during that time someone made off with her power mower. She described it as orange, approximately three years old, and said it had a removable handle.

Church Robbed Of Crucifix, Prayer Book

A prayer book, crucifix, and water bowl, valued at a total of $72, were stolen from the Guadalupe Roman Catholic Church Sunday, police reported.

The Rev. Francis Colon, 100 E. Costilla St., told police he left the articles in the church when he finished mass at approximately 12:30 p.m. Sunday. He said when he returned at 5:45 p.m. the articles were gone.

The crucifix was bronze and was on a stand, and was valued at $36. The prayer book, a Missal Romanum, was valued at $30, and the water bowl was valued at $6, according to Father Colon.

$250 Camera Taken From Imperial Hotel

A camera valued at $250 was stolen from a hotel room between 10 p.m. Sunday and 4 p.m. Monday, police reported.

Walton V. Hart, Imperial Hotel, 10½ E. Pikes Peak Ave., room 15, told police that Sunday he had invited a man up to his room to see his cameras. with us, I have not actualy seen any of them on the street.'

Caamano said the revolt which plunged the capital into fighting nine days ago originally had been scheduled for June 1.

'If the government had not suddenly retired seven of our officers, we would not have acted that Saturday morning, and you and I would not be sitting here today," he said.

Caamano said he and a group of officers, most of them in their early 40s, began planning the coup eight months ago because of the type of government set up by Donald Reid Cabral and his civilian junta.

"We made an agreement of honor that if by June 1 presidential elections had not definitely been fixed, we would rise in arms,' he said.

Reid's regime apparently learned of the plan, he said, and canceled the comissions of the seven officers.

"I am sure I would have been next," Caamano said.

'I got a call early Saturday morning and I went right to the 16th of August camp to unite support there.'

Caamano said arms were distributed to thousands of civilians because popular support was needed.

"We were very few at first," he said. "We started giving the arms to veterans' groups and then to the people. We simply announced on the radio that the arms were available in certain places for anyone who wanted them."

He acknowledged that one of the main problems ahead is collecting these arms once a political solution is reached.

"We have a plan to do this and it will not be difficult. I cannot tell you what the plan is, but I can assure you the arms will be collected.'

fuel" center and motor hotel, with an estimated 40 acres set aside for the industrial development of the 54-acre tract.

In other business at Monday's meeting, one resident asked, "Are you going to continue to let people outside the city limits continue using city water?" Mayor Dee J. Hankins answered him, saying that the Town Council has been in the past and is continuing to take legal action in clearing up the stated problem. Town Attorney Fillmore Gibson is presently working on a solution to the problem, the Mayor related.

Mayor Hankins told another resident, present at the meeting, that the town's outlay of $1,100 per year for upkeep of the Fairview Cemetery would be put to use beginning almost immediately. The town has hired a caretaker to keep up the cemetry grounds.

Mike Rasher, town clerk and recorder, presented a new and less expensive billing system to the Board and it met with unanimous approval. The new system will include the use of an addressing machine and postal cards, instead of the town's present use of envelopes and "hand stuffer."

The machine will cost the town $1,000, but saving of $167 a month will pay for it in the short span of six months, according to Rasher.

Board members accepted the resignation of Garland Teich, a former Fountain patrolman, which became effective April 30. They also approved the hiring of three new town employes — Albert Licastro, patrolman, Mary Louise Duran and Jan Baldwin, both hired for the town's office staff.

The Council tabled a request of two local residents to open a junk yard at the former location of the town dump. A three-man committee was appointed to study the matter for presentation at the May 17 meeting.

Mayor Hankins told Council members the town was going to try, once again, to get door-to-door mail service. He said an appointment would be arranged with Rep. Frank Evans to meet with a number of the Board members in Fountain. Hankins, citing the town's increased population said, "Maybe they won't brush us aside as easily as they did the last time."

pleaded for more military help from other members of SEATO for the fight in Viet Nam.

France and Pakistan brushed aside the plea. New Zealand said it would study the request. Australia announced last week it would send an infantry battalion to Viet Nam.

Other members of the alliance — Thailand, the Philippines and Britain — supported U. S. policy in Viet Nam but made no immediate commitment to send troops.

In a television debate via the Early Bird satellite, spokesmen for the United States, Britain and France agreed that communism must be stopped in Southeast Asia.

France's spokesman, Maurice Schuman, president of the Foreign Affairs Commitee of the French Chamber of Deputies, said President Johnson's April 7 speech in Baltimore calling for negotiations on Viet Nam would have been more effective had it been followed by a pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk repeated U. S. willingness to enter negotiations without advance conditions. He implied that if the Communists indicated that stopping the bombing of North Viet Nam would lead to a peaceful solution, "we would be interested in what they have to say on the subject."

Communist China claimed that the Viet Cong now controls four-fifths of South Viet Nam with a population of 10 million.

A New China News Agency dispatch from Hanoi said the Communist forces, in the first quarter of this year "destroyed 400 strategic hamlets, liberated 100 villages, 301 hamlets, 32 resettlement zones, 8 towns and district towns with a population of more than 658,000."

funds he might ask to cover the cost of sending troops and supplies into the Dominican Republic.

In his talk to the labor group, the President sand that by Monday night there would be 14,000 U.S. troops in the Dominican Republic. Officials here estimated that on the rebel side there may be as many as 6,500 soldiers and armed civilians.

One objective of U.S. strategy in putting so many Marines and soldiers into the Dominican Republic has been to make a demonstration of force so impressive that the rebels would recognize heavy odds against themselves and would begin to lay down their arms.

By late Monday the government here was receiving a number of reports that some of the rebel fighters were beginning to hide their weapons and give up the struggle, at least for the time being. Officials familiar with these reports said they were wholly unconfirmed. Nevertheless they created considerable interest among Johnson administration policymakers.

Some of the reports were to the effect that Communist elements in the rebel movement already had broken up their headquarters. Others were to the effect that the Communists were considering establishment of a guerrilla camp in the country. Still others were simply that various rebels were beginning to hide away their arms in realization that they were now fighting a losing battle.

A U.S. Navy spokesman in San Juan, Puerto Rico, said an American was listed as missing in action after disappearing from a landing craft off Santo Domingo.

It has been estimated that 1,000 Dominicans have been killed and 1,200 wounded in the revolt.

U.S. officials in Washington said they had received reports that some of the rebels were beginning to hide their weapons and give up the struggle, at least for the time being.

Other reports received in Washington said Communist elements in the rebel movement had broken up their headquarters. U.S. officials believed that as peace is restored, Red leaders may go underground or launch a campaign of terror and subversion in the countryside.

U. S. authorities said they are determined to make sure all measures will be taken to eliminate any danger of a Communist takeover before American troops leave the Caribbean island.

President Johnson said in a speech Monday night: "We don't propose to sit here on our rocking chair with our hands folded and let the Communists set up a government anywhere in this hemisphere."

Johnson reaffirmed his determination to see that peace is restored and that the Dominican people are given hope of a stable government before U.S. troops pull out.

Bank Charter Case Starts In District Court

A case involving issuance of a charter to the First State Bank of Fountain got underway in district court this morning with Judge Hunter D. Hardeman on the bench.

It has been filed by John Chancellor, W. R. Quinn, George Saumure Sr., Sigurd M. Aga and Will H. Claiborne individually and as organizers of the First State Bank of Fountain. Defendants are Harry Bloom, state commissioner of banking and the Banking Board of the State of Colorado.

The plaintiffs request the court to order the defendants to grant them a charter to operate a bank. The application for the charter was denied by the board Dec. 17, 1964.

The plaintiffs claim the defendants erred in permitting the Bank of Fountain Valley, Security to protest their application because the bank is located mort than three miles from the proposed institution.

The plaintiffs also say several of the board's findings were "arbitrary, capricious and not supported by the evidence."

Three examples of the findings are mentioned in the complaint: the board stated that Quinn is not qualified by experience to serve as an executive officer of a bank, that the bank would not serve a public need and that the volume of business in Fountain was not such that a profitable operation of a proposed bank could be reasonably projected.

Miner also charges that the altered endorsement changed the alleged transaction to a loan for payment for services. He states Cloud admitted to him, in presence of both parties lawyers that he did place the material alteration on the checks.

In reply Cloud denies the checks were for services rendered and says thet lien waiver endorsement had been previously stamped on all checks in the book from which they had been taken.

Part of Cloud's answer reads, "referring to paragraph six, the plaintiff admits he made certain statements concerning the defendant and his activities and expressing certain desires to the same."

Paragraph six on Miner's counterclaim is the section in which Miner charges Cloud admitted he placed the alteration on the checks and declared his malice by threatening to attempt to put Miner out of business.

A demand for a jury trial was filed in district court Monday but no trial date had been set.

with us, I have not actualy seen any of them on the street.'

Caamano said the revolt which plunged the capital into fighting nine days ago originally had been scheduled for June 1.

'If the government had not suddenly retired seven of our officers, we would not have acted that Saturday morning, and you and I would not be sitting here today," he said.

Caamano said he and a group of officers, most of them in their early 40s, began planning the coup eight months ago because of the type of government set up by Donald Reid Cabral and his civilian junta.

"We made an agreement of honor that if by June 1 presidential elections had not definitely been fixed, we would rise in arms,' he said.

Reid's regime apparently learned of the plan, he said, and canceled the comissions of the seven officers.

"I am sure I would have been next," Caamano said.

'I got a call early Saturday morning and I went right to the 16th of August camp to unite support there.'

Caamano said arms were distributed to thousands of civilians because popular support was needed.

"We were very few at first," he said. "We started giving the arms to veterans' groups and then to the people. We simply announced on the radio that the arms were available in certain places for anyone who wanted them."

He acknowledged that one of the main problems ahead is collecting these arms once a political solution is reached.

"We have a plan to do this and it will not be difficult. I cannot tell you what the plan is, but I can assure you the arms will be collected.'

fuel" center and motor hotel, with an estimated 40 acres set aside for the industrial development of the 54 - acre tract.

In other business at Monday's meeting, one resident asked, "Are you going to continue to let people outside the city limits continue using city water?" Mayor Dee J. Hankins answered him, saying that the Town Council has been in the past and is continuing to take legal action in clearing up the stated problem. Town Attorney Fillmore Gibson is presently working on a solution to the problem, the Mayor related.

Mayor Hankins told another resident, present at the meeting, that the town's outlay of $1,100 per year for upkeep of the Fairview Cemetery would be put to use beginning almost immediately. The town has hired a caretaker to keep up the cemetry grounds.

Mike Rasher, town clerk and recorder, presented a new and less expensive billing system to the Board and it met with unanimous approval. The new system will include the use of an addressing machine and postal cards, instead of the town's present use of envelopes and "hand stuffer."

The machine will cost the town $1,069, but saving of $167 a month will pay for it in the short span of six months, according to Rasher.

Board members accepted the resignation of Garland Teich, a former Fountain patrolman, which became effective April 30. They also approved the hiring of three new town employes — Albert Licastro, patrolman, Mary Louise Duran and Jon Baldwin, both hired for the town's office staff.

The Council tabled a request of two local residents to open a junk yard at the former location of the town dump. A three - man committee was appointed to study the matter for presentation at the May 17 meeting.

Mayor Hankins told Council members the town was going to try, once again, to get door-to-door mail service. He said an appointment would be arranged with Rep. Frank Evans to meet with a number of the Board members in Fountain. Hankins, citing the town's increased population said, "Maybe they won't brush us aside as easily as they did the last time."

A three - man committee was appointed to study the problems connected with electrical extensions in rural areas. The committeemen will have a change of policy ready for presentation at the next Council session.

The final motion was for approval of the purchase of emergency telephone number stickers, to be placed on each residents telephone. The stickers will cost the town between $25 and $30 and will contain Fountain's emergency numbers, including the fire and police departments.

Russian 'Falls' Three Floors In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — A Russian United Nations official remained in serious condition today from injuries suffered when he fell three floors from a window of his Manhattan apartment.

Yuri Ragulin, 40, was taken to Lenox Hill Hospital Saturday night with internal injuries and multiple fractures. Ragulin is a Soviet legal officer attached to the Social Affairs Department of the U.N. secretariat.

Peering out the window, he told police, he saw Ragulin on the roof of the four-story Russian Baptist church next door.

Ragulin's wife, Diana, was at a movie, and their daughter, Maria, 5, was asleep in the apartment.

Some people, who have given up hope for freedom or who do not want to make the effort necessary to preserve it, make the excuse that freedom cannot endure in a "complex society" such as we have today.

The same argument is used by socialists and their allies who try to persuade others that only socialism can keep a "complex society" going.

The truth is that we have a complex society and economy today because of liberty, not in spite of it. Freedom gives every man full opportunity to develop himself and trade with his neighbors in his own way. The results of liberty are as varied and complex as human beings themselves.

The dead hand of government, forcing all into a mould of unnatural sameness, destroys both freedom and the varied way of life freedom makes possible. In the end, by swallowing up all private accumulations of wealth, it dries up the springs of progress and forces man back to a primitive way of life.

When the republic fell in Rome and te emperors took power, they inherited a society very complex by the standards of its time and also very wealthy. In two centuries they plundered that wealth and destoryed that soceity; money vanished, and it fell back into barbarism.

The Inca empire of Peru, where pure socialism was practiced, was the only civilization which never invented either writing or the wheel.

Government power, which socialism worships, is the greatest destroyer in history. Only liberty can preserve the lasting values of our way of life. HLH

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: How can I be sure that there is life after death? I would like to believe it, but doubts keep coming to mind. —I. A.

ANSWER: How can you be sure the sun will rise tomorrow? How can you be sure winter will pass and spring come? The scientist may give a long, complicated answer. Most of us rely on faith.

We all know that in the physical world nothing comes from nothing, and no single existing thing goes back into nothingness. Surely God, who so carefully plans that not a leaf be wasted, will not allow a soul to perish.

But we don't need to search for scientific arguments. We can trust the words of Jesus. "I go to prepare a place for you." (John 14:2) All those who give their hearts to Christ will live with Him. We have His promise, "He that believeth in me though he were dead, yet shall be live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." (John 11:25, 26).

Those who sin also live after death, but not in heaven. By choosing the evil they have separated themselves from God, unless they ask for forgiveness. To the repentant thief on the cross Jesus said, "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise." (Luke 23:43).

In the words of Jesus we find assurance that there is life after death. Trust Him and all your doubts will vanish.

Soviets Decide to Turn to Advertising

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government announced today the formation of a new government agency to turn out "hard sell" advertising.

The Communist party paper Pravda explained: "Our advertising, as a rule, is lacking in expressiveness and intelligibility. It lacks invention, attractiveness. In a word, its effect on people is usually limited.

"And here it would be no sin to learn from foreign firms."

Pravda urged poets, writers and painters to become copywriters and artists.

'He Didn't Even Have A Weapon,' Marine Says

By PETER ARNETT

HOI VUC, South Viet Nam (AP) — The sweat-soaked young Marine stood over the torn body of a Viet Cong guerrilla with mixed emotions flitting across his face.

For Cpl. Pleas David of Tuscaloosa, Ala. it was a day he would never forget. David had just killed his first man.

"I felt kind of sorry for him as I stood there," said David, a lanky 19-year-old who entered the Marine Corps after he left high school last year.

"And he didn't even have a weapon," he added.

David was point man for his machine-gun platoon from B Company of the 1st Battalion of the 3rd Marine Regiment as it moved through the sun-baked paddy fields surrounding this Viet Cong combat hamlet.

It was high noon Thursday. Only sporadic fire had been directed at the patrol, which began at dawn.

B Company had tangled with the Viet Cong earlier in the week, killing one Communist guerrilla and taking four wounded themselves. The area they were moving through Thursday was new to them, however. Viet Cong trenches were everywhere.

David and three other young Marines were moving along a paddy dike when they noticed movement in the shrubs 500 yards away. David shushed his companions to a standstill. The Marines quickly dropped to the hard ground.

Within seconds a man appeared from the trees, moving hurriedly. He wore a white sun helmet and black clothes. Another figure was also visible in the distance.

"He didn't see us until he got about 200 yards away," said David. "As he neared, the whole four of us stood up with our guns levelled at him."

The Vietnamese saw the four menacing guns. He threw himself to the ground. As the Leathernecks ran forward toward him, the man rose to his feet and tried to flee.

"I let him get 250 yards away and then dropped him with two shots from my M1," said David, a qualified Marine sharpshooter.

"I saw another person in the trees at the same time but I didn't shoot because it looked like a woman."

The man had been hit squarely in the back. No weapons were found with him, but under the harsh rules of the war in Viet Nam, you don't run when challenged. The Vietnamese people living in Hoi Vuc said they had never seen the man before.

The verdict of the Vietnamese troops with the Marines was that he was definitely a Viet Cong.

David was hestitant to talk about the shooting when his fellow Marines congratulated him.

"Maybe the Viet Cong will learn some respect for marksmanship. When we see them, we hit them," said Sgt. Dean Towne of Fallbrook, Calif.

"David is a good example," said another sergeant. "This is a tough war, but don't think we are killers. We are Marines."

© 1964 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: How can I be sure that there is life after death? I would like to believe it, but doubts keep coming to mind. —I. A.

ANSWER: How can you be sure the sun will rise tomorrow? How can you be sure winter will pass and spring come? The scientist may give a long, complicated answer. Most of us rely on faith.

We all know that in the physical world nothing comes from nothing, and no single existing thing goes back into nothingness. Surely God, who so carefully plans that not a leaf be wasted, will not allow a soul to perish.

But we don't need to search for scientific arguments. We can trust the words of Jesus. "I go to prepare a place for you." (John 14:2) All those who give their hearts to Christ will live with Him. We have His promise, "He that believeth in me though he were dead, yet shall be live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." (John 11:25, 26)

Those who sin also live after death, but not in heaven. By choosing the evil they have separated themselves from God, unless they ask for forgiveness. To the repentant thief on the cross Jesus said, "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise." (Luke 23:43).

In the words of Jesus we find assurance that there is life after death. Trust Him and all your doubts will vanish.

FINED

DANVILLE, Va. (AP) — A man was fined $10 and costs in municipal court Monday after he offered this explanation for a charge of public drinking:

"I only had the can of beer to get rid of the fleas on my dog."

Soviets Decide to Turn to Advertising

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government announced today the formation of a new government agency to turn out "hard sell" advertising.

The Communist party paper Pravda explained: "Our advertising, as a rule, is lacking in expressiveness and intelligibility. It lacks invention, attractiveness. In a word, its effect on people is usually limited.

"And here it would be no sin to learn from foreign firms."

Pravda urged poets, writers and painters to become copywriters and artists.

'He Didn't Even Have A Weapon,' Marine Says

By PETER ARNETT

HOI VUC, South Viet Nam (AP) — The sweat-soaked young Marine stood over the torn body of a Viet Cong guerrilla with mixed emotions flitting across his face.

For Cpl. Pleas David of Tuscaloosa, Ala. it was a day he would never forget. David had just killed his first man.

"I felt kind of sorry for him as I stood there," said David, a lanky 19-year-old who entered the Marine Corps after he left high school last year.

"And he didn't even have a weapon," he added.

David was point man for his machine-gun platoon from B Company of the 1st Battalion of the 3rd Marine Regiment as it moved through the sun-baked paddy fields surrounding this Viet Cong combat hamlet.

It was high noon Thursday. Only sporadic fire had been directed at the patrol, which began at dawn.

B Company had tangled with the Viet Cong earlier in the week, killing one Communist guerrilla and taking four wounded themselves. The area they were moving through Thursday was new to them, however. Viet Cong trenches were everywhere.

David and three other young Marines were moving along a paddy dike when they noticed movement in the shrubs 500 yards away. David shushed his companions to a standstill. The Marines quickly dropped to the hard ground.

Within seconds a man appeared from the trees, moving hurriedly. He wore a white sun helmet and black clothes. Another figure was also visible in the distance.

"He didn't see us until he got about 200 yards away," said David. "As he neared, the whole four of us stood up with our guns levelled at him."

The Vietnamese saw the four menacing guns. He threw himself to the ground. As the Leathernecks ran forward toward him, the man rose to his feet and tried to flee.

"I let him get 250 yards away and then dropped him with two shots from my M1," said David, a qualified Marine sharpshooter.

"I saw another person in the trees at the same time but I didn't shoot because it looked like a woman."

The man had been hit squarely in the back. No weapons were found with him, but under the harsh rules of the war in Viet Nam, you don't run when challenged. The Vietnamese people living in Hoi Vuc said they had never seen the man before.

The verdict of the Vietnamese troops with the Marines was that he was definitely a Viet Cong.

David was hestitant to talk about the shooting when his fellow Marines congratulated him.

"Maybe the Viet Cong will learn some respect for marksmanship. When we see them, we hit them," said Sgt. Dean Towne of Fallbrook, Calif.

"David is a good example," said another sergeant. "This is a tough war, but don't think we are killers. We are Marines."

Queen's Horses Are Struck by Flu Bug

LONDON (AP)—The queen's horses are hoarse and her royal horsemen must change the guard at Whitehall on foot.

Perhaps even more humiliating to the guards is the truck ride to the scene. They usually ride through the streets for the guard changeover that is a popular tourist attraction.

Horse influenza struck Friday and spread through the stables, leaving most of the guards' [illegible] steeds in bad shape. Instead of the usual [illegible], only two could be mustered to stand at Whitehall's entrance, with four other healthy horses in reserve.

The influenza could keep the guards horseless for weeks, a spokesman said.

Work for Youths On Beet Farms Turned Down

CASPER, Wyo. (UPI) — A suggestion that Wyoming sugar beet growers hire youths to live on their farms and work in the beet fields was turned down Friday by Leo Scheuerman of Worland, president of the Wyoming Sugar Beet Council.

Scheuerman said in a meeting at Casper the use of inexperienced labor would reduce the growers' net profit and eventually force some of the small growers to quit the business.

The policy of the U.S. Labor Department and Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz of not allowing Mexican Nationals to come to Wyoming to work in the fields as they have in years past also drew criticism from the leading Wyoming beet growers.

"If we have to take a bunch of kids in and babysit them, then as far as I'm concerned, Mr. Wirtz can go to hell," Scheuerman said.

State labor representative Homer Hand suggested the farmers could solve their labor problems by taking the youths into their homes, feeding them, and then charging them for their meals.

One grower argued the Labor Department's policy on the use of domestic workers was "unfair to agriculture" because he said most of the jobless in the United States were unemployable and that the Labor Department was trying to unload them on the farmers.

The council went on record officially requesting Wirtz to certify the importation of 700 farm laborers to help with the crop.

State Agriculture Commissioner O. Henry Engendorff, secretary to the organization, said the 700 figure represented the "minimum of workers needed after all possible domestic sources have been used." He said the domestic sources taken into consideration included high school students, those persons on welfare rolls and other unemployed persons.

Chicago Taxi Drivers to Vote on Union

By FRANK S. JOSEPH

CHICAGO (AP) — A 13-year union fight may be settled Wednesday night when 5,000 taxicab drivers decide whether to stay with the Seafarers Union or rejoin the Teamsters Union.

James R. Hoffa, Teamsters International president, has urged the drivers to go Teamster. If they don't like Teamsters Local 777 President Joseph P. (Joey) Glimco, Hoffa said, "You can throw him the hell out."

The National Labor Relations Board election will determine whether the AFL-CIO Local 777 Democratic Union Organizing Committee, an affiliate of the Seafarers International Union, will continue to represent the drivers.

Glimco has had harsh words for DUOC organizer Dominic A. Abata. But the pudgy, 5-foot-3 Glimco said in an interview Monday night:

"Abata's insignificant to me and I don't consider him anything."

Abata in [illegible] was president of the Teamsters local Glimco now heads.

"And then I was gently told to get out," Abata said. "I decided to reorganize the whole cab industry."

Abata formed DUOC. On July 19, 1961, DUOC won a majority in an NLRB election for representation of Yellow and Checker cab drivers.

Since the election, Glimco and his Teamsters rank-and-file — an officer said 2,000, a member said about 800 — have been trying to regain power.

Since then, Abata has lost his union. Everet W. Clark defeated him by 10 votes in an election Sept. 3.

But Abata became a Seafarers vice president and president of the Seafarers' Transportation, Service and Allied Workers District. Sources close to him said he still runs DUOC.

Glimco, whom the Senate rackets committee accused of labor racketeering, was indicted Dec. 16 on charges of receiving gifts from employers, including an $8,000 automobile.

MANAGUA — Nicaragua will get her first fertilizer plant soon.

In the Chesapeake Bay, one of the main crops is the blue crab.

Judge Says 75 Years Old Is Time to Quit

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — "The tragedy of too many men in public office has been that they did not know when to quit," said Judge Richard M. Duncan.

The judge, 75, used the line Monday in announcing he will retire May 31 from the federal bench. He was appointed to the U.S. District Court for Missouri in 1943 on the recommendation of Harry S. Truman, then a U.S. Senator. Duncan had served 10 years in Congress.

In his announcement Judge Duncan quoted Truman as saying: "When a man serves his term in a place of importance, he ought to be willing to step aside while he is yet able to continue."

Lady Bird Goes To See Own Childhood Home

By FRANCE SLEWINE

JEFFERSON, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson went back for a look at scenes of her own childhood this weekend after putting finishing touches to the restoration of the President's boyhood home.

Busy for months with the Johnson City restoration, the First Lady turned tourist to come here to see stately Southern homes restored to their splendor of a century ago.

"I wouldn't take a pretty for it," was her strict Southern comment on the sentimental Sunday afternoon visit, which included a ride through the streets in a horse-drawn surrey with a fringe on top.

Crowds of visitors and residents turned out to welcome her to her native East Texas.

Jefferson, population now 3,082, is 17 miles from Mrs. Johnson's birthplace in Karnack, Tex., and she came here to high school 40 years ago. In its heyday in the 1880s, the city was a booming steamboat stop. It is trying to recapture its past as a tourist attraction.

The grand old homes, with their great drawing rooms, sparkling chandeliers and collections of antique furnishings of French and Spanish influence, were on display for a three-day 19th annual pilgrimage sponsored by the Jessie Allen Wise Garden Club.

They all bore the Texas Historical Society's landmark plaque, just like one to be placed on LBJ's home in Johnson City at May 13 ceremonies opening it as a central Texas hill country tourist attraction.

Dressed in colorful hoopskirts, frock coats — costumes of the gay social life here a century ago — residents provided a colorful tableaux in the streets and homes for the tourists.

"It's like a journey back to yesterday," Mrs. Johnson said as she viewed the sights and lunched under a "Tree of Heaven" in the lush garden of "Guardian Oak," a mansion built in 1860 and restored by its present owners, the Dan Lesters.

The First Lady listened to tales of the past at the Excelsior Hotel, a Jefferson showplace dating back to the 1850s.

Mrs. Johnson stopped in to see the presidential suite named for Rutherford B. Hayes that rents for $65 a day and one named after her that costs $32.

During the 200-mile trip, Mrs. Johnson drove by for a glimpse at her old high school, only to find it burned and a new one there.

She met the twin daughters "of a boy I used to go to dances with."

And there was her old high school principal, George Branson, who announced Lady Bird "didn't make an error all year in her algebra" when she was in his class.

TV Programs Show Off New Satellite

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The irresistible urge to play electronic tricks with communications satellite Early Bird gripped the three major television networks Monday.

All three did a portion of their evening news roundups via the transatlantic satellite. NBC's Hugh Downs was stationed on a rainy London street in the morning while his "Today Show" colleagues were broadcasting from other landmarks in Rome and Paris.

Monday night David Brinkley received his usual goodnight from Chet Huntley in London.

But it was CBS which forcefully demonstrated the importance of our new, two-way live television link between nations with its "Town Meeting of the World," broadcast live in the early afternoon and repeated Monday night.

It was an exciting and illuminating hour with Secretary of State Dean Rusk in Washington, British Foreign Minister Michael Stewart in London, French Deputy Maurice Schumann and former British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home in Paris and Barry Goldwater in New York participating in an informal discussion that spanned an ocean as if it were a green baize table.

Perhaps none of the participants advanced any new ideas. Perhaps no positions were changed or modified. But for the average anxious citizen just to sit in on such an informed, high-level talk was enlightening and somehow reassuring.

SOME TAX CHECK!—William Thayer Tutt, President of The Broadmoor Hotel, presents Mrs. Ruth Ellingson, Treasurer El Paso County, with a check for over a quarter of a million dollars. Tutt expressed his appreciation to Mrs. Ellingson and her entire staff for their friendly cooperation in working with the Broadmoor tax people in checking out details of the tax statement.

Cuba-Trip Students To Face Court Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department lawyers expect court action to be stepped up against some 130 students who traveled to Cuba in 1963 and 1964 despite a department ban on such trips.

Their cases had been held up pending a Supreme Court decision involving an appeal by one of them.

The Supreme Court ruled Monday that the secretary of state did have authority to bar American travel to Cuba.

The decision also will affect Baltimore newsman William Worthy Jr. who has been without a passport for eight years because he defied a department ban against travel to Communist China.

Worthy, employed by the Baltimore Afro-American, now is traveling without passport through North Viet Nam, Cambodia and Indonesia.

BELGRADE — Heavy cranes are to be built in Yugoslavia.

The population of the Persian Gulf state of Kuwait has increased from fewer than 200,000 to about 300,000 the last 10 years.

Actor Charlie Chaplin came to the United States from Great Britain in 1910. He left this country in 1952 and has never returned.

Expert Tells What's Wrong With Water

NEW YORK (UPI)—In many communities water is too hard to get clothes really clean.

The inferior water stains bathtubs and wash basins as well as laundry. Pipes clog or corrode. Plumbing bills soar.

That's the word from Raymond J. Faust, executive secretary of the American Water Works Association. He says women could improve the situation by insisting on water that is high quality as well as safe.

"No one has a bigger stake in quality water than the woman of the house," he said. "She uses more during the course of a day in running the home than any other member of the family.

"She uses 27 gallons for just one load of laundry. She uses hundreds of gallons more operating the dish washer, garbage disposal, lawn sprinkler and air conditioners."

Faust noted that there is a [illegible] of a difference between quality water and safe water.

"Almost all water is safe to drink," he said. "It must meet safety standards set by the Public Health Service. But its quality is poor."

Asked to suggest additional standards, Faust said quality water should be clear, colorless, tasteless, odorless, non - corrosive non - staining, relatively soft, clean and plentiful.

How many homes can claim all these consumer characteristics for their water? Relatively few, according to Faust.

"Modern technology can correct all present water shortcomings," he said. "It remains for women to demand it. They must insist on quality in water just as they insist on quality in other consumer products."

He suggested these ways to get action:

—Ask local officials if the source of your water supply contains domestic or industrial waste? Is the supply addeuate to meet needs of the community in 10 years? What is needed to improve the water system and service?

— Support improvements to bring your water-supply and waste-treatment facilities up-to-date.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I live in an efficiency apartment. Everyone in the building has a problem defrosting the refrigerator. What a job this is!

Our main trouble is emptying the tray beneath the freezer compartment when it fills up with water. What a mess this is to empty. It always spills.

Answer?

DON'T empty it!

Just turn the refrigerator back on, and let the water form into solid ice again.

Next day, take the tray to the bathtub or shower and dump the solid brick of ice.

Let this melt. That's all there is to it!

Sure saves mopping up the kitchen floor. —M. M.

Dear Heloise:

My husband won't eat raw onion, but potato salad "just ain't" without the flavor of onion, so here is what I do:

I peel and quarter an onion, insert these pieces in the salad, cover it and let it stand in the refrigerator for several hours before the meal.

When mealtime comes, I remove the onion, and the flavor of it has permeated the salad.

Sometimes when we are having guests who like raw onion in their salad, I cut the onion in fairly large chunks (large enough to be seen easily), and those who want onion can help themselves and others can avoid it. —Amy

Dear Heloise:

Don't throw away your children's old toys.

Store different age groups in plastic bags and put them in a closet.

When your friend's children come to visit, what better way to keep them out of your knickknacks? —Mary Palmer

Dear Heloise:

I needed a laundry bag which would open up and spread out flat when I go to the laundermat.

I had a cotton, full-skirted dress, so I cut the top off and sewed the waist closed.

I ran upholstery cord through the hem (after opening a small place on each side) so I could draw this up and tie the cord.

This gives me a flat bag, so I can fold my clothes and not have a million wrinkles in them. —Mrs. H. A. Fellman

Dear Heloise:

I just discovered a way to hang my copper gelatin molds on the wall so they look even and form the pattern I want.

I took a double sheet of newspaper and arranged my molds on it. I then took a pen and marked the place where the nails should go.

After taping the newspaper to the wall (making sure it was straight), I nailed through the paper on the places I had marked, then removed the paper, hung my molds; and presto, no lopsided or uneven molds. —Gayla Carstensen

Dear Heloise:

For starting spring seedlings, fill halves of egg shells with the desired mixture of earth; plant several seeds in each one, and return the shells to the carton.

You can water them and easily change their position for sun, etc.

When it is time to transplant outdoors, dig the hole, crack the shell, and you have your plant, with roots intact, ready to go right on growing. Prevents root shock, also. —Mrs. O. F. Poarch

DEAR ABBY: When my father saw my report card, he hit the ceiling. He said there was no excuse for grades like mine, and from now on I was going to act and look like a human being instead of a sheep dog. Then he went and got the scissors and cut my bangs. All the kids wear bangs down over their foreheads, just covering their eyebrows. I think it looks neat. So what if my grades weren't so great? Do you think cutting my hair was any solution? Yours for a speedy answer. —PAUL

DEAR PAUL: Your father was annoyed with you because your grades were poor, and he punished you by attacking your bangs because they annoyed him, too, and were handy. Get those grades up, Paul. And if they are really good next report card time, I'll bet your father won't care if you wear your hair in a pony tail.

DEAR ABBY: Apropos your comment that the "male determines the sex of the child": Please let me assure you that it is indeed a female who makes the choice. Not the wife, however, but the vixen, Lady Luck. To be sure, the sperm cells carry the sex-determining load of chromosomes; but the male supplies great quantities of both kinds—apparently in equal numbers. And it is pure chance which will predominate. Perhaps it is not "pure" chance but, if not, it is just as likely that conditions in the female may favor "girl-making" or "boy-making" sperms as it is that the male asserts influence on this preponderantly random process. Let's not oversimplify. —ANN ONYMOUS

DEAR ANN: Assuming you are correct, and it is all a matter of "pure chance", who made "Luck" a lady?

DEAR ABBY: Every Easter since we've been married, my husband has bought me an Easter plant. I have told him a dozen times that I would much rather have a corsage, but he goes right ahead the next Easter and buys me a plant. He says a plant is more practical because he can plant it in the yard later. I say if that is what he has in mind when he buys me an Easter gift, he is thinking of HIMSELF, not ME. What do you think? —PREFERS A CORSAGE

DEAR PREFERS: You should be glad he remembers you at all. When it comes to expressing [illegible] by your husband's [illegible] at Easter, you certainly do lay an egg.

DEAR ABBY: Last week I had five beatiful children. Today I have only four who are beautiful, and one who may be beautiful again, but we arent' sure.

My year-old baby put a plugged-in extention cord in her mouth and burned off her upper lip, and half of her lower lip. The doctor says it will take a series of plastic surgery operations to make her look half way normal again. Please, please, tell mothers to keep extension cords where children can't get at them. It's a miracle my baby is alive today. If this letter saves just one baby from being burned as mine was, it will be worth the space in your column. I beg you to print this. —HEARTBROKEN MOTHER

Your sewing machine needle won't stick when plastic materials (such as those in raincoats or shower curtains) are being sewed, if you stitch a strip of waxed paper into the seam. When the sewing is completed, the paper is easily torn off, leaving the seam unmarred.

Make Fast Repairs

The time to make minor repairs in clothes is the moment you discover that damage has been done. If you put off the repair job, you'll find yourself ready to dress for a date with a dress that you can't wear without fixing.

The oldest food - drying machine known—the sun—still is used to dry most of the raisins, currants, apricots, and pears marketed commercially, but manmade driers, employing vacuum drying and foam spray drying, are taking over the processing of most other foods.

SPY COMEDY GETS CREW FROM VAN DYKE SHOW

HOLLYWOOD —Morey Amsterdam called to tell me he's finally made the grade. At 18 he was writing for Will Rogers and Bob Benchley, and has always wanted to be a movie producer. He's signed to produce and act in his own script ("Don't worry, we'll think of a title") for United Artists in July. Rose Marie and Richard Deacon will be in it; he'll use the entire crew from Dick Van Dyke's show; and I'll wager everyone from the show will make an appearance. It's a spy comedy with a book store setting. Van Dyke (few people know he is a very fine artist) is illustrating Morey's new comedy autobiography, "I Remember Me."

June is busting out all over at Twentieth Century-Fox. In 1963 they didn't have one TV show. Now they have 10. They had to rent space at Metro for three shows, and are building three new sound stages on the lot. George Peppard knows where his bread, butter, and jam will be coming from when he starts a picture for them called "The Blue Max." It's a World War I story from a best seller. He's a German flying officer and the Max is the highest military decoration given during that war. It will be made this coming August in England.

John Gary was in town for 10 hours to record a new album, then took off for the Wagon Wheel in Tahoe. After that, Chicago's Palmer House, New York's Persian room, and the Grove on June 29. He'll also guest star with Dean Martin for a show which will be seen in October. If you love Irish songs, buy his albums. He's wonderful. He's Harold Lloyd's favorite, and you've heard nothing until you go to Harold's house and listen to his musical set-up. An hour of that equals a day at the beach.

Bill Taub, back from Ireland, phoned me in New York to say he talked with Charlie Chaplin, who's writing the script for Sophia Loren's picture. Charlie expects to return to the United States when the film opens. I hope he doesn't get in. He abused our hospitality, made a bloody fortune, then wrote nasty things about us. His wife divorced her country to become a British subject.

The father of the 16-year-old Long Beach boy who killed three persons and injured 10 others sniping at motorists on the freeway with a high-powered gun with a telescopic sight had this to say, "I wish somebody would write an article abut the pressures society puts on these young people." Somebody did. Philip Wylie wrote the whole story years ago in "Generation of Vipers," but he didn't indict society.

Jill St. John and Asa Maynor went antique shopping in London, then for kicks caught a bus and tried to act British. Writes Jill: "We missed our stop and had to jump off the bus while it was still moving. I'm afraid I looked very American yelling, 'Geronimo!' " If Jill can finish "The Liquidator" in time, she'll do a movie with Paul Newman.

From Africa comes a cable from Stanley Baker: "Battling sun in hot desert in 'Sands of Kalahari.' We start fighting 25 ferocious hungry baboons. Hope we win. If so, Stu Whitman gets the baboons, and I get the girl, Susannah York, no less. How's that for a twist?"

Jack Keller (Jerry Lewis' public relations man) from Ireland: "I never knew what nationality you were until I listened to these people talk. They still have [illegible] of [illegible] you [illegible] came over to get my [illegible]. See you [illegible]."

[illegible] LIMBS [illegible] employed in American hospitals.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Right to Work

Land of the free? Just barely. Home of the brave? Well, hardly. If a person has a right to live, it must follow that he has a right to work at whatever honest job or profession he chooses to follow.

The right to work is ever present, or should be. But the "right" to a job is no right at all. Nobody can guarantee that any job will be present at any time for any claimant. No economy has ever been so stable that jobs could be guaranteed to the citizens EXCEPT under a condition of slavery.

It is a rule of the market place, where jobs are created, that the job goes to the one who is best qualified to fill it. Therefore, it behooves the job seeker to improve his abilities, his capabilities and thus improve his chances of finding the desired job.

Many create their own jobs by going into the professions, starting up a business or inventing some gadget or other that is useful, and therefore salable, to his fellowman. Others raise the food needed by those who work in the nonfood industries.

In a truly free market place, where competition was free and unrestricted, the job seeker would have a much better chance of finding suitable work (not just any old job) than can ever possibly be the case where the economy is controlled, partially or wholly by the government.

Total government control, socialism, often brings total employment, slavery. But this is not what a free people desires.

Today our right to work is being restricted by partial, in some cases almost total, governmental control of the economy. It is being restricted by excessive taxation of industry and business, leaving little capital for replacement of old, obsolete and worn out machinery and equipment and scarcely any for the building of new plants, or for research, which always spells new jobs.

Our right to work is also being restricted by the unions, aided and abetted by the government, with their limits on the number of apprentices, with their "right" to demand a union shop and to force all and sundry to join the union and support its bosses in splendor as well as to support its political activities and policies, even though the member may not believe in them.

It is a strange situation in which Americans find themselves today, with their right to work stymied by the unions' "right" to force them into a stable where they are hired out from the union hall like so many horses or mules. This is freedom?

There are several states in the union that have passed "right to work" laws to protect their citizens from having to join a union before they can exercise their right to work. This, in itself, is a serious reflection upon our boasted liberties under the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. But if the unions are successful in their drive to have these laws repealed, as our great society president has promised them they will be, we will take another long step toward total regimentation and slavery.

If the president and Congress decide that the right to work laws are "illegal" they will be going against the majority of the peoples' wishes. In a recent Opinion Research poll it was found that the people, across the nation, favor the retention of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act (the section that permits the states to pass right to work laws).

It was further found that nearly two-thirds of the adult public, union members included, favor a national law making all union membership voluntary. Seven out of ten college graduates favor such a law. In fact, according to the poll, only four in ten union family members favor a law requiring workers to join a union in order to hold a job.

The strongest support for Section 14(b) and for a law making union membership voluntary in every state comes from the northeast, which is one of the highest unionized sections of the country.

LBJ, being the astute politician he is, may recognize this trend away from total unionization — and then again he may not, but he'd better.

Able and Willing

If you are willing and able, you will find the work that suits you. The willingness you must be born with. The ability can be acquired. If you are not willing to earn your own way, you can always appeal to LBJ, but bankruptcy for all lies that way. Who'll support you then we cannot say.

Questions About Big Business

The concept that anything big is bad seems to be ingrained in the minds of the thinking of those in government. Nearly all legislation on taxes seems to be designed to "soak the rich" in order to give to the "poor."

And the Department of Justice seems to be increasing its attacks on business mergers on the theory that big business is bad, but small business is good, regardless of efficiency.

George H. Love, chairman of the Chrysler Corp., recently pointed to some of the dangers for the campaign against big business. He asked four questions which deserve to be considered in order to understand [illegible] of the problem. His questions:

1. Do we as Americans know that big business — through research [illegible] — is providing [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] to encourage the growth of big American companies with international operations that can compete effectively in the world market with the big and growing business organizations of other countries — many of them either nationalized or subsidized by foreign governments?

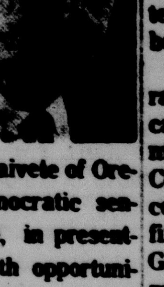
These Days

Moscow Uses Congressional Record

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN



Do you want to know how Moscow's "Pravda," the official news organ of the Soviet Communist party, is dealing these days with American attitudes toward the Viet Nam crisis? The issue for April 2 is an astounding eye-opener, and it makes one wonder about the naivete of Oregon's off-beat Democratic senator, Wayne Morse, in presenting the Soviets with opportunities for scoring a major propaganda triumph.

What has happened is that a number of letters to Senator Morse from his admirers and supporters have turned up in Pravda as grist for the Communist "peace" propaganda mill. The letters are from all over the United States. A man from San Francisco writes Morse that today the supreme manifestation of patriotism is to be in opposition to the government. Someone from Detroit accuses Lyndon Johnson of following the policy of that "maniac," Goldwater, in Southeast Asia. An abject fellow from a town in Indiana writes that "If my country demands my service in this war, I would prefer imprisonment. I never thought that the day would come when I would have to say that I am ashamed of being an American. But that day has arrived."

"Pravda" has printed the names of Senator Morse's correspondents. I refrain from passing them along because I assume that most of the letter writers would, on due reflection, be ashamed of the anti-American use to which their words have been put.

The Russian reporter who has used the letters to Senator Morse is S. Vishnevsky. That Mr. Vishnevsky is a partisan distorter of the worst order is proved by the use he has made, in the same "Pravda" issue of April 2, of a column written by my colleague, William S. White. In the particular column in question Mr. White poured scorn on the handful of professionally anti-American Americans who continually run down their country, calling it "ugly America," "guilty America," and so on. But Mr. Vishnevsky, ignoring the whole thrust and meaning of the White column, quoted selected bits from it to prove that America is indeed a guilty nation.

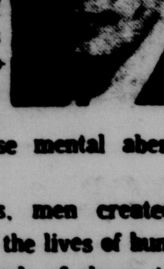
True enough, Senator Morse did not hand the correspondence directly to the Russian reporter. The letters may be found in the Congressional Record. It is one thing to carry on a campaign against White House policy as part of a great debate over the issue of American interest in Southeast Asia, but isn't it something else again to make presumably private letters available for use by anybody?

Can you imagine the embarrassment that would have been caused back in 1940 to patriotic members of the America First Committee if their letters to congressmen had found their first news exploitation in Dr. Goebels' press in Berlin? We may be sure that Senator Morse wanted his mail to make an impression on the White House, but S. Vishnevsky stresses the point that none of these letters have been published in local papers. He glories in having used them to score a clean propaganda beat.

The heading that Pravda uses over the Vishnevsky dispatch is a quotation from one of the letter's, "I am ashamed of being an American." I am sure that many Americans, including Oregonians who voted for him, are ashamed of Senator Morse's naivete in permitting Russians to be misled about popular feeling in the United States. The polls indicate that a majority of Americans have backed Lyndon Johnson's policy of standing by our promises to the South Vietnamese. In helping to pass along to the Russian people the palpable lie that America as a whole is "ashamed" about honoring its commitments Senator Morse may be doing his own cause of peace a great disservice. For wars are most likely to come when great powers misread each other's minds.

The Myth of Government

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER



Throughout history, man's basic preoccupation has been in service to the propagation of one myth or another. Men have had a phenomenal predilection for burdening themselves with a host of unrealities and have exhibited a brutal passion for the defense of these mental aberrations.

For centuries, men created gods, employed the lives of hundreds of thousands of slaves to erect temples to these imaginary beings, and then demanded the blood of young maidens upon their altars to appease these creatures. In defense of one imaginary god, a head of state would send men to war to do battle with the soldiers of yet another head of state who was likewise championing his own local god.

To maintain purity of faith, heretics were burned at the stake; to maintain friendly relations with their gods, human sacrifices were made. Blood and more blood was demanded in the service of an empty myth.

We have since ceased this practice of demanding human sacrifice in defense of religious mythology. But irrational man needs always a myth to cling to . . . and especially a myth to which he can devote wholeheartedly the life of his neighbor. To replace his ancient myth with its outmoded means of sacrifice, he has turned his devotions to another of his long held myths: the collectivization of individuals under a government.

Men have turned their eye from Baal to Demos. They have, with the labor and the sacrifice of literally millions of individuals, enshrined their new deity in stately government buildings of marble and gold. If one epoch of man's history "rendered unto [illegible]," our epoch is "rendering unto Caesar," [illegible] with the [illegible] at the nature of man's current fabrication . . . government.

We are told that government is necessary for the protection of our lives, and yet government sends men to war against each other, engages in mass murders and executions, and threatens to annihilate the entire human race with weapons designed to "protect" us; we are likewise told that government is essential for the protection of our property, and then this very creature forcibly deprives us of our porperty — via taxation — in order to maintain its existence; we are told that government is necessary in order to assure us our freedom to act and trade with one another, and then this same government turns around and imposes one restriction after another on the free market and our freedom of action; we are told that government must exist in order to guarantee us security, and yet what greater threat is there to our security than the ever-growing power of government which deprives us more and more of our only means of maintaining our well-being — the products of our labor.

The passion for a myth will die hard, and yet I am not without complete hope for humankind, for as long as man can cast aside the belief that individuals should be be-headed for the benefit of their gods, there is always the hopeful expectation that they may yet relinquish adherence to their current fantasy of government. Men have the capacity for living rational lives, and there is nothing "inevitable" about their past or present proclivity for violence and bloodshed. As life once crawled out of the sea, so too it may someday crawl out of the jungle, away from both the witch-doctor and the head-hunter.

KIND WORDS

To the Editor:

Just to let you know I enjoyed the short visit with you last Monday the 19th, and enjoy the Gazette Telegraph, especially it's exaltation of FREEDOM. I enjoy the editorial page very much.

I decided not to bother with the lengthy letter you had saved for me, and that I picked up at that time. enclosed you will find another, inspired by your article "Destruction for Construction." It was very thought provoking. I trust you can, and will, find room for it. The wife and I had discussed very much already your short editorial, "Nature's Bulldozers," I fear very much for the man, irrespective of his position, that boastingly says, "I am going to do this or that," but rather he should say, "If God will, I am going to do this or that."

Well, may the good Lord add to your daily strength along with all His other blessings.

Editor's note: The piece 'inspired" by our editorial appears below.

DESTROY VS BUILD

To the Editor:

I enjoyed your editorial "Destruction for Construction," issue 4-22, very much, many times have I looked on great and elaborate buildings, huge machines, and considered them as raw materials, having come out of mother earth, and usually where these materials are extracted from, there remains an ugly scar. The little mining town of Victor is no exception, many fortunes in gold, running into millions of dollars, have come out of these hills. The old mining shafts, the old rock dumps, have left an indelible mark that will always identify it as a mining town, as you said it is a principle that cannot be avoided as long as men continue to build. When we left Denver, Oct. '63, they were razing and destroying old buildings, to build greater and more elaborate ones.

While reading this article, thoughts begin to form in my mind on this same subject in other fields. I thought, what a wrecker and destroyer Mr. Johnson is! Among his first acts was to deal our veterans a very cruel blow in closing the veteran's hospitals, an unthinkable thing, since these many veterans have offered, and many did sacrifice their lives for ours, and their country. Since we enjoy the fruits of their sacrifices and sufferings, certainly they deserve the best the country has to offer, and we do hope that they retain the Grand Junction hospital. Also another fearful thing he has done, unless he has the assurance of permanent peace, having not, perhaps rendered our country entirely defenseless, he has certainly rendered it a crushing blow in that direction. Cutting back our army installations, air bases, and a general disarmament of America, has practically made it a prey to every envious, and wanton eye abroad. May God help us against such destructive forces. You might say this was a move towards economy. We might ask, "To what purpose, and to what end?" It appears that Mr. Johnson had some ideologies all of his own, to wit: to build a Great Society(?) and to stamp out poverty (?) This, my friend, is an herculean task, (only God can build a Great Society, and He is doing it through Jesus Christ). Only God can stamp out poverty, but it does not seem to be His will to do so, some lady has already answered this by quoting our Lord, "The poor you have always with you."

To build a Great Society you must have material to build with. Many people are like goats, they are full of butts, hard to do any thing with, so many others, accustomed to wallowing in the mire, like the old sow, no matter what elaborate circumstances they are placed in, will invariably seek a slough of mire to wallow in. Many people are satisfied with their circumstances and attainments, and would not even thank one for offering to help them to a better way of life. To stamp out poverty is practically an impossibility, in the first place there is not enough finance in the country to do so. In second place "Nature's Bulldozers" (Your short editorial, Gaz. Tel. Fri. 4-23) is creating poverty through disastrous floods and tornadoes to such extreme that it is becoming a baffling situation to Mr. Johnson, and others.

In conclusion I would like to propound a question. Is it a show of wisdom to destroy practical, vital and important institutions as the veteran's hospitals, and in a large sense, destroy our national defense, as a point of economy, and squander the savings on building impractical, unproved ideologies, as a Great Society, and to throw money down the drain, in an effort to stamp out poverty, something, which only God can do?

WHEN CRIME PAYS

To the Editor:

We never want to convict an innocent man for a crime he didn't commit, but neither do we want innocent people to suffer from the crimes committed by others.

Concern over the plight of the criminal and efforts to rehabilitate him are one thing, but the "championing" of criminals is quite another thing.

To protect young offenders from the injurious effects of publicity is one thing, but to protect society from the injuries inflicted by young offenders is more important.

In criminal cases to protect a man from being forced to testify or be a witness against himself is fine for those indicted, but to encourage a criminal to confess his crime, make repentance and restitution by reduced or suspended sentence could keep crime from paying and go far towards reducing the losses due to crime suffered by the innocent victims.

Crime increases when crime pays. Crime pays when the criminals can get away with it. When the courts deviate from their sole responsibility of serving to protect society, and begin serving the criminals, then the criminals can get away with it, then crime pays, then crime increases.

TOUGH ENOUGH

To the Editor:

Here is something that I think might be very helpful to many people. After three score and 24 years (84) I have had many experiences some of which might encourage others to not lose hope when things look bad. In the summer of 1940 I had a coronary occlusion (heart attack to you) and as I was overweight (250 lbs.) the doctors gave me little encouragement. They prescribed three months in bed. "Well, Dr." I said, "when can I go back to work?" He said, "Don't worry about that, just stay in bed and don't worry." I stayed in bed. They do not keep folks so long now, but after three months in bed I was weak, and thin, (180 lbs.) and I started to improve slowly. I was very careful and after several months took an easy job, later on had a harder one, and finally pulled out in fair shape. After 8 years I added another job to the one I had, and handled both of them for two years, then I had another spell that kept me down until in 1952 I came to Colorado Springs.

When I came here I was able to walk only two blocks, then I had to sit down and rest; when there were no benches handy I would sit on the curb for 10 minutes, then continue my journey. I slowly improved and have been improving ever since. Now at 84 I often walk ten miles in a day, and I exercise with Indian clubs, and garden work, calisthenics, and strange to say, I often run a fifty yard dash down our driveway in 20 seconds, then walk back up in 60 seconds, and then repeat the run, that makes good exercise for one minute.

I don't have a Doctor, but have a system of my own that so far has proved satisfactory. I keep my weight down, now 160 and aim to get to 150 soon. My maximum weight at 50 yrs. was 265 which was too much for a 5 ft. 8 in. man.

I read an article this morning by Robert Gannon, in Popular Science April P 79. Will give you a few facts from it, that go to show "You are tougher than you think." (1) Last May, 16 yr. old George Lawrence rode his bike into a gorge below Niagra Falls and landed on a rocky ledge ten stories below. His injuries a cut head, sore ribs. (2) Four years ago, 7 yr. old Rodger Woodward, of Niagara Falls, was swept over the 161-ft.-high Horseshoe Falls after his boat capsized. He survived with only minor cuts and bruises.

(3) In New York City, a patient checked into a hospital complaining of swollen ankles. Before releasing him, doctors removed 258 items from his stomach, including a beer can opener, 26 keys, and three sets of Rosary Beads. Nothing was wrong with his ankles. These three prove people are tougher than they thot.

(4) Capt. E. L. Beeding Jr. strapped himself to a sled catapulted backward down a 120-foot track, then slammed to a stop. For a moment he was subject to 82.6 Gs — and weighed almost six tons. Though this high stress lasted only 1-400 second, Beeding was temporarily blinded. His pulse for a time was completely absent, and he went into deep shock. He returned to work in a week with only a sore back.

At Wright-Patterson AF Base, Ohio, they are testing men in ovens. Airmen in heavy clothing have withstood 400 degrees for 3½ minutes without braising. Roast beef requires only 325 degrees. (5) Physicians used to think body temperature of 108 degrees meant death. Then a student nurse, Sophie Sapala, suffering from undulant fever, signed into Bushwick Hospital, Brooklyn, N.Y. Her temperature 110, a new record.

(6) Doctors were sure that a temperature of less than 79 was fatal. Not so—proved by young Dorothy Stevens of Chicago. She slumped unconscious in the snow, lay there all night in temperature of minus-11 degrees. When found frozen next morning, her eyeballs were crystallized, her heart all but stopped. Her temperature was 64.4 degrees. The doctors were astonished at her recovery. (7) 88 Airmen made endurance history a few years ago when they were stranded on the Greenland Ice-Cap, without special cold-weather clothing. They clung to life in Minus-40 degree weather for three months before they were rescued. O, tougher than you think.

TOO MANY BILLBOARDS?

TOO MANY ROAD BILLBOARDS CAN HARM AREA'S ECONOMY

Editor: The Arizona Republic:

The letter April 1 from Paul Millet, the Mesa sign painter, seems to warrant a reply Not because of the irrelevancy which causes him to see Communists lurking behind every billboard. Not because of his mistaken belief that erecting signs and billboards all over the landscape is a productive enterprise. But because he seems to think that restraining this type of nuisance will have an adverse effect on the local and state economy.

Perhaps the true effect on the economy can be illustrated in this way. I had planned my 1961 vacation route carefully in advance to include a number of things I had long wanted to see. One of these was the Garden of the Gods near Manitou Springs, Colo. The closer I got to my objective, the thicker the signs became — touting motels, souvenir shops, trips up Pikes Peak, and other enterprises calculated to separate the traveler from his cash as quickly as possible. This commercial blight effectively [illegible] the state [illegible]. Eventually I found myself emerging from the [illegible] of Colorado Springs without having seen any indication of the existence of the park I was seeking.

I was so annoyed by the unrestrained proliferation of eyesores in what had originally been a beautiful area that I headed my car for the nearest border and did not stop for gas, food or refreshment until I was out of the State of Colorado. I wrote a letter to the governor telling him what I thought of the mess. He sent me a book with lots of pretty pictures, but I would have preferred seeing the real thing.

The point of this whole account is this: Which is more important to the economy of Arizona, [illegible] or [illegible]? The beauty of the deserts and [illegible] which attracts people to our state [illegible] from the encroachment of the commercial defilement of billboards and signs if for no other reason than that it is good business.

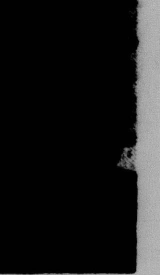
The Local Scene

Something New

By RUFUS L. PORTER



The first issue of the Rampart Journal has come to me in the mails. Volume one Number one is a handsome paper back booklet of 76 pages containing six essays by outstanding writers, thinkers and speakers in the area of individual liberty. The journal contains six articles that can also be bought separately for nominal sums to mail or give to friends or employees.

The first article is entitled "The Stoic Virtues" and is written by Robert LeFevre, former editor of the Colorado Springs Gazette Telegraph. He is the founder of Freedom School and the gleam in his eye is the future Rampart College, the first part of which will be the graduate school for which plans are drawn and work on the buildings is expected to get under way in the near future.

LeFevre's drive for a four year liberal arts college is well under way. I predict that it will be a going concern before 1970.

The Freedom School and Rampart College will add immeasurably to the prestige and culture of the Pikes Peak Region as an educational center.

The stoics were individualists and LeFevre has done an excellent job in interpreting their views and what we owe the early Greek philosophers who followed that doctrine.

Next in the Journal is "A Letter to Thomas Bayard," by Lysander Spooner. Spooner was "a lawyer and critic of government par excellence." His letter was published May 27, 1882 and is just as pertinent to these times as it was to those.

Next comes "Teaching and Expanding Knowledge," by Albert Szent-Gyorgyi, an M.D. and a Ph. D., a Nobel Prize winner in medical science and, since 1947, director of the Institue for Muscle Research at the Marine Biological Laboratory, Woods Hole, Massachusetts. I must confess that I haven't read this piece yet, but I have read a few paragraphs and it sounds intriguing.

Another article by Walter B. Trapp entitled "Economic Systems" explains the advantages of the American private enterprise system over the quasi-private and the state controlled systems of Europe, Japan and the U.S.S.R., and the advantages are many and well presented.

Next comes Oscar Cooley, whom we all know as a fairly regular contributor to this page. His article is entitled "What Are the Proper Functions of Government?" Cooley does his usual scholarly job and clarifies a lot of points that may have been bothering you on the proper functions of government.

The last essay is entitled, rather lengthily, "The Company President in Relation to the Traditional Organizational Chart."

It was written by Richard E. Worthington. I haven't read his article yet, either, nor the book review, which comes next and is done by Howard E. Kessler.

After the review comes a summation of the six lectures by Bob LeFevre. This I read first and it gave me an appetite for the rest of the booklet. It is entitled "On the Other Hand" and while, on the whole, it is laudatory of the views presented, the author does not withhold his criticism if he feels it is justified.

Altogether, the Rampart Journal is an excellent addition to any individualist's library and a good book to mail to any one you might know who is "emerging" into the realm of individualistic thinking. It may be obtained by writing the Pine Tree Press, Box 158, Larkspur, Colorado. It will be published quarterly.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Right to Work

Land of the free? Just barely. Home of the brave? Well, hardly. If a person has a right to live, it must follow that he has a right to work at whatever honest job or profession he chooses to follow.

The right to work is ever present, or should be. But the "right" to a job is no right at all. Nobody can guarantee that any job will be present at any time for any claimant. No economy has ever been so stable that jobs could be guaranteed to the citizens EXCEPT under a condition of slavery.

It is a rule of the market place, where jobs are created, that the job goes to the one who is best qualified to fill it. Therefore, it behooves the job seeker to improve his abilities, his capabilities and thus improve his chances of finding the desired job.

Many create their own jobs by going into the professions, starting up a business or inventing some gadget or other that is useful, and therefore salable, to his fellowman. Others raise the food needed by those who work in the non-food industries.

In a truly free market place, where competition was free and unrestricted, the job seeker would have a much better chance of finding suitable work (not just any old job) than can ever possibly be the case where the economy is controlled, partially or wholly by the government.

Total government control, socialism, often brings total employment, slavery. But this is not what a free people desires.

Today our right to work is being restricted by partial, in some cases almost total, governmental control of the economy. It is being restricted by excessive taxation of industry and business, leaving little capital for replacement of old, obsolete and worn out machinery and equipment and scarcely any for the building of new plants, or for research, which always spells new jobs.

Our right to work is also being restricted by the unions, aided and abetted by the government, with their limits on the number of apprentices, with their "right" to demand a union shop and to force all and sundry to join the union and support its bosses in splendor as well as to support its political activities and policies, even though the member may not believe in them.

It is a strange situation in which Americans find themselves today, with their right to work stymied by the unions' "right" to force them into a stable where they are hired out from the union hall like so many horses or mules. This is freedom?

There are several states in the union that have passed "right to work" laws to protect their citizens from having to join a union before they can exercise their right to work. This, in itself, is a serious reflection upon our boasted liberties under the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. But if the unions are successful in their drive to have these laws repealed, as our great society president has promised them they will be, we will take another long step toward total regimentation and slavery.

If the president and Congress decide that the right to work laws are "illegal" they will be going against the majority of the peoples' wishes. In a recent Opinion Research poll it was found that the people, across the nation, favor the retention of Section 14(b) of the Taft - Hartley Act (the section that permits the states to pass right to work laws).

It was further found that nearly two - thirds of the adult public, union members included, favor a national law making all union membership voluntary. Seven out of ten college graduates favor such a law. In fact, according to the poll, only four in ten union family members favor a law requiring workers to join a union in order to hold a job.

The strongest support for Section 14(b) and for a law making union membership voluntary in every state comes from the northeast, which is one of the highest unionized sections of the country.

LBJ, being the astute politician he is, may recognize this trend away from total unionization — and then again he may not, but he'd better.

Able and Willing

If you are willing and able, you will find the work that suits you. The willingness you must be born with. The ability can be acquired. If you are not willing to earn your own way, you can always appeal to LBJ, but bankruptcy for all lies that way. Who'll support you then we cannot say.

Questions About Big Business

The concept that anything big is bad seems to be ingrained in too much of the thinking of those in government. Nearly all legislation on taxes seems to be designed to "soak the rich" in order to give to the "poor."

And the Department of Justice seems to be increasing its attacks on business mergers on the theory that big business is bad, but small business is good, regardless of efficiency.

George H. Love, chairman of the Chrysler Corp., recently pointed to some of the dangers in the campaign against big business. He asked four questions which deserve to be considered in order to understand something of the problem. His questions:

1. Do we as Americans know that big business — through research and the economies of mass production — is providing increasing opportunities for the establishment and growth of small business?

2. Do we appreciate the way mergers have helped and can continue to help small and medium-sized business to achieve the benefits of size — and put them in a position to challenge their bigger competitors?

3. Do we know how important it is to encourage companies to become big enough and strong enough to help our country meet the challenge of change through research and development?

4. Do we understand the need to encourage the growth of big American companies with international operations that can compete effectively in the world market with the big and growing business organizations of other countries — many of them either nationalized or subsidized by foreign governments?

These Days

Moscow Uses Congressional Record

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Do you want to know how Moscow's "Pravda," the official news organ of the Soviet Communist party, is dealing these days with American attitudes toward the Viet Nam crisis? The issue for April 2 is an astounding eye-opener, and it makes one wonder about the naivete of Oregon's off-beat Democratic senator, Wayne Morse, in presenting the Soviets with opportunities for scoring a major propaganda triumph.

What has happened is that a number of letters to Senator Morse from his admirers and supporters have turned up in Pravda as grist for the Communist "peace" propaganda mill. The letters are from all over the United States. A man from San Francisco writes Morse that today the supreme manifestation of patriotism is to be in opposition to the government. Someone from Detroit accuses Lyndon Johnson of following the policy of that "maniac," Goldwater, in Southeast Asia. An abject fellow from a town in Indiana writes that "If my country demands my service in this war, I would prefer imprisonment. I never thought that the day would come when I would have to say that I am ashamed of being an American. But that day has arrived."

"Pravda" has printed the names of Senator Morse's correspondents. I refrain from passing them along because I assume that most of the letter writers would, on due reflection, be ashamed of the anti-American use to which their words have been put.

The Russian reporter who has used the letters to Senator Morse is S. Vishnevsky. That Mr. Vishnevsky is a partisan distorter of the worst order is proved by the use he has made, in the same "Pravda" issue of April 2, of a column written by my colleague, William S. White. In the particular column in question Mr. White poured scorn on the handful of professionally anti- American Americans who continually run down their country, calling it "ugly America," "guilty America," and so on. But Mr. Vishnevsky, ignoring the whole thrust and meaning of the White column, quoted selected bits from it to prove that America is indeed a guilty nation.

True enough, Senator Morse did not hand the correspondence directly to the Russian reporter. The letters may be found in the Congressional Record. It is one thing to carry on a campaign against White House policy as part of a great debate over the issue of American interest in Southeast Asia, but isn't it something else again to make presumably private letters available for use by anybody?

Can you imagine the embarrassment that would have been caused back in 1940 to patriotic members of the America First Committee if their letters to congressmen had found their first news exploitation in Dr. Goebels' press in Berlin? We may be sure that Senator Morse wanted his mail to make an impression on the White House, but S. Vishnevsky stresses the point that none of these letters have been published in local papers. He glories in having used them to score a clean propaganda beat.

The heading that Pravda uses over the Vishnevsky dispatch is a quotation from one of the letter's, "I am ashamed of being an American." I am sure that many Americans, including Oregonians who voted for him, are ashamed of Senator Morse's naivete in permitting Russians to be misled about popular feeling in the United States. The polls indicate that a majority of Americans have backed Lyndon Johnson's policy of standing by our promises to the South Vietnamese. In helping to pass along to the Russian people the palpable lie that America as a whole is "ashamed" about honoring its commitments Senator Morse may be doing his own cause of peace a great disservice. For wars are most likely to come when great powers misread each other's minds.

The Myth of Government

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

Throughout history, man's basic preoccupation has been in service to the propagation of one myth or another. Men have had a phenomenal predilection for burdening themselves with a host of un - realities and have exhibited a brutal passion for the defense of these mental aberrations.

For centuries, men created gods, employed the lives of hundreds of thousands of slaves to erect temples to these imaginary beings, and then demanded the blood of young maidens upon their altars to appease these creatures. In defense of one imaginary god, a head of state would send men to war to do battle with the soldiers of yet another head of state who was likewise championing his own local god.

To maintain purity of faith, heretics were burned at the stake; to maintain friendly relations with their gods, human sacrifices were made. Blood and more blood was demanded in the service of an empty myth.

We have since ceased this practice of demanding human sacrifice in defense of religious mythology. But irrational man needs always a myth to cling to . . . and especially a myth to which he can devote wholeheartedly the life of his neighbor. To replace his ancient myth with its outmoded means of sacrifice, he has turned his devotions to another of his long held myths: the collectivization of individuals under a government.

Men have turned their eye from Baal to Demos. They have, with the labor and the sacrifice of literally millions of individuals, enshrined their new deity in stately government buildings of marble and gold. If one epoch of man's history "rendered unto God," our epoch is "rendering unto Caesar," and with the same degree of ferocity.

Declare yourself opposed to the idea that young maidens should be sacrificed atop some pyramid in order to bring well being to the society, and you will, far from being scorned, be hailed as a rational, progressive - thinking individual. But dare you go on to assert that likewise no person should be required to sacrifice his life or his property to the government, and you shall be met with the thunderous wrath of the zealots of the new faith.

Yesterday's "heretic" is today's "extremist," and the defenders of the myth have no tolerance for the unbeliever. Yet let us take a close, hard look at the nature of man's current fabrication . . . government.

We are told that government is necessary for the protection of our lives, and yet government sends men to war against each other, engages in mass murders and executions, and threatens to annihilate the entire human race with weapons designed to "protect" us; we are likewise told that government is essential for the protection of our property, and then this very creature forcibly deprives us of our porperty — via taxation — in order to maintain its existence; we are told that government is necessary in order to assure us our freedom to act and trade with one another, and then this same government turns around and imposes one restriction after another on the free market and our freedom of action; we are told that government must exist in order to guarantee us security, and yet what greater threat is there to our security than the ever-growing power of government which deprives us more and more of our only means of maintaining our well-being — the products of our labor.

The passion for a myth will die hard, and yet I am not without complete hope for humankind, for as long as man can cast aside the belief that individuals should be be-headed for the benefit of their gods, there is always the hopeful expectation that they may yet relinquish adherence to their current fantasy of government. Men have the capacity for living rational lives, and there is nothing "inevitable" about their past or present proclivity for violence and bloodshed. As life once crawled out of the sea, so too it may someday crawl out of the jungle, away from both the witch-doctor and the head-hunter.

KIND WORDS

To the Editor:

Just to let you know I enjoyed the short visit with you last Monday the 19th, and enjoy the Gazette Telegraph, especially it's exaltation of FREEDOM. I enjoy the editorial page very much.

I decided not to bother with the lengthy letter you had saved for me, and that I picked up at that time, enclosed you will find another, inspired by your article "Destruction for Construction." It was very thought provoking. I trust you can, and will, find room for it. The wife and I had discussed very much already your short editorial, "Nature's Bulldozers." I fear very much for the man, irrespective of his position, that boastingly says, "I am going to do this or that," but rather he should say, "If God will, I am going to do this or that."

Well, may the good Lord add to your daily strength along with all His other blessings.

Editor's note: The piece "inspired" by our editorial appears below.

DESTROY VS BUILD

To the Editor:

I enjoyed your editorial "Destruction for Construction," issue 4-22, very much, many times have I looked on great and elaborate buildings, huge machines, and considered them as raw materials, having come out of mother earth, and usually where these materials are extracted from, there remains an ugly scar. The little mining town of Victor is no exception, many fortunes in gold, running into millions of dollars, have come out of these hills. The old mining shafts, the old rock dumps, have left an indelible mark that will always identify it as a mining town, as you said it is a principle that cannot be avoided as long as men continue to build. When we left Denver, Oct. '63, they were razing and destroying old buildings, to build greater and more elaborate ones.

While reading this article, thoughts begin to form in my mind on this same subject in other fields. I thought, what a wrecker and destroyer Mr. Johnson is! Among his first acts was to deal our veterans a very cruel blow in closing the veteran's hospitals, an unthinkable thing, since these many veterans have offered, and many did sacrifice their lives for ours, and their country. Since we enjoy the fruits of their sacrifices and sufferings, certainly they deserve the best the country has to offer, and we do hope that they retain the Grand Junction hospital. Also another fearful thing he has done, unless he has the assurance of permanent peace, having not, perhaps rendered our country entirely defenseless, he has certainly rendered it a crushing blow in that direction. Cutting back our army installations, air bases, and a general disarmament of America, has practically made it a prey to every envious, and wanton eye abroad. May God help us against such destructive forces. You might say this was a move towards economy. We might ask, "To what purpose, and to what end?" It appears that Mr. Johnson had some ideologies all of his own, to wit: to build a Great Society(?) and to stamp out poverty (?) This, my friend, is an herculean task, (only God can build a Great Society, and He is doing it through Jesus Christ). Only God can stamp out poverty, but it does not seem to be His will to do so, some lady has already answered this by quoting our Lord, "The poor you have always with you."

To build a Great Society you must have material to build with. Many people are like goats, they are full of butts, hard to do any thing with, so many others, accustomed to wallowing in the mire, like the old sow, no matter what elaborate circumstances they are placed in, will invariably seek a slough of mire to wallow in. Many people are satisfied with their circumstances and attainments, and would not even thank one for offering to help them to a better way of life. To stamp out poverty is practically an impossibility, in the first place there is not enough finance in the country to do so. In second place "Nature's Bulldozers" (Your short editorial, Gaz. Tel. Fri. 4-23) is creating poverty through disastrous floods and tornadoes to such extreme that it is becoming a baffling situation to Mr. Johnson, and others.

In conclusion I would like to propound a question. Is it a show of wisdom to destroy practical, vital and important institutions as the veteran's hospitals, and in a large sense, destroy our national defense, as a point of economy, and squander the savings on building impractical, unproved ideologies, as a Great Society, and to throw money down the drain, in an effort to stamp out poverty, something, which only God can do?

WHEN CRIME PAYS

To the Editor:

We never want to convict an innocent man for a crime he didn't commit, but neither do we want innocent people to suffer from the crimes committed by others.

Concern over the plight of the criminal and efforts to rehabilitate him are one thing, but the "championing" of criminals is quite another thing.

To protect young offenders from the injurious effects of publicity is one thing, but to protect society from the injuries inflicted by young offenders is more important.

In criminal cases to protect a man from being forced to testify or be a witness against himself is fine for those indicted, but to encourage a criminal to confess his crime, make repentance and restitution by reduced or suspended sentence could keep crime from paying and go far towards reducing the losses due to crime suffered by the innocent victims.

Crime increases when crime pays. Crime pays when the criminals can get away with it. When the courts deviate from their sole responsibility of serving to protect society, and begin serving the criminals, then the criminals can get away with it, then crime pays, then crime increases.

TOUGH ENOUGH

To the Editor:

Here is something that I think might be very helpful to many people. After three score and 24 years (84) I have had many experiences some of which might encourage others to not lose hope when things look bad. In the summer of 1940 I had a coronary occlusion (heart attack to you) and as I was overweight (250 lbs.) the doctors gave me little encouragement. They prescribed three months in bed. "Well, Dr." I said, "when can I go back to work?" He said, "Don't worry about that, just stay in bed and don't worry." I stayed in bed. They do not keep folks so long now, but after three months in bed I was weak, and thin, (180 lbs.) and I started to improve slowly. I was very careful and after several months took an easy job, later on had a harder one, and finally pulled out in fair shape. After 8 years I added another job to the one I had, and handled both of them for two years, then I had another spell that kept me down until in 1952 I came to Colorado Springs.

When I came here I was able to walk only two blocks, then I had to sit down and rest; when there were no benches handy I would sit on the curb for 10 minutes, then continue my journey. I slowly improved and have been improving ever since. Now at 84 I often walk ten miles in a day, and I exercise with Indian clubs, and garden work, calisthenics, and strange to say, I often run a fifty yard dash down our driveway in 20 seconds, then walk back up in 40 seconds, and then repeat the run, that makes good exercise for one minute.

I don't have a Doctor, but have a system of my own that so far has proved satisfactory. I keep my weight down, now 160 and aim to get to 150 soon. My maximum weight at 50 yrs. was 265 which was too much for a 5 ft. 8 in. man.

I read an article this morning by Robert Gannon, in Popular Science April P 79. Will give you a few facts from it, that go to show "You are tougher than you think." (1) Last May, 16 yr. old George Lawrence rode his bike into a gorge below Niagra Falls and landed on a rocky ledge ten stories below. His injuries a cut head, sore ribs. (2) Four years ago, 7 yr. old Rodger Woodward, of Niagara Falls, was swept over the 161-ft.-high Horseshoe Falls after his boat capsized. He survived with only minor cuts and bruises.

(3) In New York City, a patient checked into a hospital complaining of swollen ankles. Before releasing him, doctors removed 258 items from his stomach, including a beer can opener, 26 keys, and three sets of Rosary Beads. Nothing was wrong with his ankles. These three prove people are tougher than they thot.

(4) Capt. E. L. Beeding Jr. strapped himself to a sled catapulted backward down a 120-foot track, then slammed to a stop. For a moment he was subject to 82.6 Gs — and weighed almost six tons. Though this high stress lasted only 1-400 second, Beeding was temporarily blinded. His pulse for a time was completely absent, and he went into deep shock. He returned to work in a week with only a sore back.

At Wright - Patterson AF Base, Ohio, they are testing men in ovens. Airmen in heavy clothing have withstood 400 degrees for 3½ minutes without braising. Roast beef requires only 325 degrees. (5) Physicians used to think body temperature of 108 degrees meant death. Then a student nurse, Sophie Sapala, suffering from undulant fever, signed into Bushwick Hospital, Brooklyn, N.Y. Her temperature 110, a new record.

(6) Doctors were sure that a temperature of less than 79 was fatal. Not so—proved by young Dorothy Stevens of Chicago. She slumped unconscious in the snow, lay there all night in temperature of minus-11 degrees. When found frozen next morning, her eyeballs were crystallized, her heart all but stopped. Her temperature was 64.4 degrees. The doctors were astonished at her recovery. (7) 88 Airmen made endurance history a few years ago when they were stranded on the Greenland Ice-Cap, without special cold-weather clothing. They clung to life in Minus-40 degree weather for three months before they were rescued. O, tougher than you think.

TOO MANY BILLBOARDS?

TOO MANY ROAD BILLBOARDS CAN HARM AREA'S ECONOMY

Editor: The Arizona Republic:

The letter April 1 from Paul Millet, the Mesa sign painter, seems to warrant a reply Not because of the irrelevancy which causes him to see Communists lurking behind every billboard. Not because of his mistaken belief that erecting signs and billboards all over the landscape is a productive enterprise. But because he seems to think that restraining this type of nuisance will have an adverse effect on the local and state economy.

Perhaps the true effect on the economy can be illustrated in this way. I had planned my 1961 vacation route carefully in advance to include a number of things I had long wanted to see. One of these was the Garden of the Gods near Manitou Springs, Colo. The closer I got to my objective, the thicker the signs became — touting motels, souvenir shops, trips up Pikes Peak, and other enterprises calculated to separate the traveler from his cash as quickly as possible. This commercial blight effectively concealed any route markers the state may have put up. Eventually I found myself emerging from the eastern edge of Colorado Springs without having seen any indication of the existence of the park I was seeking.

I was so annoyed by the unrestrained proliferation of eyesores in what had originally been a beautiful area that I headed my car for the nearest border and did not stop for gas, food or refreshment until I was out of the State of Colorado. I wrote a letter to the governor telling him what I thought of the mess. He sent me a book with lots of pretty pictures, but I would have preferred seeing the real thing.

The point of this whole account is this: Which is more important in the economy of Arizona, tourism or sign-painting? The beauty of the deserts and mountains which attracts people to our state must be protected from the encroachment of the commercial defilement of billboards and signs if for no other reason than that it is good business.

Something New

By RUFUS L. PORTER

The first issue of the Rampart Journal has come to me in the mails. Volume one Number one is a handsome paper back booklet of 76 pages containing six essays by outstanding writers, thinkers and speakers in the area of individual liberty. The journal contains six articles that can also be bought separately for nominal sums to mail or give to friends or employees.

The first article is entitled "The Stoic Virtues" and is written by Robert LeFevre, former editor of the Colorado Springs Gazette Telegraph. He is the founder of Freedom School and the gleam in his eye is the future Rampart College, the first part of which will be the graduate school for which plans are drawn and work on the buildings is expected to get under way in the near future.

LeFevre's drive for a four year liberal arts college is well under way. I predict that it will be a going concern before 1970.

The Freedom School and Rampart College will add immeasurably to the prestige and culture of the Pikes Peak Region as an educational center.

The stoics were individualists and LeFevre has done an excellent job in interpreting their views and what we owe the early Greek philosophers who followed that doctrine.

Next in the Journal is "A Letter to Thomas Bayard," by Lysander Spooner. Spooner was "a lawyer and critic of government par excellence." His letter was published May 27, 1882 and is just as pertinent to these times as it was to those.

Next comes "Teaching and Expanding Knowledge," by Albert Szent-Gyorgyi, an M.D. and a Ph. D., a Nobel Prize winner in medical science and, since 1947, director of the Institue for Muscle Research at the Marine Biological Laboratory, Woods Hole, Massachusetts. I must confess that I haven't read this piece yet, but I have read a few paragraphs and it sounds intriguing.

Another article by Walter B. Trapp entitled "Economic Systems" explains the advantages of the American private enterprise system over the quasi-private and the state controlled systems of Europe, Japan and the U.S.S.R., and the advantages are many and well presented.

Next comes Oscar Cooley, whom we all know as a fairly regular contributor to this page. His article is entitled "What Are the Proper Functions of Government?" Cooley does his usual scholarly job and clarifies a lot of points that may have been bothering you on the proper functions of government.

The last essay is entitled, rather lengthily, "The Company President in Relation to the Traditional Organizational Chart."

It was written by Richard E. Worthington. I haven't read his article yet, either, nor the book review, which comes next and is done by Howard E. Kessler.

After the review comes a summation of the six lectures by Bob LeFevre. This I read first and it gave me an appetite for the rest of the booklet. It is entitled "On the Other Hand" and while, on the whole, it is laudatory of the views presented, the author does not withhold his criticism if he feels it is justified.

Altogether, the Rampart Journal is an excellent addition to any individualist's library and a good book to mail to any one you might know who is "emerging" into the realm of individualistic thinking. It may be obtained by writing the Pine Tree Press, Box 158, Larkspur, Colorado. It will be published quarterly.

Legislators Plan to Quit Within Week

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Senate is ready to wind up the first session of the state's 45th General Assembly at 5 p.m. next Friday after a session 122 days long.

It is willing to cut off all debate on bills even sooner—Tuesday at 11 p.m.

It took the position when it passed late Friday two resolutions by Sen. William O. Lennox, R-Colorado Springs, one for each subject. The adjournment resolution requires approval by the Democratic-controlled House of Representatives before it can become effective.

Originally, Lennox asked that the cutoff on debate come Monday night, but he extended the time for 24 hours at the request of the majority leader, Sen. Paul Wenke, R-Fort Collins.

Wenke said it might not be possible for the Senate to consider some conference committee reports before Tuesday, depending upon the time of House action.

Both the House and Senate arranged meetings today to work on conference reports. Leaders said, however, they hoped to avoid any Sunday sessions.

Lennox, arguing for his resolutions, said he realized there might be difficulty in meeting the deadline on the appropriations and tax bills.

"If we cannot agree on the real issues by Tuesday," he said, "to extend the session's not going to have any significant meaning."

Lennox declared it is up to the Republican Party to show the people it has done "everything we can" in good faith to get agreements.

As he spoke, Sen. Edwin S. Lamm, R-Grand Junction, said a conference committee working on the sales tax bill had decided to make food rebates for sales tax paid. Lamm said he warned the other committee members he would refuse to sign the report. Most of the money from the increased sales tax would go for the refunds and for state general fund expenses, Lamm said, and after the first year very little would be available for property tax relief in local school districts.

There were signs that agreement on the sales tax bill would lead to agreement on the Long Appropriations Bill at the higher spending recommended by the House of Representatives. Sen. Harry Locke, D-Hartsel, one of the authors of the lower, Locke-Shoemaker appropriations bill, is expected to refuse to sign the report.

Boy Admits Stabbing His Sister to Death

ELLSWORTH, Kan. (AP) — A 13-year-old boy, hunted down by a posse Sunday, has admitted stabbing his younger sister to death during a fight over a game of hide-and-seek at their home in Wilson, Kan.

A Kansas Bureau of Investigation agent said Roger Mikulecky told how he drove a steak knife into the back of Alice Lynn Mikulecky, 10, Saturday morning.

County Atty. C. R. Miller is expected to take the boy into juvenile court to determine how to handle the case.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mikulecky, have another son, Gary, 11, and another daughter, Linda, 17.

Mrs. Mikulecky found Alice's body in the garage after she failed to keep an appointment with her downtown Saturday morning.

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's Agriculture Department is taking a closer look at fertilizer sold in bags. It seems some of them have been short in weight.

During a two-week span earlier this year, weights and measures inspectors discovered that about half of the bags of commercial fertilizer were short as much as two pounds per bag.

According to testimony by the four at their trials Monday, the incident was one of name-calling, hair-pulling, scratching, biting, and invitations "to go outside and fight."

When Law Is Not Attuned to Society Disobedience Follows, Speaker Says

When the law is not attuned to society, disobedience is inevitable, Dr. John W. Reed, dean of the University of Colorado Law School said here Monday night.

The dean spoke at the annual Law Day program, held this year at the Ent AFB Officer's Club, co-sponsored by the Armed Forces Judge Advocates of the local military establishments and the El Paso County Bar Association, and hosted by ARADCOM.

When law does not meet the needs of society and disobedience follows, the problem can not be remedied with slogans, he declared. Instead law must be made to fit the needs of th society.

He pointed to the 18th Amendment to the Constitution.

(It was proclaimed in effect on Jan. 16, 1920. It prohibited the sale, manufacture, transportation and importation or export of intoxicating liquor. It was never well obeyed by the public nor successfully enforced and was repealed by the 21st Amendment on Dec. 5, 1933.)

The dean said that he believed some of the general lawlessness of the 1920s could be attributed to the general disrespect the public had for the 18th Amendment.

"Disrespect for one law leads to disrespect for other laws," he declared.

Currently, he said, the most noticeable disrespect for law is in the Civil Rights movement. However, he added, there are other forms of disrespect for law that are not so well discussed these are, he said:

—Commercial and industrial bribery.

—Cheating on income tax returns.

— Cheating on expense accounts.

— Violations of traffic laws and game laws.

While disobedience to traffic laws may have dire consequences at once only for people injured in accidents, children who see their parents disobeying the law learn to disdain the law, Reed said.

America has had its share of law disobedience in its history, he said, pointing to various tax rebellions and the labor movement as other examples.

In a democracy, there is always conflict about the law, he stated.

"There is conflict between freedom and order, and between the individual and society," Reed said.

The dean said that at this time there is a mild resurgence of belief in natural law — the law that is believed to have been the law of God.

He said that people believing in the rights of man under natural law challenge the law of the land, believing it is their right obligation of a citizens to disobey.

However, Reed pointed out, the people who disobey the law also are prepared to accept the penalty.

He cited the theme of the day, "Uphold the Law — A Citizen's First Duty,' then asked, "What difference is there between disobeying a traffic law or income tax law and disobeying other laws in the Civil Rights movement?"

The law should be worthy of respect, and when it is worthy, it will be respected, he explained.

Earlier in this century, lawyers, judges and law teachers considered law to be a closed system of reason, but when this philosophy failed to meet the needs it had to be changed, he explained.

Today, law in America is changing, with more emphasis on statutory law than on case (court decisions) law, the dean stated.

It became apparent, he said, that law was not a self-validating system, and what had been a rational procedure became false in the light of additional knowledge and a changing society.

Law is made for man and not man for law, he declared, and so the teachers of law have to go to the other intellectual disciplines in order to know how to teach law.

How law is taught in the law schools of today will be reflected in the law for the next 25 to 30 years as it is practiced and ruled by the lawyers and judges of the future, Reed said.

"Law is used now as an instrument of social engineering, to enhance the dignity of man," he declared.

He predicted that as law develops in the future to meet the needs of the citizen and society, obedience to the law will follow.

In a democracy, freedom and independence can only exist in a framework of law and order, but at the same time, there is a delicate balance and constant tension between law and order on one side and freedom and independence on the other.

The balance between those two forces is in the hands of the men of the bar (lawyers) and the bench (the judges), he said.

Springs Boys, Girls Plan For 'Y' Camp

Springs boys and girls are planning to attend two week sessions in either full time Camp Shady Brook or the Day Camp at Catamount through the YMCA. Many of these youngsters will pay part or all of the cost themselves through the sale of candy.

The candy sale officially began over the weekend. Boxes are clearly marked with the YMCA emblem. In recent weeks, the Y has received numerous calls from residents complaining that young people rave been selling candy for Y camp, prior to the official candy sale opening. Jack Phipps, camp director, emphasized that only candy in boxes marked with the Y emblem is being sold by prospective campers.

The candy sale was approved by the executive committee of the United Fund, whose members felt that the sale provided an acceptable means for boys and girls to earn part of their camp fees. While the general operation of the YMCA is partially underwritten by the United Fund, the camps are self supporting.

Youngsters from 6 to 10 years of age may participate in Catamount Day Camp this Summer during any of the following two week periods: June 21-July 2; July 6-17; July 19-30 and August 2-13. Full time Camp Shady Brook will have one camping session for girls 9 to 15 years of age from June 21-July 2. Boys may choose: July 6-17; July 19-30, August 2-13.

The camp director is a professional YMCA youth worker with 16 years experience. He has a masters degree in group work. Both camps are staffed by a dedicated adult and college age staff.

Two Women Get Suspended Sentences Here

Two women were given 20-day suspended jail sentences Monday by Municipal Court Judge Allan Asher who found both guilty of breach of the peace.

Judge Asher also ordered the two, Elizabeth Stokes, 28, 301 E. El Paso St., and Kathryn Orozco, 21, 919 S. Sahwatch St., to stay out of the Park Cafe or their jail terms would be immediately reinstated.

Two other women, involved in an incident April 13 in the Park Cafe with the above women, were found not guilty of similar charges. They were Maria Utesch, 38, 14 E. Rio Grande St., and Anna Martin, 44, 219 N. Chestnut St.

According to testimony by the four at their trials Monday, the incident was one of name-calling, hair-pulling, scratching, biting, and invitations "to go outside and fight."

A second trial involving four defendants was continued until May 31 on a motion by Deputy City Attorney Roger Hunt.

These trials involved charges of failure to supervise minor children lodged against Jettie Allen, 32, 430 E. Willamette St.; Tiny Kirven, 61, 725 E. Moreno St.; Elizabeth Crowe, 38, 508 E. High St., and Christine Hill, 35, 403 S. Institute St.

The complaining witness is Mrs. Barbara Sapp.

Charges of riotous conduct and breach of peace Jacque Eaton, 25, 416 N. 28th St., and Martha Powell, 28, 413 Glenview Ct., were dismissed on their mutual requests.

Also continued, until July 12, was the trial of Sam Durr, 37, 19 W. Costilla St., who is charged with disorderly conduct, riotous conduct and drunkenness.

Judge Asher found Robert Marks, 25, 115 E. Las Vegas St., guilty of riotous conduct and sentenced him to 10 days in city jail.

Billfold, Cash Taken From Purse Sunday

A billfold containing $50 in cash was taken from a woman's purse Sunday and a man was being held by police in connection with the theft.

Dorothy Kemp, 509 E. Moreno St., told police she had placed $50 in her billfold and gone to her sister's house, then returned later in the day. She said that she came home at 11:45 a.m. Sunday and shortly after she arrived a neighbor came to see her. She said the neighbor at this time asked to use the restroom, and it was during this time that the money was stolen, according to the report.

Mrs. Kemp said that on his way to the restroom, the neighbor had to pass by her purse, and he was the only one near her purse all day besides herself, according to the report.

Leonard L. Webster, 23, 507 E. Moreno St., was being held by police for investigation of grand larceny, police said.

When Law Is Not Attuned to Society Disobedience Follows, Speaker Says

When the law is not attuned to society, disobedience is inevitable, Dr. John W. Reed, dean of the University of Colorado Law School said here Monday night.

The dean spoke at the annual Law Day program, held this year at the Ent AFB Officer's Club, co-sponsored by the Armed Forces Judge Advocates of the local military establishments and the El Paso County Bar Association, and hosted by ARADCOM.

When law does not meet the needs of society and disobedience follows, the problem can not be remedied with slogans, he declared. Instead law must be made to fit the needs of th society.

He pointed to the 18th Amendment to the Constitution.

(It was proclaimed in effect on Jan. 16, 1920. It prohibited the sale, manufacture, transportation and importation or export of intoxicating liquor. It was never well obeyed by the public nor successfully enforced and was repealed by the 21st Amendment on Dec. 5, 1933.)

The dean said that he believed some of the general lawlessness of the 1920s could be attributed to the general disrespect the public had for the 18th Amendment.

"Disrespect for one law leads to disrespect for other laws," he declared.

Currently, he said, the most noticeable disrespect for law is in the Civil Rights movement. However, he added, there are other forms of disrespect for law that are not so well discussed these are, he said:

—Commercial and industrial bribery.

—Cheating on income tax returns.

— Cheating on expense accounts.

— Violations of traffic laws and game laws.

While disobedience to traffic laws may have dire consequences at once only for people injured in accidents, children who see their parents disobeying the law learn to disdain the law, Reed said.

America has had its share of law disobedience in its history, he said, pointing to various tax rebellions and the labor movement as other examples.

In a democracy, there is always conflict about the law, he stated.

"There is conflict between freedom and order, and between the individual and society," Reed said.

The dean said that at this time there is a mild resurgence of belief in natural law — the law that is believed to have been the law of God.

He said that people believing in the rights of man under natural law challenge the law of the land, believing it is their right obligation of a citizens to disobey.

However, Reed pointed out, the people who disobey the law also are prepared to accept the penalty.

He cited the theme of the day, "Uphold the Law — A Citizen's First Duty," then asked, "What difference is there between disobeying a traffic law or income tax law and disobeying other laws in the Civil Rights movement?"

The law should be worthy of respect, and when it is worthy, it will be respected, he explained.

Earlier in this century, lawyers, judges and law teachers considered law to be a closed system of reasoning, but when this philosophy failed to meet the needs it had to be changed, he explained.

Today, law in America is changing, with more emphasis on statutory law than on case (court decisions) law, the dean stated.

It became apparent, he said, that law was not a self-validating system, and what had been a rational procedure became false in the light of additional knowledge and a changing society.

Law is made for man and not man for law, he declared, and so the teachers of law have to go to the other intellectual disciplines in order to know how to teach law.

How law is taught in the law schools of today will be reflected in the law for the next 25 to 30 years as it is practiced and ruled by the lawyers and judges of the future, Reed said.

"Law is used now as an instrument of social engineering, to enhance the dignity of man," he declared.

He predicted that as law develops in the future to meet the needs of the citizen and society, obedience to the law will follow.

In a democracy, freedom and independence can only exist in a framework of law and order, but at the same time, there is a delicate balance and constant tension between law and order on one side and freedom and independence on the other.

The balance between those two forces is in the hands of the men of the bar (lawyers) and the bench (the judges), he said.

Springs Boys, Girls Plan For 'Y' Camp

Springs boys and girls are planning to attend two week sessions in either full time Camp Shady Brook or the Day Camp at Catamount through the YMCA. Many of these youngsters will pay part or all of the cost themselves through the sale of candy.

The candy sale officially began over the weekend. Boxes are clearly marked with the YMCA emblem. In recent weeks, the Y has received numerous calls from residents complaining that young people rave been selling candy for Y camp, prior to the official candy sale opening. Jack Phipps, camp director, emphasized that only candy in boxes marked with the Y emblem is being sold by prospective campers.

The candy sale was approved by the executive committee of the United Fund, whose members felt that the sale provided an acceptable means for boys and girls to earn part of their camp fees. While the general operation of the YMCA is partially underwritten by the United Fund, the camps are self supporting.

Youngsters from 6 to 10 years of age may participate in Catamount Day Camp this Summer during any of the following two week periods: June 21-July 2; July 6-17; July 19-30 and August 2-13. Full time Camp Shady Brook will have one camping session for girls 9 to 15 years of age from June 21-July 2. Boys may choose between three sessions: July 6-17; July 19-30, August 2-13.

The camp director is a professional YMCA youth worker with 16 years experience. He has a masters degree in group work. Both camps are staffed by a dedicated adult and college age staff.

Thousands Visit Canon City For Blossom Day Festival

The 27th annual Music and Blossom Festival held in Canon City last weekend atrracted thousands of persons to two parades and to a Sunday afternoon band show. The annual affair was sponsored by the Canon City Junior Chamber of Commerce, with Jim Hill as overall chairman.

The parades, held Saturday and Sunday afternoons, last for slightly more than one hour each day and included 17 visiting bands from Colorado and Kansas, ten floats from local organizations and several twirling groups, including Kenneth Burrett's Brigade from Colorado Springs.

The theme of the 1965 Music and Blossom Festival was "Ballads in Blossoms."

Winning the title of the best marching band in Class A was the best marching band in Class A was the Wellington High School Band from Wellington, Kan., directed by Wendell Mercer.

The best playing band title in Class A was won by Arvada High School, Arvada, Colorado, with Robert C. Hurrell as its director.

In Class B Del Norte High School band won both the marching and best playing title. The band is director by Wes Robbins.

First place winner among class A floats was the Beta Sigma Phi float, Gamma Epsilon Chapter. The float, "Apple Blossom Time," featured a rotating musical score of its theme.

Second place winner was Beta Sigma Phi, Exemplar Chapter with its float "The Old Mill Stream," highlighted by an old mill with a moving waterwheel.

Beta Zeta Chapter, Epsilon Sigma Alpha, won third place with its float, "Three Coins in a Fountain," with three young women sitting near a large, flowing fountain.

In Class B, the first place float was entered by the Rainbow Girls and DeMolay. The float, "Ballads in Blossoms," was constructed with multi-colored tissue and paper flowers with youngsters riding on it.

Second place was taken by the Talley-Ho 4-H Club with its float "Four Leaf Clover," depicting a scene with elves and two young lovers sitting under a toad stool, surrounded by four-leaf clovers.

Third place was won by the Colorado Hairdressers with the float "Swing in Spring." The white float featured a young woman riding on the front end of the tissue paper covered float with two small girls riding in back on a garden swing.

Special guests in the Sunday parade were Congressman Frank Evans, from Pueblo, and Bert Carroll, Colorado Jaycee President, from Craig. City officials rode in both parades.

Birds Shake Off Slump To Bury Miners, 15-0

TRINIDAD — Wasson's Thunderbirds, mired in a hitting slump for the past two weeks, found the cure here Monday afternoon as they erupted for 15 hits in pounding helpless Trinidad, 15-0, in a South Central League contest that had been postponed from an earlier date.

The win, the T-Birds' sixth in 10 SCL starts and their eighth in 13 games this season, was a welcome tonic after Saturday's disheartening 2-1 loss to rival Palmer, a blow that eliminated them from title contention in the conference.

This afternoon Wasson was to continue a busy baseball week in a 3:30 p.m. non-league contest at Boulder. Wednesday the Thunderbirds go to Denver to meet Denver League leader, Thomas Jefferson, in another non-conference battle. They then wind up their league schedule in contests with Pueblo south Saturday and Pueblo East next Tuesday.

Lanky Jim Krug, a junior righthander with fine promise, provided his mates with another masterful pitching performance Monday. It was the second straight shutout for the Wasson star, but Monday's was somewhat more relaxing than his previous effort which was a 1-0 squeeker over Pueblo Central.

Krug, who features a fine breaking pitch and excellent control, was brilliant against the Miners. He didn't issue a walk in recording his third straight victory, fanned 10, and allowed Trinidad just one hit over the first six innings. The Miners put three singles back-to-back in the seventh but Krug slammed the door before a run could cross the plate.

Offensively, it was Wasson's top show of the campaign and their most productive effort since the season opener against Centennial more than a month ago. The Thunderbirds raked three Trinidad pitchers for 15 hits, including three for extra bases, and had starter Frank DeBaca on the ropes before the first inning was over.

The attack was well-balanced as 12 of the 13 players employed by Coach Gib Funk got at least one safety. Jim Smith, the crack third-baseman who had been slump-ridden following a tremendous start this spring, snapped out of it with a pair of hits and two runs-batted-in. Both outfielder Steve Herzberg and Krug had two safe blows apiece also.

Smith led off the opening frame with a walk and Bill Knox followed with a double to deep left that scored the Wasson third-baseman. Herzberg then singled up the middle to drive in Knox. With two out the Birds opened fire again as first-time starter, Bob Brown, ripped a triple to send Herzberg home and Brian Clarke followed with a single that knocked in the fourth tally.

Wasson upped its lead to 6-0 in the third and then added four more in the sixth as Trinidad's defense began to spring the customary leaks. In the seventh DeBaca was replaced by Dave Gurule and Wasson promptly greeted him by blasting five more hits and sending in five runs before catcher Tom Lovell was summoned to the mound to douse the fire.

Class AA Crowns Nearing Owners

Palmer had the chance to clinch its first South Central League baseball championship since 1960 today against Pueblo Central, one of three teams around the state which can wrap up titles this afternoon.

Air Academy, with a share of the Will Rogers League crown assured, met second-place Harrison today. Aurora Central, undefeated kingpin of the Centennial League, needed a victory over sixth-place Littleton to take that title.

Academy's Kadets will meet the winner of the Southern League in a playoff game. That winner will play the South Central League champ May 15.

Aurora Central, should it win, will play the Southwestern League winner, as yet undetermined, on May 15. The Northern and Skyline champs will play in a game designated as No. 3 and Denver Prep League champs will meet the Jefferson County winners in Game No. 4. The Southern - South Central playoff is Game No. 2.

In the state meet at Colorado State College, winners of games one and four and winners of games two and three will face each other in the first round of the state tournament May 21.

The following day losers meet at 10:30 a.m. with the state championship game slated to start at 1 p.m.

The East Division will be comprised of Allentown, Pa.; Trenton and Camden, N.J.; Wilmington, Del., and New Haven. Johnstown, Sunbury, Wilkes-Barre, Scranton and Harrisburg, all Pennsylvania teams, will make up the West half.

Chance's Blister Hurts Sox More Than Pitcher's Finger

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dean Chance, his blistering fast ball getting the better of his blistering finger, doesn't need an understudy.

Chance, in fact, gave an award-winning performance Monday night while George Brunet waited in the wings as the Los Angeles Angels edged Boston 1-0.

The 23-year-old Chance pitched perfect ball for five innings and hitless ball for seven before winding up with a four-hitter for his second victory against no defeats.

Angels' Manager Bill Rigney apparently didn't expect his right-handed ace to put on such a show. Chance has been plagued this spring by a blister on the middle finger of his pitching hand, and Rigney had Brunet warming up for the first three innings.

But by the time the reliever reached the one-third mark of going the distance in the bullpen, it was evident the Red Sox might not make it much farther.

After the Ohio farmboy retired the first 15 Red Sox, Ed Bressoud led off the sixth inning with a grounder to first baseman Costen Shockley. Chance raced to cover first, but Shockley's throw was wide.

Six consecutive outs later, former teammate Lee Thomas started the eighth with a line single to right field, breaking up Chance's bid for a no-hitter.

The victory, in which he reduced his earned run average from 3.27 to 2.32, kept Chance exactly even with the 1964 pace that carried him to a 20-9 record and the Cy Young award as the majors' best pitcher. He brought his record to 2-0 on May 3 last season, too.

He is ahead of his 1964 showing in one department, though. He started on the way to tying the major league record of winning five 1-0 games on June 2. That's a month away, and already he is one-fifth of the way to the record again.

In the only other games played, Kansas City defeated Washington 5-3 in the American League and St. Louis stopped San Francisco 3-1 in the National.

The Angels' scored their lone run with the help of an error in the third inning. Jose Cardenal led off with a single and raced all the way home when center fielder Lenny Green let Albi Pearson's single get by him for an error.

Successive home runs by Nellie Mathews and Ken Harrelson off Pete Richert in the second inning started Kansas City on its way. The Senators' Ken McMullen gave the Athletics two runs on his bases-loaded error in the fourth but then drove in two himself with a homer and a single.

Curt Simmons pitched a five-hitter, allowing the Giants only Willie Mays' sixth homer in the ninth. The Cardinals scored twice in the sixth on consecutive singles by Tito Francona, Ken Boyer, Bill White and Phil Gagliano before Tim McCarver bounced into the season's second triple play.

Pitcher Ron Herbel took McCarver's tap back to the mound and threw to Jose Pagan for the force on Gagliano at second. Pagan's relay to Willie McCovey nailed McCarver at first, and McCovey completed the play by firing to catcher Tom Haller for the out on White, trying to score from second.

Falcons Face Busy Schedule Against Region's Top Teams

The busiest week of the season and a severe test for the rather thin pitching staff looms for Coach Connie Sparks' tough-luck Air Force Academy baseball team with four games coming up in the next five days.

Wednesday afternoon the tight schedule starts for the Falcons with a 3 p.m. game against Colorado State College, champion of the Rocky Mountain Conference; then Thursday at the same time it's Denver University's regional leaders this season; Saturday the AFA plays Colorado State University and Wyoming rounds out the week this Sunday. The Wednesday and Thursday tilts are home games at the Academy, with the weekend contests on the road.

Last Saturday the Falcons saw their record drop to 6-10 for the season as Brigham Young took a double-header win from the Air Force by identical scores of 5-4. In the extra inning opener, the Cougars pushed across the winning run with none out in the bottom of the 12th. In the seven inning nitecap, BYU managed two runs in the last of the seventh for the victory.

Junior pitcher Bob Guido shouldered both of the losses. He relieved starter Al McClure in the 10th inning of the first game, but yielded the winning run in the 12th on a double and two consecutive singles.

In the second game, Guido came on in the seventh after the first two BYU batters singled to open the frame. The next batter was safe on a perfect bunt, and Guido walked in the winning run.

The Falcons collected 23 hits off Brigham Young pitching, and pulled off four double plays in a near perfect fielding exhibition. However, the Cadet mound corps allowed 16 walks in the two games which kept them in hot water throughout. Tipp Simpson, a hustling outfielder from [illegible], Mo., led the Falcons at the plate with a five-for-nine performance, including a home run in the first game.

This week's meeting with Colorado State College will be the second of the season with the Bears, with the Air Force taking an 8-7 win in the first game two weeks ago at Greeley.

Thursday's tilt was originally scheduled for last week, but was postponed because of rain. Denver's Pioneers have shellacked the Cadets twice in previous meetings this season. The Air Force has downed Colorado State U. twice this year, and Sunday's Wyoming encounter will be the first of the season with the Cowboys.

Sparks will receive a boost this week with the addition of three players who have missed nearly all games this season due to spring football. They are outfielders Paul Stein and John Ondrejko, and pitcher Jim Hogarty.

Stein has played in only the season opening double-header with New Mexico and collected five hits in 10 trips to the plate. Onkrejko has played in four games, but has yet to hit up to his ability. Hogarty, a fire-balling right hander from Mt. Prospect, Ill., has yet to allow an earned run in two brief appearances.

Hogarty's return to the diamond squad should alleviate some of the pitching problems. Sparks indicated he would see duty as a starter in at least one game this week, although the coach was undecided on his pitching rotation at this time. Hogarty will join McClure and Bill Landes as a starter, with Guido in relief.

Stanford Ranks Tops in National Baseball Poll

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — College baseball, involved in one of its wildest seasons in history, played musical chairs in the latest national rankings with the Stanford Indians moving to the top and Arizona State University, leader for the last two polls, falling all the way to ninth place.

Stanford, 25-8, current leader in the strong California Intercollegiate Baseball Association, moved to the No. 1 position by continuing its pace-setting ways in the West Coast scramble.

Never before has the college baseball picture been so scrambled in all eight NCAA districts of the nation.

Arizona State, sailing along smoothly as No. 1 two weeks ago, was upended by Rival Arizona in a three-game series, then fell once more to New Mexico to drop from its lofty perch.

Stanford's rival for the CIBA title, USC, 27-6, was ranked second in the current poll conducted by the newspaper, Collegiate Baseball.

Bob Hays Files For Full Pardon

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Bob Hayes, the fastest human in the world, has filed for a full pardon of his conviction on a robbery charge.

The Olympic gold medal winner who holds the 100-yard dash world record of 9.1 seconds, was placed on 10 years probation in 1960 after pleading guilty to charges that he and a companion stole two wallets and two pieces of chewing gum.

Hayes, a senior at Florida A and M University, has signed a professional football contract with the Dallas Cowboys of the American League.

The petition for a complete pardon was filed sometime ago and will come up for hearing at pardon board.

Jack Gaither, A & M coach, said Hayes "has been completely rehabilitated and has abided fully by his terms of probation for over four years."

Broadmoor Memories

For the thousands who yearly register for a round of pleasure on the finely manicured course, or torture from the yawning sand traps and conjuring greens (as the skills in each case may be), the scene around the Broadmoor Golf Club will be changed considerably this summer.

Jim Baird, who has held the multi-purpose position of confessor to those who needed a broad shoulder to cry on after a disasterous day, steadfast keeper of the rules and regulations, official historian of the club, general supervisor of all activities in the area, and even zoologist at times, has announced he will retire in June.

Those who invite the frustrations inherit to the game of golf will naturally miss that silver-thatched gent who has surveyed events, big and small, at the Broadmoor for the past 33 years. Jim Baird has become just as much a landmark at the famous course as the tree-lined fairways and the backdrop of Cheyenne Montain.

Knowing he had stored many memories in that time, I stole a few of his busy moments the other day to chat about incidents and observations of the past. Quite modestly, Jim felt his role in the growth and prestige of the Broadmoor was minor, but there are many of us who have worked closely with the club that think differently.

Here's at least part of his story . . .

When Beard first came to the Broadmoor's golf club in 1932, it was a far different scene. There were 18 holes on which to play (currently there are 27 and by the end of the summer 36) but most of the large trees were less than head-high. For those familiar with the area, the huge pines near No. 1 tee could be measured with an out-stretched hand.

Jim recalled that before coming across town, he first worked behind the front desk at Patty Jewett, which had been purchased from the Colorado Springs Country Club and named as a memorial to the late Patty Jewett.

The course at Jewett was one of the very first in the state and even in the west, but was not the original layout in this area, according to Baird. The first was the Cheyenne Mountain Country Club in the Broadmoor district. And even at the turn of the century golf must have been considered a "rich man's game." The Cheyenne course had yearly dues of one buck . . . but members all had to work on the grounds with labor such as replacing the tin can cups used on the greens.

At least a half-dozen pros have set up residence at the Broadmoor in the last 30 years or so, and Baird has recollection of them all.

The first he knew was Jimmy Thompson, who has been fabled by old timers of the region both for his flamboyant way of life and his ability to let the ball fly off the driving tee. The story goes that Broadmoor founder Spencer Penrose was not too much a golf enthusiast, but he liked a round now and then with Thompson just to see those booming drives.

Baird related that the greens keeper at that time even was instructed to trim the tops off the towering cottonwood that guards the dogleg at the lake on the 18th. That was so Thompson could cut the corner and maintain the renown of being able to reach every green on the course with his drive.

"I've seen him drive every one," Baird said. "But I've also seen Thompson reach the first green . . . and then take four putts. Thompson wasn't the best teacher we've had, but it was quite a show to see him on the tee."

Of course, the late "Big Ed" Dudley was one of Baird's favorites among the professionals at the Broadmoor. Dudley was not only a legend in the game, but was a friend to everyone he met. Dudley came here in 1940 and remained until his death year before last.

One of the little-known facts about Dudley was told by his former co-worker, Baird. That was, "Big Ed" sponsored the great Babe Zaharias when she first started on the pro golf tour for women.

"The Babe had just been the big star of the Olympics and everyone around wanted to see her perform," Baird said. "She had moved to Denver after marrying George Zaharias, one of the four wrestling brothers, but had been playing golf for only a couple of years before invited to the Broadmoor tournament in 1945.

"She won the first two times she entered," Jim said, "and we knew she probably would win again in '47. Well, it's the custom in a lot of amateur tournaments for the trophy to go to anyone that wins three times. But the tournament here was never set up that way."

He explained that the silver trophy for the Women's Invitational was not of as great a value as many at the Broadmoor's Golf Club, being a silver plate instead of solid, but it is an antique and was given out of her collection by Mrs. Julie Penrose. So it was natural they didn't want to part with the cup, no matter how many times an individual won.

"We tried to tell The Babe about this, but she had her mind set on getting it. So when she won for a third time, she took the cup in her arms. I asked Mr. Maytag (tournament chairman) if he could get it

Birds Shake Off Slump To Bury Miners, 15-0

TRINIDAD — Wasson's Thunderbirds, mired in a hitting slump for the past two weeks, found the cure here Monday afternoon as they erupted for 15 hits in pounding helpless Trinidad, 15-0, in a South Central League contest that had been postponed from an earlier date.

The win, the T-Birds' sixth in 10 SCL starts and their eighth in 13 games this season, was a welcome tonic after Saturday's disheartening 2-1 loss to rival Palmer, a blow that eliminated them from title contention in the conference.

This afternoon Wasson was to continue a busy baseball week in a 3:30 p.m. non-league contest at Boulder. Wednesday the Thunderbirds go to Denver to meet Denver League leader, Thomas Jefferson, in another non-conference battle. They then wind up their league schedule in contests with Pueblo south Saturday and Pueblo East next Tuesday.

Lanky Jim Krug, a junior righthander with fine promise, provided his mates with another masterful pitching performance Monday. It was the second straight shutout for the Wasson star, but Monday's was somewhat more relaxing than his previous effort which was a 1-0 squeeker over Pueblo Central.

Krug, who features a fine breaking pitch and excellent control, was brilliant against the Miners. He didn't issue a walk in recording his third straight victory, fanned 10, and allowed Trinidad just one hit over the first six innings. The Miners put three singles back-to-back in the seventh but Krug slammed the door before a run could cross the plate.

Offensively, it was Wasson's top show of the campaign and their most productive effort since the season opener against Centennial more than a month ago. The Thunderbirds raked three Trinidad pitchers for 15 hits, including three for extra bases, and had starter Frank DeBaca on the ropes before the first inning was over.

The attack was well-balanced as 12 of the 13 players employed by Coach Gib Funk got at least one safety. Jim Smith, the crack third-baseman who had been slump-ridden following a tremendous start this spring, snapped out of it with a pair of hits and two runs-batted-in. Both outfielder Steve Herzberg and Krug had two safe blows apiece also.

Smith led off the opening frame with a walk and Bill Knox followed with a double to deep left that scored the Wasson third-baseman. Herzberg then singled up the middle to drive in Knox. With two out the Birds opened fire again as first-time starter, Bob Brown, ripped a triple to send Herzberg home and Brian Clarke followed with a single that knocked in the fourth tally.

Wasson upped its lead to 6-0 in the third and then added four more in the sixth as Trinidad's defense began to spring the customary leaks. In the seventh DeBaca was replaced by Dave Gurule and Wasson promptly greeted him by blasting five more hits and sending in five runs before catcher Tom Lovell was summoned to the mound to douse the fire.

Chance's Blister Hurts Sox More Than Pitcher's Finger

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dean Chance, his blistering fast ball getting the better of his blistering finger, doesn't need an understudy.

Chance, in fact, gave an award-winning performance Monday night while George Brunet waited in the wings as the Los Angeles Angels edged Boston 1-0.

The 23-year-old Chance pitched perfect ball for five innings and hitless ball for seven before winding up with a four-hitter for his second victory against no defeats.

Angels' Manager Bill Rigney apparently didn't expect his right-handed ace to put on such a show. Chance has been plagued this spring by a blister on the middle finger of his pitching hand, and Rigney had Brunet warming up for the first three innings.

But by the time the reliever reached the one-third mark of going the distance in the bullpen, it was evident the Red Sox might not make it much further.

After the Ohio farmboy retired the first 15 Red Sox, Ed Bressoud led off the sixth inning with a grounder to first baseman Costen Shockley. Chance raced to cover first, but Shockley's throw was wide.

Six consecutive outs later, former teammate Lee Thomas started the eighth with a line single to right field, breaking up Chance's bid for a no-hitter.

The victory, in which he reduced his earned run average from 3.27 to 2.32, kept Chance exactly even with the 1964 pace that carried him to a 20-9 record and the Cy Young award as the majors' best pitcher. He brought his record to 2-0 on May 3 last season, too.

He is ahead of his 1964 showing in one department, though. He started on the way to tying the major league record of winning five 1-0 games on June 2. That's a month away, and already he is one-fifth of the way to the record again.

In the only other games played, Kansas City defeated Washington 5-3 in the American League and St. Louis stopped San Francisco 3-1 in the National.

The Angels' scored their lone run with the help of an error in the third inning. Jose Cardenal led off with a single and raced all the way home when center fielder Lenny Green let Albi Pearson's single get by him for an error.

Successive home runs by Nellie Mathews and Ken Harrelson off Pete Richert in the second inning started Kansas City on its way. The Senators' Ken McMullen gave the Athletics two runs on his bases-loaded error in the fourth but then drove in two himself with a homer and a single.

Curt Simmons pitched a five-hitter, allowing the Giants only Willie Mays' sixth homer in the ninth. The Cardinals scored twice in the sixth on consecutive singles by Tito Francona, Ken Boyer, Bill White and Phil Gagliano before Tim McCarver bounced into the season's second triple play.

Pitcher Ron Herbel took McCarver's tap back to the mound and threw to Jose Pagan for the force on Gagliano at second. Pagan's relay to Willie McCovey nailed McCarver at first, and McCovey completed the play by firing to catcher Tom Haller for the out on White, trying to score from second.

Falcons Face Busy Schedule Against Region's Top Teams

The busiest week of the season and a severe test for the rather thin pitching staff looms for Coach Connie Sparks' tough-luck Air Force Academy baseball team with four games coming up in the next five days.

Wednesday afternoon the tight schedule starts for the Falcons with a 3 p.m. game against Colorado State College, champion of the Rocky Mountain Conference; then Thursday at the same time it's Denver University's regional leaders this season; Saturday the AFA plays Colorado State University and Wyoming rounds out the week this Sunday. The Wednesday and Thursday tilts are home games at the Academy, with the weekend contests on the road.

Last Saturday the Falcons saw their record drop to 6-10 for the season as Brigham Young took a double-header win from the Air Force by identical scores of 5-4. In the extra inning opener, the Cougars pushed across the winning run with none out in the bottom of the 12th. In the seven inning nitecap, BYU managed two runs in the last of the seventh for the victory.

Junior pitcher Bob Guido shouldered both of the losses. He relieved starter Al McClure in the 10th inning of the first game, but yielded the winning run in the 12th on a double and two consecutive singles.

In the second game, Guido came on in the seventh after the first two BYU batters singled to open the frame. The next batter was safe on a perfect bunt, and Guido walked in the winning run.

The Falcons collected 23 hits off Brigham Young pitching, and pulled off four double plays in a near perfect fielding exhibition. However, the Cadet mound corps allowed 16 walks in the two games which kept them in hot water throughout. Tipp Simpson, a hustling outfielder from Holtville, Mo., led the Falcons at the plate with a five-for-nine performance, including a home run in the first game.

This week's meeting with Colorado State College will be the second of the season with the Bears, with the Air Force taking an 8-7 win in the first game two weeks ago at Greeley.

Thursday's tilt was originally scheduled for last week, but was postponed because of rain. Denver's Pioneers have shellacked the Cadets twice in previous meetings this season. The Air Force has downed Colorado State U. twice this year, and Sunday's Wyoming encounter will be the first of the season with the Cowboys.

Sparks will receive a boost this week with the addition of three players who have missed nearly all games this season due to spring football. They are outfielders Paul Stein and John Ondrejko, and pitcher Jim Hogarty.

Stein has played in only the season opening double-header with New Mexico and collected five hits in 10 trips to the plate. Onkrejko has played in four games, but has yet to hit up to his ability. Hogarty, a fire-balling right hander from Mt. Prospect, Ill., has yet to allow an earned run in two brief appearances.

Hogarty's return to the diamond squad should alleviate some of the pitching problems. Sparks indicated he would see duty as a starter in at least one game this week, although the coach was undecided on his pitching rotation at this time. Hogarty will join McClure and Bill Landes as a starter, with Guido in relief.

Stanford Ranks Tops in National Baseball Poll

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — College baseball, involved in one of its wildest seasons in history, played musical chairs in the latest national rankings with the Stanford Indians moving to the top and Arizona State University, leader for the last two polls, falling all the way to ninth place.

Stanford, 25-8, current leader in the strong California Intercollegiate Baseball Association, moved to the No. 1 position by continuing its pace-setting ways in the West Coast scramble.

Never before has the college baseball picture been so scrambled in all eight NCAA districts of the nation.

Arizona State, sailing along smoothly as No. 1 two weeks ago, was upended by Rival Arizona in a three-game series, then fell once more to New Mexico to drop from its lofty perch.

Stanford's rival for the CIBA title, USC, 27-9, was ranked second in the current poll conducted by the newspaper, Collegiate Baseball.

Arizona, 35-9 moved up a notch from fourth to third by taking two out of three from Arizona State.

Texas, 17-4, needing only one victory this weekend in a two-game set against arch-rival Texas A&M to win the Southwest Conference title, was No. 4 while Washington State, winner of 21 of its first 24 games, was ranked No. 5.

Rounding out the top 10 were: 6, Florida State, 17-6. 7, Auburn, 13-5. 8, Holy Cross, 5-0. 9, Arizona State, 36-6. 10, Michigan, which owned a surprising 6-0 Big Ten conference record after two weeks of action.

Here is how the top clubs were ranked in the fourth poll of the season (first place votes in parenthesis and total points, scoring on 10-9-8 etc. basis):

Bob Hays Files For Full Pardon

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Bob Hayes, the fastest human in the world, has filed for a full pardon of his conviction on a robbery charge.

The Olympic gold medal winner who holds the 100-yard dash world record of 9.1 seconds, was placed on 10 years probation in 1960 after pleading guilty to charges that he and a companion stole two wallets and two pieces of chewing gum.

Hayes, a senior at Florida A and M University, has signed a professional football contract with the Dallas Cowboys of the American League.

The petition for a complete pardon was filed sometime ago and will come up for hearing at pardon board.

Jack Gaither, A & M coach, said Hayes "has been completely rehabilitated and has abided fully by his terms of probatio for over four years."

Broadmoor Memories

For the thousands who yearly register for a round of pleasure on the finely manicured course, or torture from the yawning sand traps and conjuring greens (as the skills in each case may be), the scene around the Broadmoor Golf Club will be changed considerably this summer.

Jim Baird, who has held the multi-purpose position of confessor to those who needed a broad shoulder to cry on after a disasterous day, steadfast keeper of the rules and regulations, official historian of the club, general supervisor of all activities in the area, and even zoologist at times, has announced he will retire in June.

Those who invite the frustrations inherit to the game of golf will naturally miss that silver-thatched gent who has surveyed events, big and small, at the Broadmoor for the past 33 years. Jim Baird has become just as much a landmark at the famous course as the tree-lined fairways and the backdrop of Cheyenne Montain.

Knowing he had stored many memories in that time, I stole a few of his busy moments the other day to chat about incidents and observations of the past. Quite modestly, Jim felt his role in the growth and prestige of the Broadmoor was minor, but there are many of us who have worked closely with the club that think differently.

Here's at least part of his story . . .

When Beard first came to the Broadmoor's golf club in 1932, it was a far different scene. There were 18 holes on which to play (currently there are 27 and by the end of the summer 36) but most of the large trees were less than head-high. For those familiar with the area, the huge pines near No. 1 tee could be measured with an out-stretched hand.

Jim recalled that before coming across town, he first worked behind the front desk at Patty Jewett, which had been purchased from the Colorado Springs Country Club and named as a memorial to the late Patty Jewett.

The course at Jewett was one of the very first in the state and even in the west, but was not the original layout in this area, according to Baird. The first was the Cheyenne Mountain Country Club in the Broadmoor district. And even at the turn of the century golf must have been considered a "rich man's game." The Cheyenne course had yearly dues of one buck . . . but members all had to work on the grounds with labor such as replacing the tin can cups used on the greens.

At least a half-dozen pros have set up residence at the Broadmoor in the last 30 years or so, and Baird has recollection of them all.

The first he knew was Jimmy Thompson, who has been fabled by old timers of the region both for his flamboyant way of life and his ability to let the ball fly off the driving tee. The story goes that Broadmoor founder Spencer Penrose was not too much a golf enthusiast, but he liked a round now and then with Thompson just to see those booming drives.

Baird related that the greens keeper at that time even was instructed to trim the tops off the towering cottonwood that guards the dogleg at the lake on the 18th. That was so Thompson could cut the corner and maintain the renown of being able to reach every green on the course with his drive.

"I've seen him drive every one," Baird said. "But I've also seen Thompson reach the first green . . . and then take four putts. Thompson wasn't the best teacher we've had, but it was quite a show to see him on the tee."

Of course, the late "Big Ed" Dudley was one of Baird's favorites among the professionals at the Broadmoor. Dudley was not only a legend in the game, but was a friend to everyone he met. Dudley came here in 1940 and remained until his death year before last.

One of the little-known facts about Dudley was told by his former co-worker, Baird. That was, "Big Ed" sponsored the great Babe Zaharias when she first started on the pro golf tour for women.

"The Babe had just been the big star of the Olympics and everyone around wanted to see her perform," Baird said. "She had moved to Denver after marrying George Zaharias, one of the four wrestling brothers, but had been playing golf for only a couple of years before invited to the Broadmoor tournament in 1945.

"She won the first two times she entered," Jim said, "and we knew she probably would win again in '47. Well, it's the custom in a lot of amateur tournaments for the trophy to go to anyone that wins three times. But the tournament here was never set up that way."

He explained that the silver trophy for the Women's Invitational was not of as great a value as many at the Broadmoor's Golf Club, being a silver plate instead of solid, but it is an antique and was given out of her collection by Mrs. Julie Penrose. So it was natural they didn't want to part with the cup, no matter how many times an individual won.

"We tried to tell The Babe about this, but she had her mind set on getting it. So when she won for a third time, she took the cup in her arms. I asked Mr. Maytag (tournament chairman) if he could get

'Uranium' Sets Pace At Meadows

A herd of nearly 30 horses entered workouts on the track at Pikes Peak Meadows, Monday, as the season's opening day draws near. The new thoroughbred track is scheduled to open this Friday afternoon with the inaugural race set for 2:30 p.m., and an identical starting time slated for this Saturday.

Uranium Ray set the pace for the sprint three furlongs distance on Monday with a time of 35.4 seconds, followed by Chrip at 36 flat and Polly's Doll at 36.2 seconds.

At the longer four furlongs, Julie's Chance was fastest across the line with a 49.3 timing, closely followed by Dawes Fancy and Desperato both with 51 flat. And at five furlongs, the best time was recorded by Doc Blue at 1:05.1, with Flag Senator in at 1:06.1 and I'll Khall at 1:06.3.

Workouts will continue daily at the newly constructed oval, located midway between Colorado Springs and Pueblo just off Highway 85-87.

back, and he said he 'wasn't about to wrestle her for it."

"We had a replica made for $400 and I took it to Denver to try and make a trade for the original trophy," Baird continued. "And when I got to the Zaharias home I was shown into a back room where there was a bunch of big bruisers sitting around playing pitch.

"Her husband had wanted a membership in the club for a long time, but the list was closed. Anyway, I told him I would see what I could do about that and finally got my hands on the trophy and ran. Later, when he came to the Broadmoor, I said it was out of my hands as far as the membership was concerned, and that was that.

This incident was just one of the perils Baird has gone through as manager of the club house, but although Babe Zaharias was a colorful gal, there were others who have caused him more headaches.

"Actually, The Babe was pretty nice to chat with," Baird said. "She was more used to playing against men than women, but seldom did you hear any curse words when with the gals."

The retiring manager said he has had more trouble from visiting guests who didn't like something or other. He recalled one time when he was called on the carpet by a complaint from a lady who didn't like to see the ducks' wings clipped.

"We had to keep the ducks away from the swimming pool for obvious reasons and the only way was to take them to a lake up on the course and clip their wings. I tried to explain this to her, but it didn't do much good."

At the Broadmoor, they must also contend with deer from the nearby hills marking the greens with their feet, and various other wildlife that like to call the course home.

Among opinions formed in over 30 years close to the game . . .

Baird would like to see a rule that prohibits comment of caddies to players on the course . . . they should just carry bags. He feels it unfair to draw an experienced caddy in tournament play and help direct a player to a championship while others must be content with a beginner. When he was at Patty Jewett, caddy fee was 35 cents and there were over 100 in the pool, and for a long while it was a flat $1 at the Broadmoor for a caddy.

He also thinks that medal (stroke) play is the best test of golf skill. Baird pointed to the fact that a player can still come back after one bad round and make up for it. In match play, a bad round usually means elimination, but not so in stroke. From the spectator standpoint for all but national amateur tournaments, he thinks match is easier to follow.

Baird has heard much clubhouse comment about the old timers being better than the current crop. However, he feels that golf is no longer an "old man's game" and that the young players hit the ball better on the whole. He also thinks golfers of yesteryear might have played better with today's equipment and facilities. But because there is more opportunity to play than 30 years ago, there are more top flight players than ever before.

Palmer Golfers Cop City League Crown

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Quips from the players brightened an otherwise miserable day, scoring-wise, Monday as Palmer captured its second straight city golf league championship over the wind-brushed Eisenhower Golf Course.

Scores ranged from a trio of 42s into the mid-70s for nine holes over the tough Air Force Academy layout, but it didn't thwart the sense of humor of the prep players.

One linkster, who had sent his tee shots behind trees all afternoon, drove his shot off No. 9 behind another stack of lumber and said, "If it's behind a tree, it's me." He then proceeded to ricochet the ball off the tree, almost losing some skin in the process.

Another shooter was asked by his coach what he shot. The player replied that it was too horrible to mention.

"Everyone is shooting badly," the coach encouraged. "How did you do?"

"Worse," groaned the youngster.

But the classic came from somewhere in the middle of the ninth fairway. A golfer had drilled beautiful second shot just short of the clipped grass. The ball cut through the middle of the pear-shaped green, then hopped past to the rear.

From the pastureland, some 250 yards distant and perfectly audible, came the mournful lament — "Holy Cow!"

Mike Johnston of Wasson missed sole honors for the final round medalist when a 15-foot putt on the final hole hung on the lip of the cup and refused to drop. That dropped the T-Bird linkster into a tie with Palmer's Greg Nelson and Mark Weatherwax, each of whom had 42s.

Nelson came away with overall honors, totaling 158 for the four nine-hole rounds. Teammate Weatherwax followed at 164 and Terror Don Astley came in third at 165.

Palmer's 662 was 41 strokes better than second-place Wasson, which gained the runner-up spot by five strokes over Cheyenne Mountain, Cheyenne was in second by 21 strokes going into the final round.

The district meet, including Palmer, Wasson, the Will Rogers League schools and Grand Junction, will be held May 7 at Kissing Camels Course. The state meet will be held May 14-15 at Patty Jewett Course.

Writers Name Hogan Greatest All-Time Golfer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ben Hogan has been named the greatest professional golfer of all-time in a poll of the nation's golf writers and sports editors.

The Wee Ice Mon of Fort Worth, Tex., four-time winner of the National Open, beat out Arnold Palmer in a commercially conducted vote which had the sanction of the Professional Golders Association.

On the basis of three points for a first place vote, two for second and one for third, Hogan received 684 points compared with 398 for Palmer. The Texan got 160 votes for first place, Palmer received 55 as did Walter Hagen, who took third wtih 371.

Bob Jones was not included because his achievements were gained as an amateur. The poll was taken before Jack Nicklaus' sensational triumph in the 1965 Masters Tournament.

Sam Snead finished fourth with 232 points and Byron Nelson fifth with 126.

Hogan, now 52, was the PGA top money winner five times and was named Golfer of the Year four times. He won the U.S. Open four times, the Masters and PGA twice each and the British Open the only time he played in the event.

An award will be made to Hogan next Sunday at closing ceremonies of the Colonial Invitation Tournament at Fort Worth.

State Tourney Shake-Up

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Richard M. Smith, a full-time detective with the Colorado Springs police department and a part-time bowler, turned the 14th annual Colorado State Bowling Association tournament upside down in the next-to-last weekend of an eight-week stand.

State Tourney Leader

Smith fired a 704 scratch set last weekend at Broadway Bowl in Littleton to lead the scratch singles division. Smith also turned in a high game. He came close to beating the 1,500,000-to-one odds of posting a perfect "300" game when he left the four pin standing in the first frame but went on to register a 290 tally.

Smith put together games of 183-290-231 for the 704 scratch series and with his handicap pins he recorded a 752 set to take second place in the handicap singles division; five pins behind the leader Richard Wood of Denver.

This was the first time Smith competed in the state tournament. He has been competing in league bowling since 1958.

The only other Colorado Springs keglers who are ranking ade Tom Varnell and Ted Pietrowski, who are lodged in third place in the doubles division with 1319.

TOP AREA SCORES — With the local bowling season coming to a close within the next two weeks, the Colorado Springs area keglers have managed to continue above-par scoring.

Smith's 704 scratch series in the way last week with Jim Pee turning in a 690 three-game set at Circle Lanes while Ethel Kalow rolled a 644 series paced by a 278 single scratch game.

In the singles division, Don Begola of Ft. Carson turned in a 1242, followed by Edwin Westmoreland with 1194, Ken Hamel with 1128, and Neil Grufman with 1100.

The duo of Jerry Hale and Begola fired a 2323 while Doug Deane and Westmoreland were second with 2288. Grufman and Harry Lentz turned in the third highest score with 2137 followed by Dennie Stephens and Dennis Englert with 2091.

Indians Defeat Padres To Increase Loop Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Indianapolis Indians shut out San Diego 1-0 Monday night and scored their sixth straight Pacific Coast League baseball victory to tighten their grip on the circuit's Eastern Division lead.

Indian pitcher Bill Fischer held the Padres to five scattered hits for his first victory of the season. The lone run of the game was scored on catcher Bill Heath's triple in the fourth inning, giving Indianapolis a 13-4 record for the season.

Oklahoma City, riding on top of the division until last weekend, slipped 1½ games behind Indianapolis by dropping a 6-1 decision to the Denver Bears.

It was the second triumph for Denver's Dwight Siebler, plagued with arm trouble earlier. Siebler held the Oklahomans to four hits while his teammates batted safely a dozen times and scored five runs in the first three innings.

Portland's Western Division leaders came out on top of another 1-0 shutout over Tacoma behind the two-hit pitching of Steve Hargan.

The Beavers scored the winning run in the first inning on a single by Bubba Morton and a double by Tony Curry. Hargan now has a 3-0 season record.

The Vancouver-Hawaii game was rained out. No other games were scheduled.

Knicks Lose Princeton Star To Oxford, Law Career

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association will hold its annual draft session Thursday and the territorial choice of the forlorn New York Knicks undoubtedly will be Bill Bradley. But there's no good news in sight for the Knicks and the NBA today. Bradley won't play with the pros.

"I am leaving for England on Oct. 1," said Bradley, Princeton's two-time All-America who enters Oxford University for a two-year stay as a Rhodes Scholar.

Asked about rumors circulating that he had been offered $100,000 by the Knicks, the outstanding college player of the 1964-65 season said "that's not so. I haven't received such an offer, but it wouldn't make any difference.

"I intend to study for two years at Oxford. At the moment I intend to go into law after that."

Was there a chance he might play pro ball after he was through with Oxford?

"I can't say," he replied. "Right now I expect to go into law."

The remote possibility that he could change his mind in a couple of years is the reason the Knicks will use up their territorial choice Thursday.

"If we didn't," Knicks General Manager Ed Donovan said Monday, "you know what would happen. He'd be picked by someone else, then he would get married and not go to Oxford."

"Bradley would be a star in the NBA right now," commented Coach Red Auerbach of the champion Boston Celtics when he watched Bradley receive an award as the outstanding college basketball player of 1964 Monday night.

The 6-foot-5 Bradley was one of the 34 award winners at the second annual dinner of the National Academy of Sports. Auerbach accepted one for the Celtics and Bill Russell got another as the outstanding NBA player of the 1964-65 season.

But the leading trophy collectors were Olympic swimming stars Don Schollander and Donna de Varona. They each received three.

Schollander, winner of four gold medals at the Tokyo Olympics, received three Academy Stars as the outstanding male amateur athlete, male Olympian and male swimmer. Miss de Varona, winner of two Olympic gold medals last year, collected the female awards in the same three categories.

Winners of other major awards announced at the dinner were Jimmy Brown of the Cleveland Browns as pro athlete of the year and as the No. 1 player in the Eastern Conference of the National Football League; the U.S. Olympic swimming team as team of the year; the St. Louis Cardinals, winners of the World Series, as pro team of the year, and the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo as the sports event of the year.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee accepted the award on behalf of Tokyo.

President Johnson congratulated the athletes in a message read by Stan Musial, vice-president of the Cardinals.

'Uranium' Sets Pace At Meadows

A herd of nearly 30 horses entered workouts on the track at Pikes Peak Meadows, Monday, as the season's opening day draws near. The new thoroughbred track is scheduled to open this Friday afternoon with the inaugural race set for 2:30 p.m., and an identical starting time slated for this Saturday.

Uranium Ray set the pace for the sprint three furlongs distance on Monday with a time of 35.4 seconds, followed by Chrip at 36 flat and Polly's Doll at 36.2 seconds.

At the longer four furlongs, Julie's Chance was fastest across the line with a 49.3 timing, closely followed by Dawes Fancy and Desperato both with 51 flat. And at five furlongs, the best time was recorded by Doc Blue at 1:05.1, with Flag Senator in at 1:06.1 and I'll Khall at 1:06.3.

Workouts will continue daily at the newly constructed oval, located midway between Colorado Springs and Pueblo just off Highway 85-87.

back, and he said he 'wasn't about to wrestle her for it."

"We had a replica made for $480 and I took it to Denver to try and make a trade for the original trophy," Baird continued. "And when I got to the Zaharias home I was shown into a back room where there was a bunch of big bruisers sitting around playing pitch.

"Her husband had wanted a membership in the club for a long time, but the list was closed. Anyway, I told him I would see what I could do about that and finally got my hands on the trophy and ran. Later, when he came to the Broadmoor, I said it was out of my hands as far as the membership was concerned, and that was that.

This incident was just one of the perils Baird has gone through as manager of the club house, but although Babe Zaharias was a colorful gal, there were others who have caused him more headaches.

"Actually, The Babe was pretty nice to chat with," Baird said. "She was more used to playing against men than women, but seldom did you hear any curse words when with the gals."

The retiring manager said he has had more trouble from visiting guests who didn't like something or other. He recalled one time when he was called on the carpet by a complaint from a lady who didn't like to see the ducks' wings clipped.

"We had to keep the ducks away from the swimming pool for obvious reasons and the only way was to take them to a lake up on the course and clip their wings. I tried to explain this to her, but it didn't do much good."

At the Broadmoor, they must also contend with deer from the nearby hills marking the greens with their feet, and various other wildlife that like to call the course home.

Among opinions formed in over 30 years close to the game . . .

Baird would like to see a rule that prohibits comment of caddies to players on the course . . . they should just carry bags. He feels it unfair to draw an experienced caddy in tournament play and help direct a player to a championship while others must be content with a beginner. When he was at Patty Jewett, caddy fee was 35 cents and there were over 100 in the pool, and for a long while it was a flat $1 at the Broadmoor for a caddy.

He also thinks that medal (stroke) play is the best test of golf skill. Baird pointed to the fact that a player can still come back after one bad round and make up for it. In match play, a bad round usually means elimination, but not so in stroke. From the spectator standpoint for all but national amateur tournaments, he thinks match is easier to follow.

Baird has heard much clubhouse comment about the old timers being better than the current crop. However, he feels that golf is no longer an "old man's game" and that the young players hit the ball better on the whole. He also thinks golfers of yesteryear might have played better with today's equipment and facilities. But because there is more opportunity to play than 30 years ago, there are more top flight players than ever before.

Palmer Golfers Cop City League Crown

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Quips from the players brightened an otherwise miserable day, scoring-wise, Monday as Palmer captured its second straight city golf league championship over the wind-brushed Eisenhower Golf Course.

Scores ranged from a trio of 42s into the mid-70s for nine holes over the tough Air Force Academy layout, but it didn't thwart the sense of humor of the prep players.

One linkster, who had sent his tee shots behind trees all afternoon, drove his shot off No. 9 behind another stack of lumber and said, "If it's behind a tree, it's me." He then proceeded to ricochet the ball off the tree, almost losing some skin in the process.

Another shooter was asked by his coach what he shot. The player replied that it was too horrible to mention.

"Everyone is shooting badly," the coach encouraged. "How did you do?"

"Worse," groaned the youngster.

But the classic came from somewhere in the middle of the ninth fairway. A golfer had drilled beautiful second shot just short of the clipped grass. The ball cut through the middle of the pear-shaped green, then hopped past to the rear.

From the pastureland, some 250 yards distant and perfectly audible, came the mournful lament — "Holy Cow!"

Mike Johnston of Wasson missed sole honors for the final round medalist when a 15-foot putt on the final hole hung on the lip of the cup and refused to drop. That dropped the T-Bird linkster into a tie with Palmer's Greg Nelson and Mark Weatherwax, each of whom had 42s.

Nelson came away with overall honors, totaling 158 for the four nine-hole rounds. Teammate Weatherwax followed at 164 and Terror Don Astley came in third at 165.

Palmer's 662 was 41 strokes better than second-place Wasson, which gained the runner-up spot by five strokes over Cheyenne Mountain. Cheyenne was in second by 21 strokes going into the final round.

The district meet, including Palmer, Wasson, the Will Rogers League schools and Grand Junction, will be held May 7 at Kissing Camels Course. The state meet will be held May 14-15 at Patty Jewett Course.

Writers Name Hogan Greatest All-Time Golfer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ben Hogan has been named the greatest professional golfer of all-time in a poll of the nation's golf writers and sports editors.

The Wee Ice Mon of Fort Worth, Tex., four-time winner of the National Open, beat out Arnold Palmer in a commercially conducted vote which had the sanction of the Professional Golders Association.

On the basis of three points for a first place vote, two for second and one for third, Hogan received 684 points compared with 398 for Palmer. The Texan got 160 votes for first place, Palmer received 55 as did Walter Hagen, who took third wtih 371.

Bob Jones was not included because his achievements were gained as an amateur. The poll was taken before Jack Nicklaus' sensational triumph in the 1965 Masters Tournament.

Sam Snead finished fourth with 232 points and Byron Nelson fifth with 126.

Hogan, now 52, was the PGA top money winner five times and was named Golfer of the Year four times. He won the U.S. Open four times, the Masters and PGA twice each and the British Open the only time he played in the event.

An award will be made to Hogan next Sunday at closing ceremonies of the Colonial Invitation Tournament at Fort Worth.

Indians Defeat Padres To Increase Loop Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Indianapolis Indians shut out San Diego 1-0 Monday night and scored their sixth straight Pacific Coast League baseball victory to tighten their grip on the circuit's Eastern Division lead.

Indian pitcher Bill Fischer held the Padres to five scattered hits for his first victory of the season. The lone run of the game was scored on catcher Bill Heath's triple in the fourth inning, giving Indianapolis a 13-4 record for the season.

Oklahoma City, riding on top of the division until last weekend, slipped 1½ games behind Indianapolis by dropping a 6-1 decision to the Denver Bears.

It was the second triumph for Denver's Dwight Siebler, plagued with arm trouble earlier. Siebler held the Oklahomans to four hits while his teammates batted safely a dozen times and scored five runs in the first three innings.

Portland's Western Division leaders came out on top of another 1-0 shutout over Tacoma behind the two-hit pitching of Steve Hargan.

The Beavers scored the winning run in the first inning on a single by Bubba Morton and a double by Tony Curry. Hargan now has a 3-0 season record.

The Vancouver-Hawaii game was rained out. No other games were scheduled.

BOWLING

State Tourney Shake-Up

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Richard M. Smith, a full-time detective with the Colorado Springs police department and a part-time bowler, turned the 14th annual Colorado State Bowling Association tournament upside down in the next-to-last weekend of an eight-week stand.

Smith fired a 704 scratch set last weekend at Broadway Bowl in Littleton to lead the scratch singles division. Smith also turned in a high game. He came close to beating the 1,500,000-to-one odds of posting a perfect "300" game when he left the four pin standing in the first frame but went on to register a 290 tally.

Smith put together games of 183-290-231 for the 704 scratch series and with his handicap pins he recorded a 752 set to take second place in the handicap singles division; five pins behind the leader Richard Wood of Denver.

This was the first time Smith competed in the state tournament. He has been competing in league bowling since 1958.

The only other Colorado Springs keglers who are ranking ade Tom Varnell and Ted Pietrowski, who are lodged in third place in the doubles division with 1319.

TOP AREA SCORES — With the local bowling season coming to a close within the next two weeks, the Colorado Springs area keglers have managed to continue above-par scoring.

Smith's 704 scratch series in the way last week with Jim Pee turning in a 680 three-game set at Circle Lanes while Ethel Kalow rolled a 644 series paced by a 278 single scratch game.

Other scores: Owen Moblery 257, Joe Jacksy 257 and 662, Clark 253, Jess Meyer 659 abd Norm Clark 653 (Bowl-Mor Lanes); Marge Shonka 236, Sally Steddom 219 and Katy Lobaugh 218 (Trail Bowl); Jim Waddy 644, Betty Goosen 628 and Mark Gibson, who after 18 years of bowling registered her first "600" series with a 614 paced by a 268 scratch game (Ute Lanes); Hazel Gilmore 232 and Sandy Curtis 235 (Peak Bowl); Rich Cunningham 268, George Hildebrandt 258, and Jeane Barrett and Hedy Hays 221 (Classic Bowl).

FIFTH ARMY TOURNEY — The Ft. Carson bowling team turned in a 8450 during the Fifth Army Telegraphic tournament last week. The ARADCOM keglers rolled 8168 during the week-long tourney. These scores were to be forwarded to Chicago for competition in the Fifth Army Telegraphic tourney.

In the singles division, Don Begola of Ft. Carson turned in a 1242, followed by Edwin Westmoreland with 1194, Ken Hamel with 1128, and Neil Grufman with 1109.

The duo of Jerry Hale and Begola fired a 2323 while Doug Deane and Westmoreland were second with 2288. Grufman and Harry Lentz turned in the third highest score with 2137 followed by Dennie Stephens and Dennis Englert with 2091.

MEN'S TRAVELING TOURNEY — The Academy Postal team fired a 3064 to win the twice monthly Inter-City Men's Traveling tournament last Sunday at Ute Lanes.

The winning team was composed of Louie Moore, Tony Thompson, Don Meredith, Ross Dickerson and Simon Boyd.

Peak Bowl finished second with 3009, followed by Ute Lanes with 2963. The next tournament is scheduled for May 16th at Classic Bowl.

GALS TOURNEY — Wilson Lanes of Las Animas walked off with top honors during the final Southern Colorado BPA Women's Traveling tournament last Sunday held at Ute Lanes. The winning team recoreded a 2935.

The Budweiser Mixers of Colorado Springs finished second with 2922 while Trinidad Lanes placed third with 2848. This was the final tourney for the 1964-65 bowling season.

Knicks Lose Princeton Star To Oxford, Law Career

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association will hold its annual draft session Thursday and the territorial choice of the forlorn New York Knicks undoubtedly will be Bill Bradley. But there's no good news in sight for the Knicks and the NBA today. Bradley won't play with the pros.

"I am leaving for England on Oct. 1," said Bradley, Princeton's two-time All-America who enters Oxford University for a two-year stay as a Rhodes Scholar.

Asked about rumors circulating that he had been offered $100,000 by the Knicks, the outstanding college player of the 1964-65 season said "that's not so. I haven't received such an offer, but it wouldn't make any difference.

"I intend to study for two years at Oxford. At the moment I intend to go into law after that."

Was there a chance he might play pro ball after he was through with Oxford?

"I can't say," he replied. "Right now I expect to go into law."

The remote possibility that he could change his mind in a couple of years is the reason the Knicks will use up their territorial choice Thursday.

"If we didn't," Knicks General Manager Ed Donovan said Monday, "you know what would happen. He'd be picked by someone else, then he would get married and not go to Oxford."

"Bradley would be a star in the NBA right now," commented Coach Red Auerbach of the champion Boston Celtics when he watched Bradley receive an award as the outstanding college basketball player of 1964 Monday night.

The 6-foot-5 Bradley was one of the 34 award winners at the second annual dinner of the National Academy of Sports. Auerbach accepted one for the Celtics and Bill Russell got another as the outstanding NBA player of the 1964-65 season.

But the leading trophy collectors were Olympic swimming stars Don Schollander and Donna de Varona. They each received three.

Schollander, winner of four gold medals at the Tokyo Olympics, received three Academy Stars as the outstanding male amateur athlete, male Olympian and male swimmer. Miss de Varona, winner of two Olympic gold medals last year, collected the female awards in the same three categories.

Winners of other major awards announced at the dinner were Jimmy Brown of the Cleveland Browns as pro athlete of the year and as the No. 1 player in the Eastern Conference of the National Football League; the U.S. Olympic swimming team as team of the year; the St. Louis Cardinals, winners of the World Series, as pro team of the year, and the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo as the sports event of the year.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee accepted the award on behalf of Tokyo.

President Johnson congratulated the athletes in a message read by Stan Musial, vice-president of the Cardinals.

PADUCAH BROUGHT $5

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) — Manhattan Island may have come cheap from the Indians, but this Ohio River town was once sold for $5.

For his services to Virginia during the Revolutionary War, George Rogers Clark was given 150,000 acres of Western Kentucky land. About 37,000 acres lay at the junction of the Ohio and Tennessee Rivers, where Paducah now stands.

Clark's estate was turned over to a Louisville man to administer when he died, and the 37,000-acre tract was sold to Clark's brother for $5.

Czech Beats Crown Allen Ginsberg

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — American poet Allen Ginsberg was crowned "King of Majales" by Prague's younger set in a hellbent May Day weekend celebration that set this Communist capital on its heels.

The Red regime inaugurated a new "loose leash" policy after three previous years had brought violent May Day clashes between police and youth.

This year police merely watched when thousands of youngsters threatened to storm the stage at a "big beat" festival in an entertainment park.

Chairs were thrown as some of the bands failed to please the largely mop-haired and high-heeled audience. The musicians retreated hastily.

An elderly bystander shook his head in disbelief as one officer said "We have nothing to do with this."

The youths also crowned a pretty college girl "Miss Majales," but the biggest ovation went to Ginsberg, for years the idol of Prague's beat generation.

Probe of Religious Discrimination Urged

NEW YORK (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg proposed Sunday night the creation of a neutral, fact-finding United Nations commission to investigate religious discrimination throughout the world.

Goldberg addressed the inaugural dinner of the Jewish Center for the United Nations which is to be built on the site of a synagogue on East 51st Street in Manhattan.

In an announcement which came as a surprise to Goldberg, it was disclosed that the library in the new center will be named in his honor. The Library is a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hassan of Washington.

Great Western Sugar Reports Income Drop

DENVER (AP) — The Great Western Sugar Co. reported Saturday a drop in net income, sales and sugar produced for the year ending Feb. 28.

The net earnings figure was $9,370,608 or $4.63 per share of common stock, compared to $9,595,348 or $4.96 per share for the year ending Feb. 29, 1964.

Total sales declined to $133,546,890 from $143,256,721, and sugar produced to 14,828,538 bags (100 pounds) from 15,083,790.

Dividends paid were the same for both yearly periods—$7 per share for preferred stock and $1.95 for common.

Frank A. Kemp, Great Western president, said in the annual report that conditions for company operations in its 60th fiscal year "were favorable in some respects, but confused and difficult in others."

"A very dry spring in Colorado, together with an even drier fall throughout our production area, resulted in beet yields well below those attained last year," he said.

"Sugar content was about average, and considerably higher than in the previous year."

The company spent nearly $6.5 million on plant and property improvement in the last year.

"Sales of sugar and by-products were less than last year's record," Kemp's report said.

"This reflects reimposition of marketing allotments by the Department of Agriculture under provisions of the Sugar Act and lower prices for both sugar and molasses resulting from a substantial increase in production and supplies for both the domestic and world markets."

The report said 1965 sugar beet acreage has been restricted through allotments for each farm fixed by the Agriculture Department, leading to a reduction of about 11 per cent in acreage in Great Western territory.

Church Building Styles Are Being Changed in U.S.

CHICAGO (AP) — The tide of change flowing through the world of religion is altering the shapes and styles of church buildings.

Edward A. Sovik, vice president of the Guild for Religious Architecture, explained some of the fine points in an interview.

Church building — now at billion-dollar-a-year peak in the United States — is getting away from the Gothic, Mission and other traditional patterns.

There is a trend, Sovik said, toward structures that relate to the 20th century.

"There is a clear movement away from cathedral-type churches," he added. "The concept of the church as a focus of the community or a neighborhood, rather than a monument, is certainly part of the change.

"The church building ought to be an evidence of the religious community's concern with serving the general community rather than impressing it with monumentality."

Houses of worship, he said, are reflecting "the radical changes in liturgical forms in every denomination." One result, he added, is a softening of the line of demarcation between chancel and nave.

"In one of the current trends the liturgy no longer is thought of as a performance by the clergy but as a common WORSHIP IN WHICH ALL PRESENT PARTICIPATE," HE EXPLAINED.

That means, Sovik said, the interior is regarded as a single space instead of separate areas for clergy and congregation. Sovik believes the growing feeling of common purpose will have an effect, too.

"There is a real sense of architecture as a servant of the ecumenical movement," he said. "Church groups are less eager to make their churches distinctive monuments to their differences. They are building churches that are not as radically oriented to denominations."

Sovik, of Northfield, Minn., was in Chicago for the National Conference on Church Architecture.

Mississippi to Crest at Quincy At Hannibal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Mississippi River pounded weakening dikes today in the Hannibal, Mo.-Quincy, Ill., area while water swirled over thousands of acres of farmland and through communities from Burlington, Iowa, to Hannibal.

The river is expected to crest today at 24.6 feet in Hannibal and 24.5 feet in Quincy.

The Mississippi cut a 10-foot swath half way through a dike on the Illinois side of the river, threatening 42,000 acres including the town of Hull, six miles to the east.

State police said farmers rushed to the scene and threw sand bags and other material into the opening. They said they thought the dike would hold, but the last of Hull's 535 residents have been evacuated.

A levee break closed the Mark Twain Memorial Bridge in Hannibal. U.S. 36, a main route from Indianapolis to Denver, was blocked off in Kinderhook, Ill.

The river burst two secondary levees Monday near Pleasant Hill, Ill., a community of 950 about 30 miles south of Quincy, and at Clarksville, Mo.

The Pleasant Hill break — a 50-foot slash — inundated more than 7,000 acres of farmland and drove families from about 20 homes.

The levee breaks lessened the pressure of the river on remaining dikes and officials hoped they would hold.

But officials at drainage headquarters in New Canton, Ill., said excessive backups in a tributary of the Mississippi near Pleasant Hill, have increased the need for reinforcing dikes.

Hannibal, with a population of 20,000 and Quincy, with 45,000 residents, are on high ground, not in danger of flooding. Some industries just south of Quincy are threatened.

Flood officials have said that the flood danger will diminish when the river crests in the Quincy-Hannibal area.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels were lower but the stock market managed to carve out an irregular rise in fairly active trading early Tuesday afternoon.

Steels were depressed by the finding of a special government study of the steel industry which stated that the industry did not need to raise prices now and could raise wages about 3 per cent a year.

Blue chips made enough gains to counteract the losses by steels.

Coppers gave belated recognition to the rise in price for copper. Most of the major copper producers showed gains.

Scattered blue chips among chemicals, retails and tobaccos rose.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.91 at 925.02.

Jones & Laughlin was up 1 while fractional losses were taken by U.S. Steel, Bethlehem and Republic Steel.

Texas Gulf Sulphur fell about a point and Pan American Sulphur more than a point in a continued retreat.

Gains exceeding a point were made by United Aircraft, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Control Data and Sears, Roebuck. U.S. Smelting rose 3.

Prices were generally higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were stronger.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—Selling pressure continued almost without letup in the grain futures market most of the time today and prices generally were weak.

Brokers said the offerings were largely outright liquidation with the expiring May contracts hardest hit in most instances. However, improved weather for farm work appeared to have imparted weakness to new crop months of corn, oats and soybeans.

Estimated carlot receipts ere wheat 18, corn 526, oats 29, rye none, barley 72 and soybeans 95.

Mississippi to Crest at Quincy At Hannibal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Mississippi River pounded weakening dikes today in the Hannibal, Mo.-Quincy, Ill., area while water swirled over thousands of acres of farmland and through communities from Burlington, Iowa, to Hannibal.

The river is expected to crest today at 24.6 feet in Hannibal and 24.5 feet in Quincy.

The Mississippi cut a 10-foot swath half way through a dike on the Illinois side of the river, threatening 42,000 acres including the town of Hull, six miles to the east.

State police said farmers rushed to the scene and threw sand bags and other material into the opening. They said they thought the dike would hold, but the last of Hull's 535 residents have been evacuated.

A levee break closed the Mark Twain Memorial Bridge in Hannibal. U.S. 36, a main route from Indianapolis to Denver, was blocked off in Kinderhook, Ill.

The river burst two secondary levees Monday near Pleasant Hill, Ill., a community of 950 about 30 miles south of Quincy, and at Clarksville, Mo.

The Pleasant Hill break — a 50-foot slash — inundated more than 7,000 acres of farmland and drove families from about 20 homes.

The levee breaks lessened the pressure of the river on remaining dikes and officials hoped they would hold.

But officials at drainage headquarters in New Canton, Ill., said excessive backups in a tributary of the Mississippi near Pleasant Hill, have increased the need for reinforcing dikes.

Hannibal, with a population of 20,000 and Quincy, with 45,000 residents, are on high ground, not in danger of flooding. Some industries just south of Quincy are threatened.

Flood officials have said that the flood danger will diminish when the river crests in the Quincy-Hannibal area.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels were lower but the stock market managed to carve out an irregular rise in fairly active trading early Tuesday afternoon.

Steels were depressed by the finding of a special government study of the steel industry which stated that the industry did not need to raise prices now and could raise wages about 3 per cent a year.

Blue chips made enough gains to counteract the losses by steels.

Coppers gave belated recognition to the rise in price for copper. Most of the major copper producers showed gains.

Scattered blue chips among chemicals, retails and tobaccos rose.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .5 at 341.5 with industrials up 1.0, rails up .1 and utilities unchanged.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.91 at 925.02.

Jones & Laughlin was up 1 while fractional losses were taken by U.S. Steel, Bethlehem and Republic Steel.

Texas Gulf Sulphur fell about a point and Pan American Sulphur more than a point in a continued retreat.

Gains exceeding a point were made by United Aircraft, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Control Data and Sears, Roebuck. U.S. Smelting rose 3.

Prices were generally higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were stronger.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—Selling pressure continued almost without letup in the grain futures market most of the time today and prices generally were weak.

Brokers said the offerings were largely outright liquidation with the expiring May contracts hardest hit in most instances. However, improved weather for farm work appeared to have imparted weakness to new crop months of corn, oats and soybeans.

Estimated carlot receipts ere wheat 18, corn 526, oats 29, rye none, barley 72 and soybeans 95.

GIANT JET — Braniff International has announced the $118,000,000 purchase of 17 new jet aircraft, including 707-320Cs (shown here), the largest and most powerful commercial jet manufactured by Boeing. The 707-320C, powered by four turbofan engines each developing 18,000 lbs of thrust, will cruise at speeds in excess of 600 miles per hour and carry up to 189 passengers or 86,000 lbs. of cargo, or it can be used in a passenger-cargo combination.

Braniff Buys $118 Million In Jet Aircraft

The $118,000,000 purchase of 17 jet aircraft and related equipment by Braniff International was announced today by airline President Harding L. Lawrence.

The order to the Boeing Company includes five 707-320Cs, the biggest and most powerful commercial aircraft manufactured by Boeing, and twelve of the new Boeing 727QCs. Both jets will operate at speeds in excess of 600 miles per hour.

Powered by four Pratt & Whitney turbo fan engines developing 18,000 pounds of thrust each, the 707-320Cs will carry up to 189 passengers or 86,000 pounds of goods when converted to an all-cargo arrangement, or it can be used in a passenger-cargo combination.

The 727QC (quick change) is also convertible in only twenty minutes from an all-passenger configuration of up to 114 passengers to an all-cargo capacity of 45,000 pounds, or to a combination operation.

"Deliveries of the new jets will begin in May 1966, and be completed by February 1967," Lawrence said. "This will provide us with a fleet of the most modern and versatile aircraft."

"The financing of the purchase," he added, "will be handled through both short and long-term institutional borrowing and internally generated funds."

Braniff currently operates a fleet of ten Boeing 707 and 720 jets and is introducing fourteen of the new Braniff One-11 jets into service this year.

Lawrence emphasized that both new types of aircraft will be equipped with the latest technological and electronic advances in aircraft systems and will offer the greatest passenger comfort of any jets now being built or being contemplated.

The giant Boeing 707-320C has a length of 152 feet 11 inches, a wing spread of 145 feet 9 inches and a gross weight of 332,000 pounds.

The Braniff all-passenger configuration will have accommodation for 24 first class passengers and 131 coach, or a total of 155. The 320C also can be converted in a short time to an all-cargo configuration or a combination arrangement for 115 passengers and 50,000 pounds of cargo.

The Braniff 727QC will have accommodations for 102 persons in all-passenger configuration, including 24 in the first class compartment and 78 in the coach section. In combination, the 727QC will carry 55 coach passengers and over 20,000 pounds of cargo.

The 727QC's three Pratt & Whitney JT8D-1 fan-jet engines, each developing 14,000 pounds of thrust, provide it with such capabilities as take-offs from 5,000 foot runways, cruising speed of over 600 miles per hour and a range of more than 2,000 miles.

The rapid conversion of the versatile 727QC is made possible through roler tracks on the floor of the aircraft accommodating sets of pallets which can be easily removed or installed through a forward cargo door measuring 91 inches by 131 inches.

Carpets, seats and galleys are pre-installed on one set of pallets, measuring 88 inches by 125 inches with another set for cargo loading. The decorated walls of the 727QC remain unchanged and unmarred through the use of "igloo" shaped covers fitting over the cargo pallets. In a combination arrangement a bulkhead is installed between the passenger cargo compartments.

Delivery schedules call for all five Boeing 707-320Cs to be delivered to Braniff during May, June and July of 1966. Eight 727QCs will be delivered between May and September, 1966, with the four additional to be delivered by February, 1967.

Learning serves its owner well in many ways. Broad and challenging horizons escape from tedium, the thrill of accomplishment and, not to be ignored, the monetary rewards are but a few benefits derived from learning. These, however, are the rewards that come as a number of course when learning is used as a valuable tool and not as a showpiece.

Investors' Corner

How "rich" are investors?... how many own stocks listed on New York Stock Exchange?

This year, it is likely that more than one million Americans will become shareowners for the first time in their lives. If you're one of them, you'll be joining a group estimated at more than 17 million.

Would it surprise you to know that there are more shareowners in this country than labor union members, or college students, or farmers?

How "rich" are investors? An Exchange study indicates the median income of shareowning families is $8,600, and about half are in the $5,000-to-$10,000 bracket. More women than men own stocks—and, grouped by occupation, housewives lead the list in number. An estimated 11 million men and women own stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

• • •

If investing is on your mind, you may be wondering: "How do I begin?" We recommend the following.

First, make a get-acquainted call on a registered representative of a member firm. There are some 3,400 offices and you'll usually find "Members New York Stock Exchange" on their doors and windows. Both the firm and its registered representatives have had to meet Exchange qualifications and are subject to Exchange rules. (One regulation is that registered representatives must be full-time brokers.)

• • •

Start by discussing your investment goal. Do you want dividends to bolster your regular income? Or long-term growth in the value of your stock? Or bonds, perhaps, for the greater safety of principal and stability of income they often provide.

Second, how much should you invest? Nothing, until you have provided for emergencies and for the usual expenses that most people have.

Third, what to buy? And how to buy? Certainly not on unsupported rumors or fragments of news. Ask your registered representative for the most factual account he can give you of a company's earnings, dividend record, financial condition, and possibly news about management. Ask for his judgment to season your own.

• • •

Finally, remember that stock prices go up and down for many reasons, and neither facts nor the coolest judgment can eliminate the risk.

• • •

The purpose of investing, of course, is to improve your financial position. That is why it is so important to know that there are right and wrong ways to go about it.

U.S. Business Sets Record Spending Goal

U. S. business plans to spend a record $51.7 billion on new plants and equipment in 1965, a rise of $6.8 billion or 15 per cent over last year.

This year will mark the first time in the history of American business that capital spending will top the $50 billion mark.

This is the major finding of the 18th Annual Survey of Business' Plans for New Plants and Equipment, conducted by the Economics Department of McGraw-Hill Publications.

American business appears to be putting more steam in its capital spending several years of slow but steady growth, the survey notes. This year's investment plans will account for 7.8 per cent of an estimated gross national output of $661 billion.

While not of quite boom proportions, it will be the first time in nearly a decade that capital spending has approached the average of 8.4 per cent of the nation's output achieved in the boom year of 1956.

"Perhaps even more significant than the record indicated for this year is the very high level of investment planned for the years beyond 1965," declared Douglas Greenwald, chief economist, McGraw-Hill Publications.

"Current preliminary planning now shows that business has plans to maintain an average spending level of nearly $48.5 billion between 1966 and 1968 — an amount exceeding the average spending in any three consecutive years in our history and an amount which is $6.5 billion above the three-year average preliminary plans indicated a year ago. It also exceeds the 1964 level by $3.5 billion," Greenwald stated.

Manufacturers Plan
Record Outlay

The survey found that the manufacturing segment of U.S. business plans a record level of spending this year — $22.5 billion, 21 per cent above last year.

And manufacturers are shifting their emphasis to expansion. They plan to devote 45 per cent of this year's investment, and 46 per cent of their 1966-68 investment, to expansion. Since 1960, manufacturers had devoted about one-third of their total investment to expansion.

This renewed interest in expansion is also shown in the McGraw-Hill index of manufacturing capacity. Having added a mere four per cent to manufacturing capacity on the average since 1960, firms now indicate they plan to increase capacity six per cent this year. In addition, they plan to add 18 per cent to capacity between the end of 1965 and 1968.

At the end of December, manufacturers as a whole were operating at 88 per cent of capacity, only four points below their preferred rate.

Business as a whole plans to devote 24 per cent of this year's investment to buildings and this further confirms the interest to expand. In addition, seven per cent of this year's spending will be for motor vehicles while 69 per cent will be for machinery and other equipment.

Manufacturers, on the average, expect their sales will be up seven per cent for 1965, compared to an estimate of six per cent last fall.

Most industries have raised their sights since last fall. The most optimistic is the nonferrous metals industry. It now expects unit sales will be up 14 per cent this year compared with six per cent expected last fall.

Textiles also expect sales to be good this year, 10 per cent above their 1964 volume. And the auto industry anticipates an eight per cent increase in unit sales, substantially above the volume expected last fall.

As in the past, the heavy industrialized areas of the country will get the largest share of the capital spending investment. Nearly one-third will be spent in the North Central States, 21 per cent in the South, the West 15 per cent, Middle Atlantic states 14 per cent and New England five to six per cent.

For the first time companies were asked what proportion of their investment is going for expanding in new locations. They indicated that $2.7 billion (27 per cent of their planned expansion budget) or nearly 12 per cent of their total 1965 spending will be in new locations.

R & D Plans Rise

Even though industry's sales expectations and operating rates are good, it is continuing to search for new products and new processes.

Industry performed $12.7 billion of research and development last year and expects to increase this amount to nearly $14 billion this year. By 1968, industry expects to be doing about $15.7 billion.

Speedier Income Tax Refunds Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has set up a plan to speed income tax refunds to military personnel who served in Viet Nam during 1964.

Thousands of servicemen paid taxes on military pay which Johnson recently ruled was at least partially tax exempt.

The White House announced today that taxpayers who served in Viet Nam in 1964 and have already filed returns may claim refunds by submitting amended returns refund claims.

To speed processing of the refunds, amended returns should be marked at the top of the form: "Amended — Combat Zone."

The White House said servicemen filing amended returns, original returns or claims should attach a statement showing the number of months served in Viet Nam in 1964 and the total amount of pay earned [illegible].

Pleasant Weather Reported in Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pleasant weather was reported in the major part of the nation today, with temperatures above seasonal levels in many areas.

Light showers fell in sections of Washington and western Oregon and thundershowers splashed across areas from lower Michigan to the Texas Panhandle and southeastern New Mexico. Showers also broke out early today in parts of northern Illinois.

Temperatures were 10 to 15 degrees above normal in most sections from New York and New Jersey across the Ohio Valley to West Texas. The mercury reached the 80s in many areas Monday and the 90 reading at Harrisburg, Pa., tied the record high for May 3.

In Chicago, a stiff cool breeze off Lake Michigan Monday night dropped temperatures 23 degrees in less than five minutes. The day's high was 82.

GIANT JET — Braniff International has announced the $118,000,000 purchase of 17 new jet aircraft, including 707-320Cs (shown here), the largest and most powerful commercial jet manufactured by Boeing. The 707-320C, powered by four turbofan engines each developing 18,000 lbs of thrust, will cruise at speeds in excess of 600 miles per hour and carry up to 189 passengers or 86,000 lbs. of cargo, or it can be used in a passenger-cargo combination.

Braniff Buys $118 Million In Jet Aircraft

The $118,000,000 purchase of 17 jet aircraft and related equipment by Braniff International was announced today by airline President Harding L. Lawrence.

The order to the Boeing Company includes five 707-320Cs, the biggest and most powerful commercial aircraft manufactured by Boeing, and twelve of the new Boeing 727QCs. Both jets will operate at speeds in excess of 600 miles per hour.

Powered by four Pratt & Whitney turbo fan engines developing 18,000 pounds of thrust each, the 707-320Cs will carry up to 189 passengers or 86,000 pounds of goods when converted to an all-cargo arrangement, or it can be used in a passenger-cargo combination.

The 727QC (quick change) is also convertible in only twenty minutes from an all-passenger configuration of up to 114 passengers to an all-cargo capacity of 45,000 pounds, or to a combination operation.

"Deliveries of the new jets will begin in May 1966, and be completed by February 1967," Lawrence said. "This will provide us with a fleet of the most modern and versatile aircraft."

"The financing of the purchase," he added, "will be handled through both short and long-term institutional borrowing and internally generated funds."

Braniff currently operates a fleet of ten Boeing 707 and 720 jets and is introducing fourteen of the new Braniff One-11 jets into service this year.

Lawrence emphasized that both new types of aircraft will be equipped with the latest technological and electronic advances in aircraft systems and will offer the greatest passenger comfort of any jets now being built or being contemplated.

The giant Boeing 707-320C has a length of 152 feet 11 inches, a wing spread of 145 feet 9 inches and a gross weight of 332,000 pounds.

The Braniff all-passenger configuration will have accommodation for 24 first class passengers and 131 coach, or a total of 155. The 320C also can be converted in a short time to an all-cargo configuration or a combination arrangement for 115 passengers and 50,000 pounds of cargo.

The Braniff 727QC will have accommodations for 102 persons in all-passenger configuration, including 24 in the first class compartment and 78 in the coach section. In combination, the 727QC will carry 55 coach passengers and over 20,000 pounds of cargo.

The 727QC's three Pratt & Whitney JT8D-1 fan-jet engines, each developing 14,000 pounds of thrust, provide it with such capabilities as take-offs from 5,000 foot runways, cruising speed of over 600 miles per hour and a range of more than 2,000 miles.

The rapid conversion of the versatile 727QC is made possible through roler tracks on the floor of the aircraft accommodating sets of pallets which can be easily removed or installed through a forward cargo door measuring 91 inches by 131 inches.

Carpets, seats and galleys are pre-installed on one set of pallets, measuring 88 inches by 125 inches with another set for cargo loading. The decorated walls of the 727QC remain unchanged and unmarred through the use of "igloo" shaped covers fitting over the cargo pallets. In a combination arrangement a bulkhead is installed between the passenger cargo compartments.

Delivery schedules call for all five Boeing 707-320Cs to be delivered to Braniff during May, June and July of 1966. Eight 727QCs will be delivered between May and September, 1966, with the four additional to be delivered by February, 1967.

Investors' Corner

How "rich" are investors?... how many own stocks listed on New York Stock Exchange?

This year, it is likely that more than one million Americans will become shareowners for the first time in their lives. If you're one of them, you'll be joining a group estimated at more than 17 million.

Would it surprise you to know that there are more shareowners in this country than labor union members, or college students, or farmers?

How "rich" are investors? An Exchange study indicates the median income of shareowning families is $8,600, and about half are in the $5,000-to-$10,000 bracket. More women than men own stocks—and, grouped by occupation, housewives lead the list in number. An estimated 11 million men and women own stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

* * *

If investing is on your mind, you may be wondering: "How do I begin?" We recommend the following.

First, make a get-acquainted call on a registered representative of a member firm. There are some 3,400 offices and you'll usually find "Members New York Stock Exchange" on their doors and windows. Both the firm and its registered representatives have had to meet Exchange qualifications and are subject to Exchange rules. (One regulation is that registered representatives must be full-time brokers.)

* * *

Start by discussing your investment goal. Do you want dividends to bolster your regular income? Or long-term growth in the value of your stock? Or bonds, perhaps, for the greater safety of principal and stability of income they often provide.

Second, how much should you invest? Nothing, until you have provided for emergencies and for the usual expenses that most people have.

Third, what to buy? And how to buy? Certainly not on unsupported rumors or fragments of news. Ask your registered representative for the most factual account he can give you of a company's earnings, dividend record, financial condition, and possibly news about management. Ask for his judgment to season your own.

* * *

Finally, remember that stock prices go up and down for many reasons, and neither facts nor the coolest judgment can eliminate the risk.

The purpose of investing, of course, is to improve your financial position. That is why it is so important to know that there are right and wrong ways to go about it.

"Wear your learning like your watch, in a private pocket; and do not pull it out and strike it, merely to show that you have one . . ." Chesterfield

Learning serves its owner well in many ways. Broad and challenging horizons escape from tedium, the thrill of accomplishment and, not to be ignored, the monetary rewards are but a few benefits derived from learning. These, however, are the rewards that come as a matter of course when learning is used as a valuable tool and not as a showpiece.

Learning to accept the loss of someone near and dear seems an impossible acomplishment. We may in some small measure offer consolation to the bereaved through complete and comprehensive services. Courteous attention is given to all the many distressing details at SWAN'S FUNERAL HOME, 316 N. Tejon, Colorado Springs. Phone 632-4657.

Secret Service Is Given More Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has acted to plug a gap in the Secret Service's authority to protect the President.

It approved a bill Monday which gives agents authority to make arrests without warrants for offenses committed in their presence.

U.S. marshals and FBI agents have had such authority for years.

Larchmont Co. Opens Unit Number Three

M. J. Brock & Sons & Associates, developers of Larchmont Homes on South Circle Drive at Gomer Avenue, announce the opening of Unit No. 3 of Larchmont Homes, one of the most successful developments in the city.

Starting in September of 1962 with Unit No. 1, Larchmont sold $1,500,000 worth of homes in 1962-63. In September of 1963, Larchmont Homes opened their Unit No. 2 and again sold another $1,500,000 in 1963-64, and because of the continued favorable response to the attractive Larchmont Homes, the firm is opening Unit No. 3. In the new unit many of the homes have a perfect view of Pikes Peak and the front range.

Larchmont offers six different homes with eighteen different exteriors, resulting in a customized neighborhood at prices far below custom housing.

Larchmont Homes start at $13,999.00 and go to $18,500.00 for their Cheyenne model —four bedrooms and a family room.

Larchmont offers VA financing with no down payment required. FHA and conventional financing with minimum down payments. Monthly payments start at $104.00 including taxes and insurance. Larchmont Homes are easy on your budget.

U.S. Business Sets Record Spending Goal

U. S. business plans to spend a record $51.7 billion on new plants and equipment in 1965, a rise of $6.8 billion or 15 per cent over last year.

This year will mark the first time in the history of American business that capital spending will top the $50 billion mark.

This is the major finding of the 18th Annual Survey of Business' Plans for New Plants and Equipment, conducted by the Economics Department of McGraw-Hill Publications.

American business appears to be putting more steam in its capital spending several years of slow but steady growth, the survey notes. This year's investment plans will account for 7.8 per cent of an estimated gross national output of $661 billion.

While not of quite boom proportions, it will be the first time in nearly a decade that capital spending has approached the average of 8.4 per cent of the nation's output achieved in the boom year of 1956.

"Perhaps even more significant than the record indicated for this year is the very high level of investment planned for the years beyond 1965," declared Douglas Greenwald, chief economist, McGraw-Hill Publications.

"Current preliminary planning now shows that business has plans to maintain an average spending level of nearly $48.5 billion between 1966 and 1968 — an amount exceeding the average spending in any three consecutive years in our history and an amount which is $6.5 billion above the three-year average preliminary plans indicated a year ago. It also exceeds the 1964 level by $3.5 billion," Greenwald stated.

Manufacturers Plan Record Outlay

The survey found that the manufacturing segment of U.S. business plans a record level of spending this year — $22.5 billion, 21 per cent above last year.

And manufacturers are shifting their emphasis to expansion. They plan to devote 45 per cent of this year's investment, and 46 per cent of their 1966-68 investment, to expansion. Since 1959, manufacturers had devoted about one-third of their total investment to expansion.

This renewed interest in expansion is also shown in the McGraw-Hill index of manufacturing capacity. Having added a mere four per cent to manufacturing capacity on the average since 1958, firms now indicate they plan to increase capacity six per cent this year. In addition, they plan to add 15 per cent to capacity between the end of 1965 and 1968.

At the end of December, manufacturers as a whole were operating at 88 per cent of capacity, only four points below their preferred rate.

Business as a whole plans to devote 24 per cent of this year's investment to buildings and this further confirms the interest to expand. In addition, seven per cent of this year's spending will be for motor vehicles while 69 per cent will be for machinery and other equipment.

Manufacturers, on the average, expect their sales will be up seven per cent for 1965, compared to an estimate of six per cent last fall.

Most industries have raised their sights since last fall. The most optimistic is the nonferrous metals industry. It now expects unit sales will be up 14 per cent this year compared with six per cent expected last fall.

Textiles also expect sales to be good this year, 10 per cent above their 1964 volume. And the auto industry anticipates an eight per cent increase in unit sales, substantially above the volume expected last fall.

As in the past, the heavy industrialized areas of the country will get the largest share of the capital spending investment. Nearly one-third will be spent in the North Central States, 21 per cent in the South the West 15 per cent, Middle Atlantic states 14 per cent and New England five to six per cent.

For the first time companies were asked what proportion of their investment is going for expanding in new locations. They indicated that $2.7 billion (27 per cent of their planned expansion budget) or nearly 12 per cent of their total 1965 spending will be in new locations.

R & D Plans Rise

Even though industry's sales expectations and operating rates are good, it is continuing to search for new products and new processes.

Industry performed $12.7 billion of research and development last year and expects to increase this amount to nearly $14 billion this year. By 1968, industry expects to be doing about $15.7 billion.

Speedier Income Tax Refunds Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has set up a plan to speed income tax refunds to military personnel who served in Viet Nam during 1964.

Thousands of servicemen paid taxes on military pay which Johnson recently ruled was at least partially tax exempt.

The White House announced today that taxpayers who served in Viet Nam in 1964 and have already filed returns may claim refunds by submitting amended returns refund claims.

To speed processing of the refunds, amended returns should be marked at the top of the form: "Amended — Combat Zone."

The White House said servicemen filing amended returns, original returns or claims should attach a statement showing the number of months served in Viet Nam in 1964 and the total amount of pay excluded from taxation.

Local Realtor Named to Counselor Group

C. Ralph Walstrom, Portland, Ore., president of the American Society of Real Estate Counselors, Thursday announced the appointment of 72 members from 30 states, the District of Columbia, and Canada to 1965 committees, including Floyd S. Padgett, broker for Padgett Realty, who has been appointed to the high-level conference subcommittee of education.

An affiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, ASREC was established in 1953 to fill the public need for counseling on a fee basis, a need long felt by estates, individuals, governments, corporations, and institutions which have come to recognize both the necessity and value of competent and disinterested real estate advice and guidance.

A real estate counselor frequently performs the functions that would be those of the real estate department of a corporation, or he serves as an advisor to the department if one exists.

Solons to Probe Combat Readiness

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate watchdog committee goes behind closed doors today to investigate what effect the Viet Nam war has had on the Army's combat readiness in other areas.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., described the probe by his Senate Armed Services Preparedness Investigating Committee as possibly the most important hearing it will undertake this year.

Staff aides who have just completed a three-month preliminary investigation will testify first. They will be followed by representatives of the General Accounting Office and the Army.

A report of the comittee's findings ultimately will be filed with the Senate. Stennis said the nature of the inquiry requires, however, that the hearings be secret.

The Denver-headquartered paper firm, a division of The Mead Cor., currently operates sales branches in Colorado Springs, Denver and seven other cities in the Rocky Mountain area.

Dixon distributes a full line of printing papers, industrial and packaging papers, food service papers, sanitary papers, transparent films, cups and containers. They are prepared to service every paper requirement.

The new facility will be located near the northern edge of Colorado Springs on a three-acre tract on the Garden of the Gods Road in the Pikes Peak Industrial Park.

Raymond C. Whitlock Construction Co. of Colorado Springs has been awarded the contract for construction of the warehouse.

Features of the new warehouse include air conditioned offices, a 3,300 square foot constant humidity room, 12,000 square feet of regular storage space, and inside loading and unloading facilities for two railroad cars and four trucks. The entire building will have a full sprinkling system for fire protection.

D. O. Clark president of Dixon Paper Co., stated that the growth of the Pikes Peak region and increased activities in manufacturing in recent years justified their decision to enlarge and modernize the sales and warehousing facility in Colorado Springs.

The new warehouse will provide ample facilities to meet the growing demand for paper and paper products required in the Colorado Springs expanding area.

The Colorado Springs office and warehouse will move to the new facilities from its present location at 528 S. Tejon St. when the building is completed early this fall.

Dixon Paper Co. started in business in Denver in 1911. In addition to its Denver and Colorado Springs branches, Dixon Paper Co. warehouses are located in Grand Junction and Pueblo; Albuquerque, N.M.; Billings, Mont.; El Paso, Tex.; Salt Lake City, Utah; and Boise Idaho.

In addition to the Dixon Paper Co. facilities in Colorado, The Mead Corp. also operates two corrugated box manufacturing plants in Denver.

Donald A. Sutton, local branch manager for Dixon Paper Co., has been a resident of Colorado Springs for six years. He is married, has three children and resides at 3410 Patrician Way.

State Records Show Total Imports Top Total Exports

By SAM CAMPBELL

The more you read about "balance of payments" and "gold outflow" in the press, the more baffling they become.

If payments are unbalanced, you would expect them to be going somewhere. For every loser there must be a gainer. So just who is on the heavy end of the foreign-exchange teeter-totter.

In the same way, if gold is outflowing, where is it outflowing to. Somebody must be getting it?

The gold matter, of course, between the lines. It is explained by two statements: (a) Foreigners can own gold, but Americans cannot; (b) Bank accounts are secret in Switzerland. So you can pretty well predict that some Americans are holding gold in Swiss accounts.

That's illegal, but how is Washington going to catch the culprit if it can't raid overseas banks.

The payments situation is much harder to figure. Like the U.S., England has a deficit. So our dollars aren't going there. Frances has a deficit, so De Gaulle isn't saving our currency either. Likewise Italy. In fact, the whole Common Market and Japan plus the South American countries have import-export deficits.

Where do our dollars go?

But you can stop holding your breath for an answer. A Spanish economist by the name of Faustino Ballve has come up with an explanation. In a book titled "Essentials of Economics" he writes:

"One day (about 1914) some German economists, who were more or less in the service of the militarist and imperialist faction, described the existence of what they called the national economy . . .

"Thereafter, day and night one began to speak of the balance of payments, the statisticians set to work, and we learned that for a long time all countries had been importing more than they exported. This belief led to government intervention in international commerce, import quotas, "dumping' (ie., subsidized exports), and foreign-exchange controls. The result was that as the intervention was extended and intensified, the deficit in the balance of payments kept on increasing.

"Whoever has the patience to peruse the statistics of the various nations will be surprised to find that, all told, more merchandise is imported in the world today than is exported, and that more gold is exported than is imported.

"Naturally, this is impossible, and the explanation for it is to be found in the fact that these statistics are all incorrect . . . movement of foreign exchange . . . made through controlled or visible channels; no account is taken of the fact that this movement of goods and money is not the whole of the actual movement, but only a part. This part becomes all the smaller, the greater the extent of government intervention, for the latter creates and feeds the black market . . ."

Professor Ballve can hardly be accused of political favoritism. He died in 1959. His book first was published in 1956.

So there you have it, the "balance of payments" is a phony.

White House Pressures for Steel Solution

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Though the steel strike threat has been deferred to Sept. 1, the White House is still maintaining strong pressure for a non-inflationary settlement.

President Johnson's appeal Monday for a wage pact that would not force a price increase was backed up by his Council of Economic Advisers in a bulky survey of steel wages, prices, profits and productivity.

The survey implied — without actually saying so — that because of rising productivity steel companies could absorb a wage increase of about 3 per cent without posting higher prices for steel products.

The figure is only slightly higher than the 2.7 per cent increase — 11½ cents an hour — which United Steelworkers Union negotiators accepted last week as the basis for a four-month deferment of their strike.

It is about midway between the 4.1 per cent wage-and-fringe package which the USW had demanded, and the 1.8 per cent proposal which the corporations had offered before the strike truce was arranged.

To the Council of Economic Advisers, 3 per cent is something of a magic figure. It matches the industry's average annual increase in productivity since 1957. It also is close to the 3.2 per cent increase which, the council said, represents the average yearly productivity gain for all industry in the past five years.

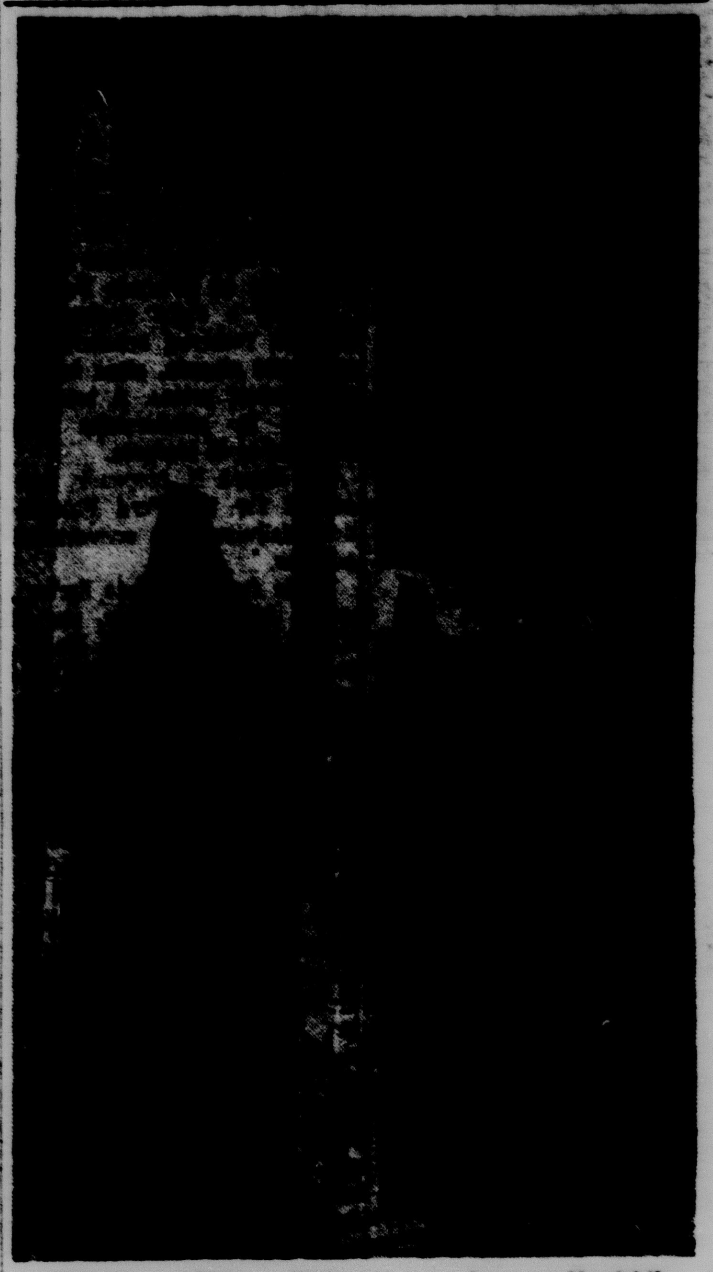
The council's price-wage guidelines, established for volutary use in the making of wage and price decisions, are based on the theory that wage settlements should not exceed the general trend of productivity increases.

A lower productivity estimate for the steel industry — only 2 per cent, on the average, from 175 through 1963 — was used by Roger M. Blough, board chairman of United States Steel Corp., in a speech to company stockholders Monday.

Blough said the 2 per cent compared with a 4 per cent rise in the employment cost for all workers in the industry over the same period. He told the corporation's annual meeting: "This gap between output and employment cost is a threat to steel's competitiveness and job-providing capability."

Council sources gave two reasons for the discrepancy between Blough's 2 per cent productivity rise figure and their own 3 per cent: Blough did not have access to new official figures showing the 1964 increase was 4.9 per cent, and he did not adjust his statistics to compensate for changes in the industry's operating rate, such as shutdowns caused by strikes.

New York is known as the Empire State, and Georgia as the Empire State of the South.



ONE OF A KIND — The new store front at Neufeld's, 23 S. Tejon St., is just part of a huge remodeling presently underway at the downtown ladies' apparel shop. Interior remodeling is expected to be finished by June, according to store Manager Dick Taxman. According to Taxman, the new front is probably the only one of its kind in the country and is termed "a step forward" for downtown Colorado Springs. The local out-let is featuring a "customer inconvenience sale" while the interior remodeling is being completed.

Selma Protection Cost $510,000, Pentagon Says

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — It cost the Defense Department $510,000 to protect the Selma-to-Montgomery civil rights marchers, the Pentagon said today.

This raised to nearly $13 million the cost of using federal troops and federalized National Guardsmen in five major civil rights crises dating back to Little Rock in 1957.

The Pentagon said the $510,000 figure covered pay and allowances for 4,000 Alabama National Guardsmen called into federal duty, plus transportation and other expenses in connection with measures taken to protect the voting rights march in late March.

The figure did not take into account the pay and allowances for about 1,000 regular Army military policemen who also were used. The Army has taken the position that these men would be drawing such pay and allowances regardless of what duties they were performing.

Also excluded were the expenses involved in use of federal marshals and other resources of the Justice Department.

The Alabama National Guard was federalized from March 20 to March 28.

In response to inquiries, the Defense Department also listed the costs of past Defense Department involvement in civil rights crises.

In September 1957, President Dwight D. Eisenhower called up 10,500 Arkansas Air and Army Guardsmen in a clash with Gov. Orval E. Faubus over admitting Negro pupils to Central High School in Little Rock. Federal troops were used.

The operation, extending from September 1957 to May 1958, cost $4,000,000.

In October 1962, the late President John F. Kennedy called out about 8,000 Mississippi Guardsmen during the riot-marked integration of the University of Mississippi. Here, too, sizable regular federal forces were used.

The Pentagon said this federal military operation, which lasted until June 1963, cost $4,364,000.

In June 1963, Kennedy ordered 17,000 Alabama Army and Air Guardsmen into federal service before Gov. George C. Wallace allowed Negroes to enter the University of Alabama.

Three months later, Alabama Guardsmen were back in federal service, this time in a federal-state dispute over public school integration.

The Army spent $2,171,000 for these operations of Alabama National Guardsmen. Other expenses, including communications, transportation and the like, are not included in this figure. The Army said it did not have cost data on these operations.

Selma Protection Cost $510,000, Pentagon Says

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — It cost the Defense Department $510,000 to protect the Selma-to-Montgomery civil rights marchers, the Pentagon said today.

This raised to nearly $13 million the cost of using federal troops and federalized National Guardsmen in five major civil rights crises dating back to Little Rock in 1957.

The Pentagon said the $510,000 figure covered pay and allowances for 4,860 Alabama National Guardsmen called into federal duty, plus transportation and other expenses in connection with measures taken to protect the voting rights march in late March.

The figure did not take into account the pay and allowances for about 1,000 regular Army military policemen who also were used. The Army has taken the position that these men would be drawing such pay and allowances regardless of what duties they were performing.

Also excluded were the expenses involved in use of federal marshals and other resources of the Justice Department.

The Alabama National Guard was federalized from March 20 to March 28.

In response to inquiries, the Defense Department also listed the costs of past Defense Department involvement in civil rights crises.

In September 1957, President Dwight D. Eisenhower called up 10,500 Arkansas Air and Army Guardsmen in a clash with Gov. Orval E. Faubus over admiting Negro pupils to Central High School in Little Rock. Federal troops were used.

The operation, extending from September 1957 to May 1958, cost $4,898,000.

In October 1962, the late President John F. Kennedy called out about 8,000 Mississippi Guardsmen during the riot-marked integration of the University of Mississippi. Here, too, sizable regular federal forces were used.

The Pentagon said this federal military operation, which lasted until June 1963, cost $4,364,000.

In June 1963, Kennedy ordered 17,000 Alabama Army and Air Guardsmen into federal service before Gov. George C. Wallace allowed Negroes to enter the University of Alabama.

Three months later, Alabama Guardsmen were back in federal service, this time in a federal-state dispute over public school integration.

The Army spent $3,171,000 for these operations of Alabama National Guardsmen. Other expenses, including communications, transportation and the like, are not included in this figure. The Army said it did not have cost data on these elements.

CAT-ASTROPHE

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Curiosity almost killed E.T. Beasley's cat and it actually was responsible for starting a fire, firemen who put out a blaze in the Beasley home reported.

The curious kitty apparently got into a radio in the den and bit into a hot wire, burning her mouth and singeing her whiskers. She was treated by a veterinarian.

Steel Issue Seen as Danger to Laborites

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's slender parliamentary majority faces a new threat on the steel nationalization issue — this one from the left wing of his Labor party.

Old Guard Socialist Ian Mikardo announced he may not support the government nationalization plan because he believes compensation for steel shareholders proposed by Wilson's Cabinet is "madly over-generous."

Wilson plans to have Parliament vote Thursday on a white paper outlining plans to bring most of Britain's steel industry under government ownership.

The right-wing Laborites, Woodrow Wyatt and Desmond Donnelly, have threatened to abstain in the voting. This would reduce the government's majority to two. If they voted against it, it would be a tie. If Mikardo also voted against it, it would mean defeat.

Crocodiles, hippos, and boa constrictors caused most of the accidents treated by Dr. Albert Schweitzer years ago. Today, machines cause most accidents treated at his jungle hospital.

DECLINE OF STOMACH CANCER

Mortality from cancer of the stomach has declined 65 per cent in the United States in the past 25 years. The change in the death rate is not so apparent in England and the incidence in Japan and Scandinavia continues to be high. We are pleased with our lot, even tho the reason is unknown.

Some credit is due to earlier diagnosis and better surgical technic. This is logical, except that gastric cancers often are silent until far advanced. They produce relatively few symptoms at the stage when surgery might offer the best chance of cure. Most victims become suspicious when they lose weight because of a waning appetite, dyspepsia, and abdominal pain.

Many tell of having the desire to eat until they swallow one or two bites of food. This leads to a feeling of satisfaction or a sense of being uncomfortably full. Others become concerned when the full feeling is followed with vomiting — more so when the material contains blood. By this time, many are anemic.

The exception to this story occurs when the cancer masquerades as a peptic ulcer. We do not refer to the nine out of 10 lesions located in the first part of the small intestine (duodenum) just outside the exit valve of the gastric pouch. This is the usual ulcer with which most of us are familiar; they rarely become malignant. The crater that eats its way into the wall of the stomach is more serious because it may be cancerous. These ulcers are painful and usually produce distress in an early phase of growth.

Most stomach cancers are diagnosed via X-ray. Surgery offers the only chance for cure. Other tests may be suggested when a gastric ulcer is found, because some of these lesions are benign. Many physicians recommend early surgery regardless of the outcome of the tests because they do not want to lose time if the lesion is malignant. In addition, benign ulcers of the stomach can be stubborn and ultimately an operation will be needed — so why not now?

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions of medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies request.

EYE TRAIN AND WEARINESS

A. B. writes: Can eyestrain cause excessive tiredness?

REPLY

The eye muscles tire but it is a moot question whether fatigue of the entire body ensues. Eyestrain often occurs at the end of the day when the person is tired for other reasons. In such instances, fatigue is con-incidental.

.... ASCENDING STOMACH ....

E. C. writes: Recently I had X-rays, and the doctor found that part of my stomach has moved up to the chest. Is this a common disorder?

REPLY

Yes. It is noted so often, most X-ray specialists look for a hiatal, or diaphragmatic hernia, whenever they X-ray the stomach.

....CHEESY TONSILS.... .....

F. H. writes: Are cheesy particles in the tonsils a sign of infection?

REPLY

Not necessarily. Tonsils contain numerous crypts in which food and debris collect. These appear as white spots and a cheesy matter escapes when the tonsil is squeezed.

.. CROSS-EYED TEEN-AGER ..

Linda writes: I'm 16 years old and have a bad turn in the right eye. Is it too late to correct this condition?

REPLY

No, but tests must be done to determine whether the operation will improve vision in the turned eye.

West Germany Wants Nuclear Deterrent

BONN, Germany (AP) — Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder says West Germany as a right to take part "in an effective way" in the North Atlantic Alliance's nuclear deterrent.

"If the alliance is to keep together," he said in an interview Monday, its members "must solve its nuclear problems, which arise through the existence of nuclear and non-nuclear powers."

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has been studying plans to incorporate West Germany in an Atlantic nuclear defense — but not to let the West Germans have their own weapons.

President Charles de Gaulle of France and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko agreed last week that West Germany should not have atomic arms.

Byrnes Supports Viet Fight But Opposes Aid

EDITOR'S NOTE — James F. Byrnes, who celebrated his 86th birthday Sunday, held many top positions in legislative, executive and judicial branches of the government. He served South Carolina as governor, congressman and senator; was an associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court; and was "assistant president" and secretary of state. Now living in retirement in Columbia, S.C., Byrnes gives his views on today's top issues in the following interview with Jack Bell, chief of The Associated Press Senate staff, who covered Byrnes' activities in Washington for many years.

By JACK BELL

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes supports President Johnson's policy of air strikes against North Viet Nam but opposes his proposal to provide $1 billion in aid to Southeast Asia.

A former member of the House and Senate, a former Supreme Court justice, an "assistant president" to Franklin D. Roosevelt, secretary of state under Harry S. Truman and a former governor of his own state, Byrnes marked his 86th birthday here Sunday. It was also his 50th wedding anniversary.

In an interview with The Associated Press he:

— Recalled some of his own difficulties in dealing with Russian leaders but counseled continued talks with them.

— Said the Supreme Court is invading the field of legislation, usurping the powers of Congress and changing the Constitution improperly.

— Called Johnson's voting rights bill "terrible" and said the eventual ruling on it would show how far the court is willing to go "in attempting to dictate the policies of government."

Here are some questions put to Byrnes and his answers on international issues:

Q. Do you support Johnson's Viet Nam policies?

A. I heartily support his statements as to his willingness to discuss the cessation of hostilities and settlement of our controversies. I am sorry that he added his willingness to have the United States contribute a billion dollars to the rehabilitation of Southeast Asia.

Q. Do you support the air strikes against North Viet Nam?

A. — Enthusiastically support the air strikes. The only way we can hope to convince the war lords of North Viet Nam is by a demonstration of our power. I do not believe, however, that you can buy the friendship of people. That is true of individuals, and it is true of governments, which are an assortment of individuals. I do not believe that the money we gave (Indonesia President) Sukarno has accomplished any good. I understand that (Egyptian President) Nasser said we could take our money and go to hell. I dislike to have the well-intended efforts of the U.S. government denounced by such little [illegible]

[illegible] myself on Christmas Eve in 1945, at which dinner the Politburo were guests. These men determined the policies of the Soviet government and I know of no one who would suggest that there has been any modifications of the views of the Politburo. Mr. Stalin passed from the scene, so did Mr. Khrushchev, but the policy of the Soviet government remains the same.

Q. You don't believe that peaceful coexistence offers much hope?

A. — I don't, unless and until there is a change in the Soviet policy. The U.S. should realize that the Soviets recognize only power and we have to have military power superior to that of the Soviet government.

Stalin did not like the ruling forces in China. He had no confidence in them. I recall that after the war, when Stalin was questioning how many troops we had in China, and I told him the exact number — some 40,-000, and that we wanted them home as soon as possible. He seemed quite amazed and asked where did we have stationed an army of a million? On the table between us I took matches and showed as accurately as I could where our troops were, according to the latest information from the Joint Chiefs of Staffs. I finally convinced him. He threw his head back and said, "I believe you Mr. Secretary, the Chinese were always the damnest liars in the world." I think he is right. I thought so then; I was right, and I think so now.

Q. What are the chances, in your estimation, trat the Chinese will intervene directly in the Viet Nam war?

A. I must confess that I have no fixed opinion. It is uncertain always as to what the Chinese will do. Again, they are impressed only by the military power of the U.S. government. Negotiations with China are very much like negotiations with the Soviets. I found in dealing with them (the Russians) for almost two years, they are what the Orientals are supposed to be — traders.

Q. Do you think talks with the Soviets should continue?

A. Yes. As a matter of fact, I think President Johnson was extremely right in stating in his John Hopkins University speech that he was ready at any time to talk with the Soviets or any other government, because we cannot hold the support of independent governments if we refuse to confer with those who are opposed to us.

Prince Philip Says He Was Almost Drunk

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elisabeth II's husband says he came very close to getting tight during his eight-week tour of Asia and Australia.

In a radio interview Sunday, Prince Philip told of attending a banquet in Borneo and being offered a harmless looking drink.

"It tasted very good," said the prince. "I had two tumblers of it. I could hardly walk afterwards."

The spectacle gave his hosts "immense pleasure," he added.

A spokesman at the Malaysian government's office in London said the drink apparently was a local Borneo brew made from tapioca roots.

Many tell of having the desire to eat until they swallow one or two bites of food. This leads to a feeling of satisfaction or a sense of being uncomfortably full. Others become concerned when the full feeling is followed with vomiting — more so when the material contains blood. By this time, many are anemic.

The exception to this story occurs when the cancer masquerades as a peptic ulcer. We do not refer to the nine out of 10 lesions located in the first part of the small intestine (duodenum) just outside the exit valve of the gastric pouch. This is the usual ulcer with which most of us are familiar; they rarely become malignant. The crater that eats its way into the wall of the stomach is more serious because it may be cancerous. These ulcers are painful and usually produce distress in an early phase of growth.

Most stomach cancers are diagnosed via X-ray. Surgery offers the only chance for cure. Other tests may be suggested when a gastric ulcer is found, because some of these lesions are benign. Many physicians recommend early surgery regardless of the outcome of the tests because they do not want to lose time if the lesion is malignant. In addition, benign ulcers of the stomach can be stubborn and ultimately an operation will be needed — so why not now?

EYE TRAIN AND WEARINESS

A. B. writes: Can eyestrain cause excessive tiredness?

REPLY

The eye muscles tire but it is a moot question whether fatigue of the entire body ensues. Eyestrain often occurs at the end of the day when the person is tired for other reasons. In such instances, fatigue is con-incidental.

ASCENDING STOMACH

E. C. writes: Recently I had X-rays, and the doctor found that part of my stomach has moved up to the chest. Is this a common disorder?

REPLY

Yes. It is noted so often, most X-ray specialists look for a hiatal, or diaphragmatic hernia, whenever they X-ray the stomach.

CHEESY TONSILS

F. H. writes: Are cheesy particles in the tonsils a sign of infection?

REPLY

Not necessarily. Tonsils contain numerous crypts in which food and debris collect. These appear as white spots and a cheesy matter escapes when the tonsil is squeezed.

CROSS-EYED TEEN-AGER

Linda writes: I'm 16 years old and have a bad turn in the right eye. Is it too late to correct this condition?

REPLY

No, but tests must be done to determine whether the operation will improve vision in the turned eye.

Prince Philip Says He Was Almost Drunk

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II's husband says he came very close to getting tight during his eight-week tour of Asia and Australia.

In a radio interview Sunday, Prince Philip told of attending a banquet in Borneo and being offered a harmless looking drink.

"It tasted very good," said the prince. "I had two tumblers of it. I could hardly walk afterwards."

The spectacle gave his hosts "immense pleasure," he added.

Byrnes Supports Viet Fight But Opposes Aid

EDITOR'S NOTE — James F. Byrnes, who celebrated his 86th birthday Sunday, held many top positions in legislative, executive and judicial branches of the government. He served South Carolina as governor, congressman and senator; was an associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court; and was "assistant president" and secretary of state. Now living in retirement in Columbia, S.C., Byrnes gives his views on today's top issues in the following interview with Jack Bell, chief of The Associated Press Senate staff, who covered Byrnes' activities in Washington for many years.

By JACK BELL

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes supports President Johnson's policy of air strikes against North Viet Nam but opposes his proposal to provide $1 billion in aid to Southeast Asia.

A former member of the House and Senate, a former Supreme Court justice, an "assistant president" to Franklin D. Roosevelt, secretary of state under Harry S. Truman and a former governor of his own state, Byrnes marked his 86th birthday here Sunday. It was also his 59th wedding anniversary.

In an interview with The Associated Press he:

— Recalled some of his own difficulties in dealing with Russian leaders but counseled continued talks with them.

— Said the Supreme Court is invading the field of legislation, usurping the powers of Congress and changing the Constitution improperly.

— Called Johnson's voting rights bill "terrible" and said the eventual ruling on it would show how far the court is willing to go "in attempting to dictate the policies of government."

Here are some questions put to Byrnes and his answers on international issues:

Q. Do you support Johnson's Viet Nam policies?

A. I heartily support his statements as to his willingnse sto discuss the cessation of hostilities and settlement of our controversies. I am sorry that he added his willingness to have the United States contribute a billion dollars to the rehabilitation of Southeast Asia.

Q. Do you support the air strikes against North Viet Nam?

A. — Enthusiastically support the air strikes. The only way we can hope to convince the war lords of North Viet Nam is by a demonstration of our power. I do not believe, however, that you can buy the friendship of people. That is true of individuals, and it is true of governments, which are an assortment of individuals. I do not believe that the money we gave (Indonesia President) Sukarno will accomplish any good. I understand that (Egyptian President) Nasser told us we could take our money and go to hell. I dislike to have the well-intended efforts of the U.S. government depreciated by such little people in a big world.

Q. You dealt extensively with Russians as secretary of state. What is your estimation of what the Russians are up to now?

A. What is their immediate goal I do not know, but I always stop and think what has been their goal ever since the end of World War II. I have no doubt that it is the same goal. They want to dominate the world. They would prefer to do it by negotiations, but if that is not possible, they would do it by force. There has been no change announced as to the policy of the Politburo. I remember a dinner given to the three foreign ministers Bevin, Molotov and myself on Christmas Eve in 1945, at which dinner the Politburo were guests. Those men determined the policies of the Soviet government and I know of no one who would suggest that there has been any modifications of the views of the Politburo. Mr. Stalin passed from the scene, so did Mr. Khrushchev, but the policy of the Soviet government remains the same.

Q. You don't believe that peaceful coexistence offers much hope?

A. — I don't, unless and until there is a change in the Soviet policy. The U.S. should realize that the Soviets recognize only power and we have to have military power superior to that of the Soviet government.

Stalin did not like the ruling forces in China. He had no confidence in them. I recall that after the war, when Stalin was questioning how many troops we had in China, and I told him the exact number — some 40,000, and that we wanted them home as soon as possible. He seemed quite amazed and asked where did we have stationed an army of a million? On the table between us I took matches and showed as accurately as I could where our troops were, according to the latest information from the Joint Chiefs of Staffs. I finally convinced him. He threw his head back and said, "I believe you Mr. Secretary, the Chinese were always the damnest liars in the world." I think he is right. I thought so then; I was right,and I think so now.

Q. What are the chances, in your estimation, trat the Chinese will intervene directly in the Viet Nam war?

A. I must confess that I have no fixed opinion. It is uncertain always as to what the Chinese will do. Again, they are impressed only by the military power of the U.S. government. Negotiations with China are very much like negotiations with the Soviets. I found in dealing with them (the Russians) for almost two years, they are what the Orientals are supposed to be — traders.

Q. Do you think talks with the Soviets should continue?

A. Yes. As a matter of fact, I think President Johnson was extremely right in stating in his John Hopkins University speech that he was ready at any time to talk with the Soviets or any other government, because we cannot hold the support of independent governments if we refuse to confer with those who are opposed to us.

West Germany Wants Nuclear Deterrent

BONN, Germany (AP) — Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder says West Germany as a right to take part "in an effective way" in the North Atlantic Alliance's nuclear deterrent.

"If the alliance is to keep together," he said in an interview Monday, its members "must solve its nuclear problems, which arise through the existence of nuclear and non-nuclear powers."

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has been studying plans to incorporate West Germany in an Atlantic nuclear defense — but not to let the West Germans have their own weapons.

President Charles de Gaulle of France and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko agreed last week that West Germany should not have atomic arms.
